Doctor to Governor

—By Arthur Brisbane—

LAS VEGAS, N. M., Nov. 22—This is written, as you may suspect, on one of many trips between the Atlantic and the Pacific. Soon the train will be going through the Western Desert region, so called.

When they choose, men with the use of water can make those deserts blossom. These high lands are saved as a residence for a future and better race of flying men.

But you, if under 50, will see the day when financiers, with noses, hearts and minds deep in money, will fly on Friday afternoon to a high hill in Arizona, New Mexico or some other far away spot to forget over Saturday and Sunday the business of money grubbing.

Fort Madison, Iowa, with fine soil, wonderful sunshine, has 15,000 intelligent people and beautiful, healthy high school girls. The Mississippi river is one mile and a quarter wide there, so says the yardmaster.

When this Santa Fe "Chief" stopped, a flock of high school girls comes tripping to the platform, as you have seen gentle doves alight on St. Mark's Square in Venice. One supposes they have come to greet a returning school superintendent. He is wrong. Norma Talmadge, of the "screen," is on the train.

Imagine the sorrow of those fair young things, with eager eyes and pink cheeks, when Miss Talmadge fails to appear.

Later, in her stateroom, with her mother, she says: "I didn't know they were there. Anyhow, I have been off the screen so long, they wouldn't want to see me. They probably heard that you were on the train." This she says seriously, and such modesty is becoming in youth.

The wise will be even more interested in the thoughtful Talmadge mother than in the charming young daughter. That mother's intelligence has guided her three daughters, Constance, Norma and Natalie, through their careers of remarkable success.

Says this model mother, "I invest the girls' money for them carefully." You may be perfectly sure that she does, and that the girls will never be poor, apart from the fact that they are married to rich men.

If you could look through the windows of this Pullman car, now, you would see rolling toward the sky, most beautiful Colorado hills, covered with dry grass, and among the evergreen trees in bright sunshine you would see hundreds of sheep, nibbling grass, to be changed into mutton. And you would wish that hundreds of thousands of children and old men and women from the East might be sharing and enjoying this wonderfully high climate and sunshine.

If we ever learn how to use what we have in our magnificent empire, how to use and distribute human labor, wealth and food, there will be no more depression.

At the bottom is a well worn path, and along the path, no other living creature in sight, slowly and majestically walks a fat cow, her sides bulging out, heavy with calf.

There is a picture of duty well done, patience with conditions as they are, adaptation to environment. There is a contented being. While grass grows, water flows and the sun shines she lacks nothing.

If the people of the United States had real brains they would know no depression while they have too much of everything that they need.

Dr. B. B. Moeur never expected to be governor of Arizona. A country doctor, his specialty was bringing babies into the world. Mother and baby always lived and "did well."

He says: "I never owned a dress suit, just wear one kind of clothes. They are good enough to go anywhere. Never asked anyone to vote for me, never had to deny anything, never had to look over my shoulder while I talked."

Dr. Moeur is diligent. Spent his youth on the Texas range. When he has a patient very ill he says to assembled relatives: "Get down on your knees and pray. I have done all I can."

Also in 1917, when young men from Tempe, his home town, went to war, Dr. Moeur sent each one a letter saying any bills they owed were cancelled and he would look after their families without charge while they were away.

Such a man had to be elected governor. By the way, he will continue his baby work, governor or no governor, because a lot of mothers won't have anyone else.

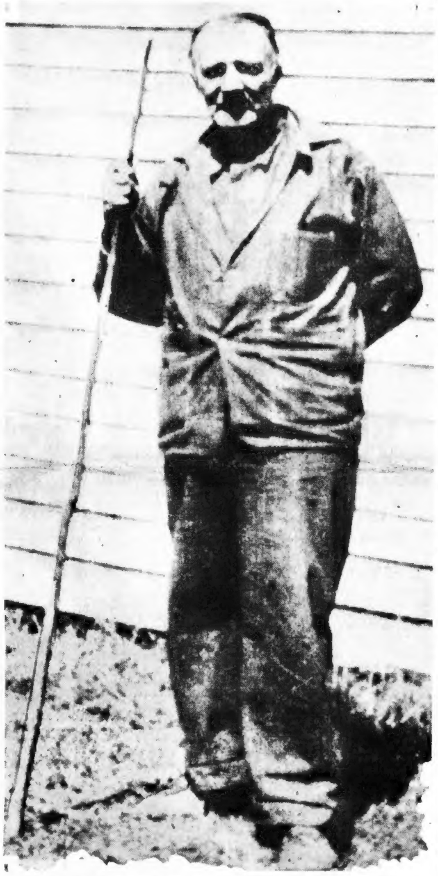
EXCLUSIVE! COL. ROBINS — "PROF. ROGERS"

COL. ROBINS, DRY CRUSADER

Col. Raymond Robins as he looked on Aug. 31 when he left Kennebunk, Me., for New York on his way to Washington to keep an engagement in the White House with President Hoover, an intimate friend.



"REYNOLDS ROGERS," GOLD PROSPECTOR

Exclusive telephoto of Col. Robins who, as Reynolds Rogers, lived two months in the obscure North Carolina mountain hamlet of Whittier while the whole country hunted for him. Photo shows him garbed in rough overalls and carrying a walking stick made from a sapling, while a growth of stubbly beard covers his face. He told the nativess he was a gold prospector. Wife Tells How Robins 'Came to'

'WOKE UP' AT HANDCLASP, MATE SAYS

Asheville, N. C., Nov. 22 (INS)—Declaring she had been reborn since her husband recognized her, Mrs. Raymond Robins today described the dramatic scene in which Col. Raymond Robins, dry crusader, regained his memory while she clasped his hand in Appalachian Hall Sanatarium here.

"I have had a new birth. I want to sing Hallelujah. My dear, beloved husband has recognized me at last, said Mrs. Robins. "The recollection was born of a tremendous mental strain which he underwent. There was a stupendous reorganization of his mind.

"I believe it was the handclasp that had a lot to do with it," she said. "We were not making much headway. He had greeted me as a stranger when I arrived and although my recalling of past events resulted in him undergoing a mental strain, he still failed to remember me.

"Finally the flash came to me if I gave him my hand it might help. It was not the reasoning out of the things we wanted him to do, it was to bring a shock that would lift the cloud. We had never shaken hands before and had been very formal.

SPEECH FOR HOOVER

"I went to him as he stood by the doctor and took his hand in mine. I stood there smiling up into his face and quietly saying Raymond. Suddenly a startled expression appeared on his face and with a bright look in his eyes he exclaimed: 'Margaret.'"

Mrs. Robins revealed that the dry leader had written a speech for President Hoover dealing with prohibition and had it with him when he left Kennebunk, Me., on Aug. 31 for New York on his way to keep an engagement with the President in the White House.

"The speech has not been found among his belongings," she said.

She said Robins originally was opposed to the Eighteenth Amendment because he did not think all parts of the country, especially the cities, were ready for it, but when it was in the Constitution he thought it should be protected and defended.

"I was almost too happy to talk

Garner Gives Roosevelt Debt Data

With Gov. Roosevelt En Route to Washington, Elizabeth, N. J., Nov. 22 (INS) — President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt was speeding toward Washington today for his conference with President Hoover on international debts and kindred subjects.

All questions as to the part he would play in the White House conference late in the day were disposed of by Gov. Roosevelt with a wave of his hand as he boarded the train at Jersey City.

Advisers of the President-elect, however, made it plain he was determined to refuse to shoulder responsibility for any immediate decisions with respect to war debts.

GARNER JOINS PARTY.

Accompanying Gov. Roosevelt is Prof. Raymond Moley of Columbia University, who will act as his sole adviser at the conference with the President.

James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic national committee, Col. Louis M. Howe, confidential adviser, and Frank C. Walker, treasurer of the Democratic national committee, also accompanied Gov. Roosevelt.

It was announced Speaker John N. Garner, Vice-President-elect, would join Gov. Roosevelt at Baltimore. This will afford Mr. Roosevelt a final opportunity to review the entire war debt situation with Speaker Garner and Prof. Moley before going to the White House.

20 Extra Gun Guards Watch Revere Polls

Ten state troopers and 10 police borrowed from Lynn augmented the Revere force today in guarding against a gangster threat as Revere voters cast their ballots in the most bitterly-fought primaries in years.

The cry of "gangsters" was raised by Charles R. White, Republican candidate for the mayoralty nomination, but was belittled by his opponent, Mayor Andrew A. Casassa, but every person in the vicinity of the 11 precinct polling places was closely scrutinized nevertheless.

The 10 State troopers who took up positions when the polls opened at noon were in command of Capt. Joseph Ferrari, while the 10 Lynn officers were commanded by Sergt. Leon Cormier, these reinforcements nearly doubling the normal police personnel in Revere.

Both White and Mayor Casassa asked for the extra police because of the turbulous campaign waged preliminary ot the primaries, and also got permission of Governor Ely to have State supervisors present at each precinct.

he only comment Police Chief Tighe of Revere would make relative to the police reinforcements, was:

"I always welcome assistance."

Mayor Casassa voted early at the Point of Pines, while White voted later in Ward 4, Precinct 3, North Revere, declaring at that time that someone threw a rock through a window of his automobile last night.

Everything was serene in all precincts up to the time the candidates cast their ballots.

"I am the people's candidate, so I ought to win said William F. "Happy" Holland, Malden's ashman candidate for mayor, whose entrance into the race attracted State-wide attention, after voting in Ward Precinct 1, today.

"The other candidates have no foundation to their platforms," added the man who hopes to step from the ash wagon to the mayor's chair. Followed the famous "Happy" gold-toothed smile.

Mayor Hastings, seeking re-election, cast his ballot early in ward 4, precinct 1.

"I am confident of victory," the mayor told reporters after voting. "If there is anyone in Malden who knows city finances better than I do, I hope he is elected."

Other mayoralty candidates include John D. Devir, former mayor; Harold R. Mason, cemetery trustee; Frank E. Simpson, former alderman, and Harry Senders, Communist.

COL. HERBERT ILL IN HAWAII

Col. John F. J. Hebert of Worcester, prohibition director in Hawaii and overseas commander of the 102d Field Artillery, Yankee Division, is critically ill in Hawaii, following a shock, according to dispatches received in Boston today.

The message was relayed from prohibition enforcement headquarters in Washington, where official notification was received from the Hawaiian district office.

Col. Herbert has been in the prohibition service just six years this month and has been in charge of the Hawaiian administration since last February. Before that he served as administrator in the Chicago, the Montana-Idaho and the Maryland districts.

He is a former managing editor of the Worcester Post and was the first State commander of the American Legion in Massachusetts.

HANDCLASP AWAKENED ROBINS, WIFE DECLARES

after he recognized me," she said. "We didn't say much of anything. Dr. Griffin, the psychiatrist who has been attending him, called in some of the other physicians and then his nephew, Mr. Dreier, came in. After greeting him by his first name, Col. Robins asked him about Russia. Mr. Dreier returned from Russia after the Colonel's disappearance.

Asked if she knew of any reason which would have caused Robins to suffer a mental lapse, Mrs. Robins replied:

"No. When we know all what happened from the 3rd to the 9th of September, we will know the reason for his disappearance."

"Some of the New York papers have intimated that Col. Robins came down here for a rest," said a reporter.

REFUTES FAKING CHARGE

"All that can be said for people like that is for them to go on believing it if it gives them pleasure," Mrs. Robins replied.

"There is nothing to be done about suspicious people. The facts speak for themselves. If he was faking, he would not speak for Mr. Hoover, as he did in the mountains, nor would he be very likely to subscribe to his home town paper."

Mrs. W. E. Bryson, boarding house keeper in the village of Balsam, about 35 miles from here on the way to Whittier, says he spent the nights of Sept. 5 and 6 at her house.

TALKS OF HOOVER

"He was attired in blue overalls but his face was clean-shaven at the time," she said. "He came to my house and requested a room for about a week. He said his name was Rogers and that he had come by bus from Harlan, Ky.

"He was very talkative and said he knew President Hoover. He changed his mind about staying a week after the arrival of a Mr. Howd, from Miami, Fla. Mr. Howd's presence seemed to upset him and he appeared to avoid him."

Whether Robins remembers anything of his life in the mountains especially his alleged offer to send to college the pretty 19-year-old daughter of the family with whom he boarded, also remained a mystery today.

DRAMATIC REUNION

The dramatic manner in which Robins regained his memory while clasping the hand of his wife in the presence of Dr. Mark A. Griffin, psychiatrist, who has been attending him, amazed the natives here.

But Dr. Griffin, was was the only witness of the recognition scene, said:

"From a medical standpoint, there was nothing unusual in the way in which Col. Robins' condition ended. In functional nervous diseases, nothing is impossible."

Dr. Griffin declined to comment further on the scene he witnessed.

Mrs. Robins did not stay at the sanitarium last night. She left Robins about 8 o'clock and returned to her hotel. Early this morning she received word from the sanitarium that the first thing Robins asked was for her to come out as soon as possible.

PHYSICALLY ILL

"I shall spend the day with him," she said. She added that he was "still physically sick."

She was visibly a new woman when she received a small group of reporters in the hotel this morning. Her face beamed happiness and she was so excited she could not remain in her chair but stood before a small table greeting each reporter as he came in.

"I feel like a schoolmistress."

She first thanked the press for the "very great help" it had rendered her.

"We would have been much longer in doubt were it not for the work of the press."

Priest Says Robins Wrote the G. O. P. Wet Plank

Washington, Nov. 22 (INS)—Convinced that national prohibition had proven a failure, Col. Raymond Robins, dry crusader, helped to write the resubmission plank in the Republican platform, the Rev. Fr. John La Farge, a Jesuit, declares in the current issue of the Catholic Review.

Quoting the dry leader, who was found in the North Carolina mountains after a nation-wide search of over two months, Fr. La Farge reported a conversation he had with Robins last June.

"For years I was an ardent champion of prohibition," the Jesuit reported Robins' statement. "I have spoken for it and crusaded for it. But now I realize, and we all realize, that it has been a failure."

POLAND SEEKS DEBT HOLIDAY

Washington, Nov. 22 (AP)—Poland today joined the nations serving notice they want reconsideration of the debt question.

The Polish ambassador called on Secretary Stimson and said his country would send a note asking for extension of the moratorium and reconsideration of the problem.

Poland is due to pay $3,302,980 on Dec. 15. The interest totals $3,070,980; the rest in principal.

Poland has paid $22,646,297 of the $206,057,000 owed the United States under a debt agreement between the two.

Greece Offers British Bondholders 30 P. C.

Athens, Nov. 22 (AP)—Today's newspapers said the Greek legation at London had been instructed to inform British holders of Greek bonds that the Greek government will pay 30 per cent of the interest due on foreign loans and will give bondholders facilities for inquiring into the financial situation in order to prove the good faith of the government's declaration that it would be impossible to pay more.

Italy Ready to Pay on Dec. 15 if Demanded

Rome, Nov. 22 (AP)—Italy is taking no action for the moment regarding its debt to the United States, awaiting negotiations between America and France and England. It was said, however, that Italy is ready to pay if the $15,000,000 instalment due Dec. 15 is not postponed.

Eight Rescued From Stranded Schooner

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 22 (AP)—Eight of the nine men aboard the fishing schooner Sea Rover, ashore on a bar near the Little Island coast guard station, were rescued early today. The ninth lost his life in an effort to swim ashore with a line. Coast guardsmen put a breeches buoy aboard the schooner and brought the eight remaining members of the crew safely ashore.

Broker Leads Raid After $70,000 Loss

New York, Nov. 22 (AP)—A broker, who said he lost $70,000 in a few evennigs at routelle, told police about the game. Detectives accompanied him to a fashionable East Side apartment last night. They said they found men in evening attire grouped around a table. Three men, Joseph Brown, Joseph Lane and Daniel Doran, were arrested.

Wakefield Youth Held in Camp Break

Charged with the larceny of clothing valued at $126.50 from the camp of Joseph Oliver in Wakefield, Joseph J. Caraiglia, 22, of Valley st., Wakefield, was arrested early today.

Wakefield police received a report that the camp of Oliver had been broken into and arrested Caraiglia. Part of the stolen property, police said, was found at Caraiglia's home.

Won a Penny and Says He'll Collect It

Hartford, Ct., Nov. 22 (AP)—Gov. Cross prepared today to take action against John S. Lawrence of Boston, treasurer of the New England Council.

"I'm taking steps," the governor said, "I want my money."

The governor made the decision after reading the usual stack of mail at his office without finding a check now overdue.

Mr. Lawrence evidently was defaulting payment on the sum of one cent—a wager for two made in Boston Thursday night on the outcome of the Yale-Harvard game.

Gov. Cross said he would insist on payment, even if it means Mr. Lawrence will have to pay a five-cent tax to send a one-cent check.

Seek to Persuade Reich to Rejoin Parleys of Disarmament Conference

Geneva, Nov. 22 (INS)—American and British representatives at the disarmament conference, scheduled to resume discussion here today, have joined forces to induce Germany to reconsider and return to the conference.

This was learned by International News Service from an authoritative American source, who declared all representatives at the conference are anxious to bring Germany back.

Germany has refused to participate further unless she is granted armament equality with other European nations.

U. S. Envoy Warns Japan of War's High Cost

Osaka, Japan, Nov. 22 (AP)—American Ambassador Joseph C. Grew today reminded a gathering of Japanese business leaders of the close connection between peace and prosperity on one hand and warlike activities and economic disaster on the other.

"Nobody can appreciate better than you business men," the ambassador said, "that financial and economic prosperity is corollary to permanent peace."

The ambassador did not specifically mention the economic outlook of Japan involving the prospect that the empire's 1933-34 budget will be swollen by the needs of the army in Manchuria, nor that it will approximate the record figure of 2,238,000,000 yen, with a deficit approaching 1,000,000,000 yen. (This deficit would be about $200,000,000.)

The ambassador said the peace policy of the United States, far from being contrary to the real interest of Japan, "is precisely in accord with those interests," adding that the American people are interested in "a financially stable and prosperous Japan."

SOUTH END VICE UNDER PROBE

South End restaurants, theaters and disorderly houses are the objects of a secret investigation now going on by the Watch and Ward Society it was revealed today.

John Dowling, president of the organization and former chairman of the Boston Finance Commission, admitted that he had conferred today with representatives of two Boston civic organization, which he would not name, regarding alleged immoral conditions in certain districts.

After another meeting next week at the offices of the society on Tremont st., at which a report of conditions is expected, the Watch and Ward Society will swing into public action.

"When we are ready, we will either go to the police with our report, or direct to the courts," said Dowling.

KING GEORGE IN SPEECH AVOIDS DEBT ISSUE

Tells Parliament Unemployment Relief Measures Will Be Presented

London, Nov. 22—With pomp and pageantry, King George, accompanied by Queen Mary and the Prince of Wales, opened the second session of the ninth parliament of his reign today.

AVOIDS DEBT ISSUE

The King avoided any direct reference to the war debt situation. He said the world economic conference would be held in London as early as possible next year.

"It is my earnest hope," he said, "that the conference will be able to reach an agreement on measures required to deal with the causes which have brought about the present economic and financial difficulties of the world."

UNEMPLOYMENT DEPLORED.

Regarding unemployment, the king said:

"Large numbers of my people are still unable to find employment and the persistence of this situation causes me the greatest anxiety. Unemployment as we have known it for some years is undoubtedly the gravest of social problems.

"In particular I am distressed that many young men and women have never in their lives had an opportunity of regular employment. In the view of my ministers, any provision for unemployed persons should not only afford material assistance, but should also be designed to maintain their morale and fitness to resume work when opportunities can be found.

"My government intends to bring forward measures dealing comprehensively with unemployment insurance and with the treatment of those unable to obtain work and the considerations I have mentioned will be borne in mind in framing their proposals."

HOPE FOR DISARMAMENT.

Regarding disarmament, the King said:

"The conference now sitting at Geneva embodies the hope and effort of mankind to reach the greatest measure of general disarmament that can be attained.

"My Government will continue in full co-operation with other members of the conference to work for an international convention which will be a foundation for lasting peace."

The House of Commons opened soon after with a bitter debate between George Lansbury, Labor and floor leader, and Prime Minister MacDonald. Lansbury charged the government had no definite program for relief of unemployment and said its plans were "downright cant."

MacDONALD IN CLASH

"I would like to take the King down two of the streets in my division," he exclaimed.

"What's the use of talking like that?" demanded the prime minister, "what contribution does that make to this question which concerns all of us?"

Lansbury recalled the prime minister's early days with the party which now has disowned him. In those years Mr. MacDonald had dreams of his own, he said.

Five Die in Crash on Mountain Railroad

Brasov, Rumania, Nov. 22 (AP)—An engineer fainted in his control station today, and two coaches of the mountain cable railway at Covasna ran wild, crashing in midair.

Five passengers, two of them women, were flung out and fell to their deaths from a height of 4000 feet.

Army Desertions Off 50 Per Cent

Washington, Nov. 22 (AP)—Army desertions fell off nearly 50 per cent in the 1932 fiscal year.

There were approximately 2800 desertions then, compared with 5076 last year, says the annual report of Maj.-Gen. J. F. Preston, inspector general.

Chicago, Nov. 22 (AP)—"Stop imitating men!"

Jane Addams

She said it in an address before the Alliance of Business and Professional Women of Chicago last night.

"There is a a tendency," she said, "to be too imitative of men. The competitive struggle has been so long a part of women's entrance into business that it has taken the energy they should have put into business. We could eliminate wasted effort if women might bring into business an enormously needed spirit."

CAKE IS CLUE IN BAKER MURDER

Two clues were developed today by Lieut. George H. Fallon of Quincy in connection with the murder of Harry A. Riddell, 68, baker in Atlantic, on the night of October 31.

Lieut. Fallon found three girls who said they were accosted by four young men in a closed automobile on the night of the murder a quarter mile from the scene.

The girls said they arrived at Atlantic at 12:45 on the last train from Boston. In passing a parked car the young men occupants asked them if they wanted to ride. Refused, they asked the girls if they liked pastry. The girls said the young men were eating pies and cake and appeared to be under the influence of liquor. All wore topcoats. One had a cap and the others felt hats.

The other clue was furnished by a boy who said a man gave him $3 to buy a flask of liquor. He gave a description of the stranger, who was seen loitering within 200 yards of the fatal holdup scene.

Stenographer's Notes for Love Quarrel Read in Court

A stenographer who noted down the conversation between her employer and a married woman was a surprise witness today in Dedham Probate Court where Walter E. Morse of Franklin is suing Alice J. Morse for divorce.

The girl was Miss Emily Clearwater of Exeter st., Back Bay, who told of admissions allegedly made by Mrs. Morse in the office of Edward E. Bennett, State st. attorney, for whom Miss Clearwater worked.

The stenographer testified that Mrs. Morse appeared in Bennett's office June 4 demanding the return of an affidavit whose contents the witness did not know.

There was a quarrel in which Miss Clearwater became involved and in the course of it, according to the stenographer, Mrs. Morse admitted she had been out with Bennett more than 1000 times.

"Mrs. Morse called me names and accused me of trying to steal Mr. Bennett's affections," testified the girl. Mr. Bennett tried to stop Mrs. Morse from talking.

"I started to leave, but Mr. Bennett asked me to stay. Mrs. Morse said, 'If you don't put her out I will tell how you got the affidavit.' I stayed and she said Mr. Bennett got the affidavit while they were together in the woods in East Walpole."

The girl said she took the conversation down in shorthand and later refused to give her notes to Bennett, explaining she needed them for her own protection.

Mrs. Morse tried to attack her, the witness said, but was checked by Bennett. As Mrs. Morse left the lawyer's office, she shouted to to Bennett, according to the witness:

CHARGE OF SOME OF THE 6000 IN MEDFORD'S JOLLY "HUNGER ARMY" TODAY

This was turkey day out in Medford today, and did they stuff! Ask some of the boys who go to high and the junior highs. But here the girls hold the focused film. At the top there are Adelaide Hall, Jeanette Peak, Ethel Crosby, Mary Jayne Groff, Barbara Groff and Louise Taylor enjoying the turkey dinner that the Medford high schools—senior and three juniors—served today because they'll close at noon tomorrow. There were 6000 diners or more—and not a lagging appetite in the lot. At the bottom are Evelyn Lambert, Marjory Jackson and Doris Hoppe—happy as only a good dinner can make one. (Staff photo.)

ART DEAN SAID TO BE CHOICE OF LOWELL

Navy Secretary Asserts That 25 Years Ago He Might Have Sought Post, but Not Now

At the age of 37, Prof. Kenneth Ballard Murdock today led the field of possibilities for next president of Harvard University, to succeed A. Lawrence Lowell, whose resignation was recorded in the Boston Evening American exclusively yesterday afternoon.

Prof. Murdock, according to those close in touch with the situation, has a better chance for the post than Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams, Prof. Julian Coolidge and others of an older generation who are being prominently mentioned.

He also leads the way, at present at least, over men nearer his own age, including Charles P. Curtis, Boston attorney, and Francis Parkman, headmaster of St. Mark's School, both of whom are being talked of to succeed President Lowell.

Secretary Adams said at Washington today he was not interested in the Harvard presidency, adding that he had not been offered it and had no knowledge that he would be offered it.

"I might have been interested 25 years ago, but not at my present age," the navy head, who is 66.

LOWELL'S CHOICE

Prof. Murdock has been a confidant of President Lowell for several years, has been swiftly advanced and is said to be the retiring president's choice.

The new president will not, however, be chosen until next year, it was learned today.

President Lowell specified that his retirement should take effect when a successor has been selected, preferably not later than next June.

A number of the Harvard Fellows and Overseers are abroad or otherwise unable to be in Cambridge for some time, and this will preclude consideration now of the various "candidates."

It has been difficult to get even a quorum present at recent meetings of the Fellows, and no choice will be made under such conditions.

YOUNG MAN FAVORED

Prof. Murdock's youth may count against him when the selection is made, but there is ample precedent for choosing a young man. Charles W. Eliot, Harvard's most famous president and America's most noted educator, was only 35 when he became head of the university.

Prof. Murdock received his degree in 1916 and is dean of the faculty of arts and sciences, professor of English and master of Leverett House.

Charles P. Curtis, Jr., who was elected a Fellow of the university at the age of 33, is only slightly older than Prof. Murdock. Francis Parkman, scion of a famous family, is 34.

Edward Allen Whitney, associate professor in history and literature; Prof. Samuel Eliot Morison, noted historian; Henry Lee Shattuck, the present treasurer; Prof. Julian Coolidge, of Lowell House; Prof. Roger B. Merriman, of Eliot House;

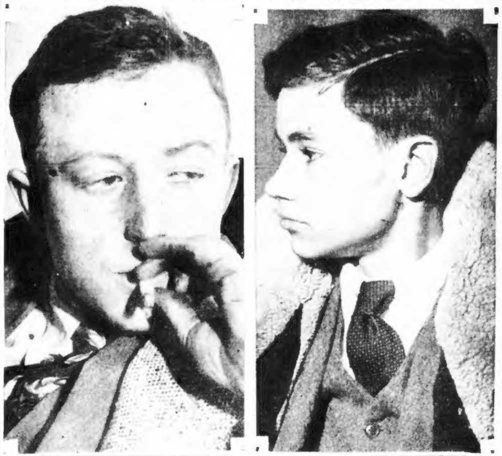
BOTH KILLERS. ONE BOASTS. ONE CRINGES



JAMES "IGGY" VARECHA CHARLES B. ARNOLD

A contrast study of youthful Chicago killers. At left is the debonair, swaggering James "Iggy" Varecha, who boasted of the three persons he killed, the two or three women he attacked and the six men he says he shot in addition to a score of holdups. Police and other officials who have observed hardened criminals were amazed and horrified by the confession of this boastful killer. At the right in an entirely different type, Charles B. Arnold, shy and quiet, who confessed he had killed his grandmother after a quarrel and flung her body into a cistern. (International News Photos.)

HARVARD YOUTH WINS AT LOVE

Football may have soured a bit on the Harvard boys this week-end, but Cupid returned a victory for one Crimson junior and he has taken out, in New York, a license to marry a New York lass, according to a dispatch from New York today.

The junior is Robert William Keleher, 21, of 37 Rockland st., Springfield, a resident of Kirkland House at Harvard, and the girl who said "yes" is Miss Elsa Mary Amelia Berg von Linde, 18, of 157 East 72nd st., New York.

After the Harvard-Yale game at New Haven on Saturday, the couple slipped over to New York and took out the marriage license in the municipal building.

Keleher is a native of Hartford, Ct., the son of William F. and Elizabeth Keleher, while the girl is the daughter of Rudolph and Ethel Frederick von Linde of New York.

100 Students Have "Flu"

Auburn, Ala., Nov. 22 (AP)—All classes at Alabama Polytechnic Institute were ordered suspended today for the remainder of the week due to an epidemic of influenza on the campus. One hundred students are ill.

Famed Specialist Dies

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 22 (AP)—Dr. William Englebach, 55, New York and St. Louis, regarded as the world's leading authority on endocrinology, or glandular medicina, died at St. John's Hospital today of heart disease.

STOLEN PLATES CLUE IN BREAK

Six sets of registration plates solen from the offices of the registrar of motor vehicles at Commonwealth pier may lead to the arrest of burglars who attempted to rifle the safe of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, Union st., Lynn, early today.

The safe-crackers had removed the outer lock and part of the cement lining but had ont reached the iner lock before something caused them to flee. The safe contained $1000 in cash. Entrance was gained by removing bars on a window.

Sergt. William Murphy made a note of the registration number of an automobile parked near the scene before Charles E. Murphy, an employe of the insurance company discovered the break. He checked up with the registrar of motor vehicles and learned the plate was one of six sets of 1932 plates which had recently disappeared recently.

East Boston House Oil-Soaked, Set Afire

Fire of incendiary origin caused damage of $500 today to an unoccupied building in Everett st., East Boston.

Fire Chief Boutilier reported to police the walls were saturated with kerosene. Police blamed boys, who of late have made the house a place to play in. The building is owned by the East Boston Savings Bank.

Irish Lass Speaks Yiddish; Is New School Officer

Last night the school committee appointed her attendance officer (it used to be truant officer) for the Jewish children in the public schools.

"Gut morgen," she addressed her first caller this morning at her home, 41 Oak View ter., Jamaica Plain. The caller, of course, was a reporter who was interested in learning how come a girl named Donovan should speak Yiddish.

SPEAKS FIVE LANGUAGES

It turns out that she also speaks Italian, German, French and English equally well.

When the school committee decided it needed an attendance officer who could speak and understand Yiddish, 226 persons took an examination for the job. Only 38 passed and the name of Irene Donovan led all the rest.

Six or seven months ago Miss Donovan began to study Yiddish in the hope she could qualify for the job. Her instructor was Sidney Kirshen, a clerk in the city health department, where she is employed.

STUDIES FOR LAW

Miss Donovan studied alone at home night in addition to her pursuit of a master's degree at Portia law school. In a few months she was able to speak and understand Yiddish quite well. She is still studying and making every possible use of the language in order to perfect herself for the job. She knows Jewish prayers and other things that may come in handy in aiding both the school authorities and the mothers of school children.

She is a graduate of Simmons College and has always been interested in languages. Her father is Cornelius H. Donovan.

She blushed when the reporter told her in Yiddish she was a pretty girl. Then she said:

"Ich dorf gyin arbeiten." Which means: "I've got to go to work." She went.

PALESTINE FREE OF JOBLESS

Jewish leaders from Palestine, arriving on the Berengaria today on their way to a convention of the American Mistacht organization in Buffalo, said their city is the one place in the world that has not one unemployed man.

The three were Rabbis Mayer Berlin, J. L. Fischman and Aran Bib-Nun. They will attend the convention in Buffalo, Nov. 24, 25 and 26, as delegates from the world center of the Mistacht organization, which they described as the religious part of the Zionist movement.

They are especially interested in the migration of Jews to Jerusalem. Bib-Nun said that the Jewish population in Jerusalem has grown from 50,000 in 1917 to 220,000 today.

'HANDS ACROSS SEA' PLEA

London, Nov. 22 (AP)—Speaking today at a Pilgrims Society luncheon in honor of Robert Frazer, the new American consul-general, Lord Hailsham, Secretary of War, made a plea for close union between Great Britain and the United States for the economic salvation of the world.

"Never has there been a time when it was more important that our two peoples should understand one another," he said. "We stood together in arms to protect civilization from violent destruction. I believe that today we, the two great creditor nations of the world, must stand together to protect the world from economic disaster. I believe that the hope of civilization lies in fuller understanding between great Britain and the United States."

Conference for Rival Coal Unions Urged

Glace Bay, N. S., Nov. 22 (AP)—Suggestion of Premier Gordon S. Harrington for a conference between the rival unions in Nova Scotia coal fields was welcomed here by officials of the United Mine Workers.

Officials of the Amalgamated Mine Workers (the new organization) refused to comment. Vice-President A. Gillis said the premier's proposal was under consideration.

KEATING MADE LIEUTENANT OF POLICE

If the defenders of football want an example of a man who carried the lessons of the gridiron into life and made a success of it, let them look at Lieutenant Keating. Until today he was Sergt. Keating of the Bureau of Criminal Investigation at Boston police headquarters. His promotion was announced by Com. Eugene C. Hultman.

Keating was a member of the famous Somerville High team of 1916, national schoolboy champions. Since he joined the force in 1919, following his Navy service during the war, Keating has always hit the criminal line hard.

He has broken up the plays of "nigger pool" operators, stopped the Reds for a loss, and has intercepted the plays of racketeers, a real triple threat.

Keating joined the force following his marriage. He has four children. For seven years he served at Jamaica Plain. As sergeant he seved at the Hanover st. station; Brighton, and finally at headquarters attached to the bureau of criminal investigation.

Keating is popular with the members of the forse as well as with the residents of Roslindale, where he lives on Selwyn st. He received many messages today congratulating him on his latest success.

Static Leads to Discovery of Fire

Dawson, Minn., Nov. 22 (AP)—Members of the William Meyer family were thankful today that noise interfered with radio reception. They believe it saved their lives. Trouble developed as they sat about in their farm home. Maybe something happened to the roof aerial, said one.

Going outside he found flames, originating in a chimney, sweeping the exterior. The family fled. The house was destroyed.

Judges Marked for Human Sacrifice by Voodoo Cult

Detroit, Nov. 22 (AP)—A fantastic picture of voodoo mysticism lay unfolded today as police sought to learn how widespread is the cult that has claimed one human sacrifice and marked for death two judges and a woman welfare worker to propitiate strange "gods."

Specifically, detectives investigated reports of an organization that sells the "right" to adopt favored Mohammedan names to superstitious Negroes, for Robert Harris, confessed slayer of one "human sacrifice" styled himself "King of Islam" and chose oriental names for his wife and two children, aged 12 and nine.

Harris, 44-year-old Negro, insists, police said, that James J. Smith, first victim of his mystic rites, went willingly to his death Sunday. Future victims, he told police, were to have been Recorder's Judgts Edward J. Jeffries and Arthur E. Gordon and a welfare worker who cut him from the city welfare rolls.

Harris said Smith, also a Negro, first declined to become a human sacrifice to the "Gods of Islam," but that "when I showed him that he would be the savior of the would and go to Heaven right away, he said all right."

In detail, Harris described the stage setting for the sacrifice. Present, he said, were his wife and two children, 12 "disciples"—and Smith.

"As the hour of noon drew near," police quoted Harris as saying, "I said, 'Smith, do you still want to be killed?' because the command ordered me not to kill anybody who didn't want to be killed. Smith nodded his head."

Promptly at noon, Harris said, he stabbed and beat Smith to death on an "altar," improvised from a packing box.

Police said their investigation had confirmed certain details of Harris' confession, notably that Smith died willingly. They said they were seeking the 12 "disciples" to learn more about the beliefs of Harris' cult and how widespread it had become.

HOPE HELD FOR U. S. CAPTIVE

Peiping, China, Nov. 22 (INS)—Fresh hopes for the safety of the Rev. Bert Nelson, who has been a captive of bandits for two years and who recently was reported dead, were raised in dispatches from Hankow today.

U. S. Consul-General Adams at Hankow reported to the legation here that Chinese had seen Mr. Nelson alive on October 5 this year. This date is two months later than the one on which missionary sources based their conclusion that Mr. Nelson was slain.

A Chinese messenger was sent out to investigate the unconfirmed reports that the Minneapolis missionary had been slain. He was unable to reach Chiliping, a Chinese Communist stronghold, but got in touch with a few Chinese who had just been released by bandits.

JURY CONVICTS 2 IN HOLDUP

After being out for 20 hours a Suffolk Superior Court jury today found Bernard Feeney, 24, of Elliott st., Watertown, and Carl Wilson, 24, of West Cedar st., Boston, guilty of assault with intent to rob.

The defendants were not in court when the jury returned. They were defaulted and capiases were issued, but they arrived soon afterward, explaining they had overslept.

They tried to hold up Nathan Goodsnyder of Balsam st., Dorchester, in Charlestown last August. Both men fled and were later captured.

"I don't know why I gave fight," said Goodsnyder, while being questioned by Asst. Dist.-Atty. William J. Sullivan during the trial. "I'll never do it again."

'OUTSIDE MAN' IN JAIL BREAK IS NAMED

Richard Gurall, formerly of Boston, but more recently of Portland, Me., is the mysterious "Dick" being sought in connection with the delivery of 10 prisoners from the jail at Portsmouth, N. H., Saturday midnight.

This announcement was made by police at Portland, Me., today, while an intensive New England-wide search for the nine escaped men still at large failed to produce any clue to their whereabouts.

Gurall, police said, was the man who went to the jail last Friday to visit Fred Peters, the Portland "bad man," in company with Mrs. Marie Kallock of Portland, who is Peters' sweetheart.

WOMAN GRILLED AGAIN

Gurall, alone, returned to the jail Saturday afternoon and again Saturday evening, both times conferring with Peters, police said.

He has served a 60-day sentence in the jail and had been living at a Portland apartment house owned by Mrs. Kallock. He has not been there since Saturday when, according to the woman, he told her he was driving to Boston in his Massachusetts-registered car.

Inspectors Harold K. Maguire and John E. Cady went again to Mrs. Kallock's home to question her today. Police doubt that she knew anything of plans for the jail delivery but they think she may recall more than she has to date of the circumstances associated with Gurall's visits to her sweetheart.

KEY MADE IN JAIL

The means used to free the prisoners from the cell block has been established in the confession of Henry Whitten of Lynn that he made out of a kitchen knife a key that would allow the cell block lever to be thrown, opening all the cells. Saws and files had been smuggled in for use on the bars of the outside windows, Whitten said, but whether he told who smuggled them was not announced.

Had they wished to do so, 16 other prisoners could have gone the way of the 10, and the jail would have been entirely emptied while the deputy sheriff and turnkey slept.

Good Old Theater Goes Slowly Unconscious

By GILBERT SELDES

If the few friends I have left in the theater will pardon me, I wish that the depression would hit the theater and hit it hard. I do not mean the box office, which has suffered enough, and I do not mean the owners of the theater buildings; I am thinking of those who write for the theater and those who produce plays. My idea is that it might be a good thing for the theater to become aware of the fact that 125 million people are thinking now thoughts which they did not think three years ago, and are perhaps a little impatient of hangovers from the the past. I do not mean that all the plays ought to be concerned with the farmers' strike in Iowa and the breadlines in New York, although I do not see why at least a few of the plays do not deal with these subjects.

It is possible to be aware of what has happened in these three years and make your awareness felt even in a light comedy. In fact, light comedy and operatta need only be good to escape reproach, it is the serious play which becomes tiresome when it lags behind the spirit of events.

"As Children Play"

What makes me think of this is a recent production called "Chrysalis." Two of the five members of the governing board of the Theater Guild sponsor this production; in it appear half a dozen players of considerable talent. And the play and the production both give such evidences of childishness that it is hard to believe experienced and full-grown men and women, who know what the theater was like 20 years ago, could have bothered to produce it.

Gilbert Seldes

The title alludes to a young woman who runs away from college because she is tired of reading about the fall of the Roman Empire and is tired of hearing dozens of other young women talking about sex. She wants something real to happen to her and what happens is divided into parts—her own experience with a man, which is no more interesting than the conversations she must have heard at college, and her encounter with a boy out of the penitentiary and his girl, who seem to her to experience a passion which is really great.

Old Stuff

The tough parts are written in the style of Salvation Nell (about 1910) and the Park ave. parts in no style at all. Thrown in for good measure are several scenes in a home for incorrigible girls or in prison, all of them carrying the message that the criminal is always nobler than the jailer. An off-stage murder is alluded to as an unfortunate event, and an abduction and two suicides provide what is called "action." As all the problems of all the characters seem totally unreal, and as the characters themselves are flat as pancakes, the excitement seems a little bit excessive.

Below Par

That is what intelligence in the theater comes to. It comes to other things as well. The editors of The American Spectator list 14 plays, most of them quite successful, and give their "dramatic values" with $3 as a par. One of them, "Irish Players," is rated above par; a clever, intelligently made, tricky play, "Dangerous Corner," hits $2. Two others are around $1, and the rest run down to as low as one cent in Confederate money. No musical shows are in that list. Perhaps it is because the musical shows, especially "Americana," "Of Thee I Sing," "Ballyhoo" and "Flying Colors," all seem at moments to have more to do with what is really happening to us than serious plays about adolescents.

The proof that you do not have to be depression-conscious in order to write a play which gives satisfaction to grown-up people can be seen in "Music in the Air." Fundamentally this is a revision of the old-style operetta, so full of a quaint humor that it may become trying at times; but Mr. Jerome Kerns' music has all his magic and seems as fresh as his melodies seemed twenty years ago. Our response to rhythm and to tune has apparently not been corrupted by three years of hard times; and we are just as willing to be touched by sentiment if we can only believe that the producers of the sentiment actually believe in it themselves. The trouble with a play like "Chrysalis" is that you cannot believe that the producers believed it. Their previous record of intelligence makes that impossible.

ROOSEVELT ON WAY TO PARLEY AT CAPITAL

Hoover today will be the first one of its kind in American political annals. It has been described as "epochal," but to Roosevelt it's "just another conference."

Gov. Roosevelt never gets excited and he never crosses bridges until he reaches them. For that reason, he intimated to close friends, he is going to the White House with the same feeling as if he were returning to the Capitol at Albany to confer on state matters.

In other words, President-elect Roosevelt is going to the White House prepared for any situation that may arise, but not worried about the outcome.

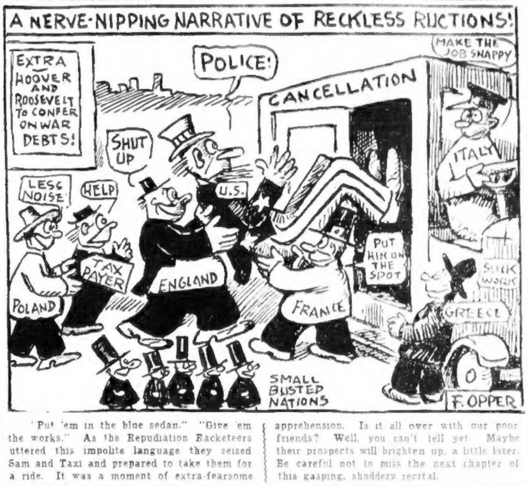
From the time that he accepted the President's invitation to the White House, Gov. Roosevelt has maintained a tight-lipped silence about the role he will assume at the conference.

He has made it plain, however, that he has no intention of shouldering responsibility for any decisions made with respect to international debts prior to March 4 when he will be inaugurated. That responsibility, Mr. Roosevelt declared in his telegraph accepting the invitation, rests with the President and the present Congress.

Every minute of his spare time during the last four days has been spent by Governor Roosevelt in studying latest information concerning war debts. A mass of data was compiled for him by Prof. Moley.

Sammy and His Debt Dodgers

(Copyright, [illegible], by Boston Evening American)



"Put 'em in the blue sedan." "Give 'em the works." As the Repudiation Racketeers uttered this impolite language they seized Sam and Taxi and prepared to take them for a ride. It was a moment of extra-fearsome apprehension. Is it all over with our poor friends? Well, you can't tell yet. Maybe their prospects will brighten up, a little later. Be careful not to miss the next chapter of this gasping, shuddery recital.

First Dentist to Use Gas Dies at 85

Hollis, N. H., Nov. 22 (AP)—Dr. Frank Bell, proprietor of the old Tremont House in Nashua during the early 1900s, and the first dentist in this part of this country to use "laughing" gas in the extraction of teeth, died last night. Bell, born in Hollis in 1847.

Connecticut Flood Peril Ends

Hartford, Conn., Nov. 22 (AP)—Flood danger was believed ended this morning when the Connecticut river, after remaining stationary at 18 feet all night, began receding. At 10 a. m. the gauge measured 17.5 feet and the rate of fall was one-twentieth of a foot per hour.

Medford Man Is Suicide by Poison

Suicide by poison was the finding of Medical Examiner J. Paul Reardon today after an autopsy on the body of Charles Henry Bicknell, 45 of Thatcher st., Medford. Bicknell's body was found by four youths in Quarry rd., Middlesex Fells, Medford, last night.

MURDOCK MAY HEAD HARVARD

Robert Homans, named yesterday to the college corporation, and others are also being mentioned.

Curtis, at present in the practice of law, was for two years a special assistant United States attorney. He was senior class poet in 1914 and later served with the Navy Department in the World War. Like his father, he has had considerable experience in the game hunting regions of Africa.

Secretary Adams was treasurer of the Harvard corporation from 1898 until President Hoover appointed him a member of the cabinet. He is a graduate of the 88 class and always has been active in the affairs of his alma mater.

Prof. Morison is well known for his book, "The Maritime History of Massachusetts." He graduated with the class of 1908 and took up the study of history as his life work.

Prof. Coolidge, decorated in France with the cross of the Legion of Honor, is probably the most widely known professor in Cambridge. Like President Lowell, his best work was in the mathematical field.

Prof. Merriman is another war veteran, having served in France for a year. For the past three years he has been Gurney professor of history at Harvard, an appointment that carries much prestige.

The naming of a new president is an interesting process in itself. It originates in the college corporation, where each of the seven members is entitled to nominate his choice.

Loses Car in Crash

Elvon Sanford, 40, of 42 Buffum st., Salem, lost a new car last night when it crashed into a telegraph pole in Lynnfield and will face court on a charge of drunken driving today.

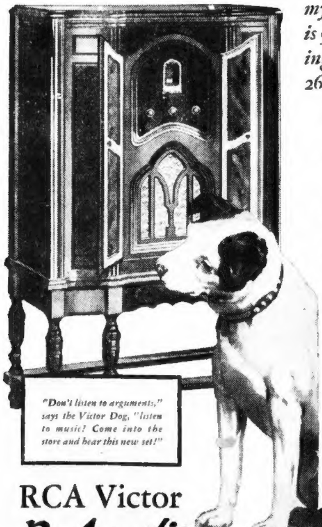
"HEAR THIS 9 STAR WONDER!



my new Bi-Acoustic Radio is 9 times improved—giving you 2 more octaves—266 extra musical tones!"

- ★ "B" Amplification ... increases the power of the set ... eliminates strain which causes "blare" and distortion, at all volumes.
- ★ Automatic Tone Compensators ... entirely new in radio. Builds up weak tones at low volume ... takes out "tinniness" and gives delightfully "rounded" performance.
- ★ Dual Automatic Volume Control ... brings in all stations, far and near, at the same loudness ... eliminates noise between stations.
- ★ Extended Musical Range ... you hear instruments never audible before ... 266 extra musical tones are added ... bringing new richness to programs.
- ★ Tone Equalizers ... offset cabinet "boom" and "shrill" ... add new beauty and sweetness to every instrument you hear.
- ★ Improved Loud Speaker ... meets all the new high and low tones without the slightest distortion.
- ★ 12 New Type Radiotrons ... all smaller, better shielded, longer lasting and more compact ... affording finer tone in every way.
- ★ Noise Suppressor ... provides for the elimination of "background" noise ... brings into your home clear, bell-like Bi-Acoustic tone.
- ★ Acoustically Perfect Cabinets ... exquisite woods throughout. No cabinets, regardless of price, surpass these in construction and appearance.

"Don't listen to arguments," says the Victor Dog, "listen to music! Come into the store and hear this new set!"

'Barnyard Miracle Doctor' Cleans Up $3 Every Minute

Doctor Locke Makes Little Inland Canadian Town Take On Airs As He Twists Toes

(EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the second of a series of articles on Dr. Mahlon W. Locke, whom the American Medical Association derisively designated last week as "The Miracle Man of 1932.")

By LEIGH MATTESON

International News Service Science Writer.

Williamsburg, Ont., Nov. 22 (INS)—In the last two years of the world-wide business slump, this railroadless hamlet's prosperity has increased at least 50,000 per cent, due to the now fabulous exploits of Dr. Mahlon W. Locke.

Dozens of little bungalows, hot lunch stands and a $100,000 hotel have popped up here in the last three months.

Dr. Locke today sat at the center of this web, cashing in at the rate of $3 a minute from his suddenly acquired practice of arthritis and paralysis patients from all over the United States and Canada.

The word "sat" is used literally. He treats patients in his barnyard, seated on a swivel chair. They form a ring around him, extending shoeless feet to receive his famous "twist cure" for almost any crippling disease.

CRIPPLES FLOCK THERE

As he works his way around the circle at the rate of three patients per minute, the gaps in the circle are filled in by new patients pressing in from all sides—in wheel chairs, on crutches, leaning on canes.

He collects $1 in cash from each patient. These bills, largely American, he stuffs into his vest and his pockets. The pockets bulge with money within an hour.

Finally, with bills protruding from every pocket, he ceases twitching at the arches of feet, rises and fends his way through the huge crowd of patients to the kitchen of his home abutting the barnyard on the east.

12-HOUR DAY FOR HIM

There he dumps the bills in a stack on the kitchen table, where his wife sorts and counts them. Then back to the barn he goes to start stuffing his pockets again. This goes on from 10 a. m. until 10 p. m. every day, with a generous amount of time out for lunch.

For two years it has been going on. During the months of July, August and September this year he treated more than 1400 persons daily at $1 each for two treatments.

Due to the bad weather conditions he treats now only about 660 patients daily, at an average monthly income of $19,800, as compared with $42,000 a month in good weather.

Nor are all his patients from the middle and lower class populations of the United States and Canada. In the latter part of October one of the women who took her turn like all the rest in the barnyard clinic was Mrs. T. J. Preston, Jr., widow of President Grover Cleveland. Her husband is a former professor of archeology at Princeton University.

Another patient last summer was Lady Eaton, widow of Sir Timothy Eaton, founder of the great Canadian chain of department stores.

Present in the clinic lineup were the wives of at least three physicians from the United States.

This was brought to the attention of Dr. Iago Galdston, head of the publicity committee of the New York Academy of Medicine.

"Well," he said, "that just goes to show that in the face of a terrible incurable disease even physicians are humanly gullible."

Bay State Pair Held in Postoffice Theft

Providence, R. I., Nov. 22 (INS)—Following a fist fight in the prisoner's cage in the marshal's office, two men were arraigned today before U. S. Commissioner Fred Otis and pleaded not guilty to the armed robbery of the Hillsgrove post office Oct. [illegible]

The men were Charles Thornton, 32, a former Massachusetts state trooper, of Arlington, Mass., and Peter [illegible], of Providence, formerly of Springfield, Mass. They were held in $20,000 bail each for the Federal grand jury.

Back Bay Man Is Injured by Truck

At Haymarket Relief Hospital he was found to be suffering from a fractured skull, broken leg and internal injuries. The truck, police say, was operated by Thomas Nugent, of 110 Brook ave., Dorchester.

PLEASANT RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Shoulders drawn under weight of years. Young, yet beauty has fled. Cheeks are sallow and drawn. Unsightly pimples. Keep your system clean and you keep the beauty of youth. Its energy. Its irresistible charm. Then life is not a failure.

Clogged bowels and inactive liver cause poisons to seep through the system. Health vanished and with it beauty and energy. Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets will help save you from this dark hour. For 20 years they have been prescribed in place of calomel to men and women seeking health and freedom from constipation. They act easily and smoothly. No dangerous griping. Take nightly before retiring. Results will amaze you.

Thousands of men and women would never be without Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets, a vegetable compound. Know them by their olive color. 15c, and 60c. All druggists.

SHE FOUND THE WAY

REGULARLY—once a month—many a girl decides to do something about it. Surely there must be something to help such pain, such weakness . . . some way to get relief.

Then the period passes. She forgets. But next month she suffers again.

Now—today—is the time to do something. Buy a bottle of this Vegetable Compound. Keep it ready. It has been a godsend to thousands. 98 out of 100 women who try it report benefit. Through its tonic action it built them up and relieved the pain. They depend on it. You can depend on it too

CHILDREN FARE BETTER HERE

Massachusetts stands as one of the few states where there has been no large increase in the number of neglected and dependent children cared for in other than their own homes, it was declared at the annual meeting of the Children's Aid Association at 41 Mt. Vernon st.

According to the report of Alfred E. Whitman, executive secretary of the organization, the increase throughout the United States has been about 40 per cent.

To wise administration of relief by overseers of public welfare in Massachusetts cities and towns he attributed the comparatively good situation here.

Robert B. Stone was elected president at the meeting, Mrs. James Jackson, secretary; I. Tucker Burr, Jr., treasurer, and Mrs. Richard E. Danielson and Mrs. Richard Field, both of Boston, were new members added to the directorate.

COTTON MATHER PLOT DISPUTED

Harrisburg, Nov. 22 (INS)—New England historians defending the name and fame of Cotton Mather received no quarter today from Pennsylvania guardians of the records.

Whether or not the famed New England Puritan schemed to kidnap William Penn, as appears from a letter purported to have been written by Mather 250 years ago, remained an issue between the two sections.

Ross H. Swope, local historian, addressing the Dauphin County Historical Society last night, presented findings denying the authenticity of the "Mather" letter, which he had repeated as part of an historical reading a month ago.

Pretender to Czar's Throne Is Stricken

Gold Great at Times But Not on Trail

Winnipeg, Man., Nov. 22 (AP)—Gold in the mint at Ottawa is very valuable, but out on the trail from a lonely mine with a blizzard raging and food supply low, it isn't worth a cent a pound, according to Frank Hunt and Douglas Hirten on their arrival at Manigotagan, Man., with a gold shipment worth many thousands of dollars from San Antonio mine.

It took them three days to make the 30-mile trip with a team of horses and sleighs. Two nights they had to camp in the open; and, expecting to make the trip in a few hours, they were without food the last two days.

They had to dig their way through huge snow banks. At night they seated themselves on the gold bullion and wished they could turn it into soup.

Fort Smith, Ark., Nov. 22 (AP)—In the first horse theft case heard here in years, T. M. Foster was sentenced to a year in prison upon a guilty plea.

V. F. W. TO PRESS FOR CASH BONUS

Washington, Nov. 22 (AP)—L. S. Ray, vice-chairman of the national legislative committee of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, said today that organization maintains the full face value of adjusted service certificates "is past due, and Congress will be asked to make immediate cash payment."

Referring to consideration by the veterans of the administration plan of prepayment, Ray said:

"The Veterans of Foreign Wars is in full accord with the thought that settlement should be made with as much saving to the United States as possible, provided, however, that the veteran shall suffer no loss."

Amy Johnson to Fly Home in Record Try

Cape Town, Union of South Africa, Nov. 22 (AP)—Amy Johnson, who holds the speed record for a flight from England to Cape Town, said today that she will fly home next month in an attempt to set a record for the round trip.

DONOVAN NAMED IN BANK SUIT

Judge William Cushing Wait of the Massachusetts Supreme Court has appointed Judge Joseph E. Donovan, of Boston, as master to hear the suit brought by Bank Commissioner Arthur Guy against the stockholders of the closed Medford Trust Co. Former Dist. Atty. Robert T. Bushnell will represent the bank commissioner in the action.

The suit is a separate one from the suit which has already been heard before a master to determine the liability of the directors of the closed bank.

Hearings in the new action will commence December 15 or 16, it was stated today. The suit is against those stockholders who have failed to pay the 100 per cent assessment on the par value of stock of the Medford Trust Co. which assessment was levied last May. The assessment represents a total of $600,000 of which less than $100,000 has been paid.

"Nature in the Raw is seldom MILD"

THE WAR WHOOP

"Nature in the Raw"—as portrayed by N. C. Wyeth . . . inspired by the blood-curdling yells of war-mad savages, whose barbaric cruelty held America's early settlers in a constant state of terror. "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes.

No raw tobaccos in Luckies —that's why they're so mild

LUCKY STRIKE
CIGARETTES

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

POLICE GUARDS FOIL PLOT TO BREAK COURT

Extreme precautions were taken today at the Suffolk County courthouse to prevent a break for liberty by five alleged holdup men arrested by Inspector William Bonner and Special Officers Arthur Tiernan and Elmer J. Ham[illegible] in the South End.

The men had to be transferred from one courtroom to another, and the police in charge of them had received reports that a dash for freedom would be made.

The officers, with the aid of Chief Court Officer Patrick Holleran, rounded up all the police in the building and formed a solid lane, with a dozen policemen each side for the prisoners to pass through.

Before going to court the men were identified, according to police, as those who held up a crap game in Andover Saturday night, taking $450, three watches and three revolvers.

They are Richard Hay, 32, of Orvis rd., Arlington; Joseph Mudarria, Jr., 29, of East Canton st., South End; Samuel Narria, 35, of Rutland sq., South End; Samuel Kamel, 32, of Rutland sq., and Frederick Fisher, 2[illegible], of Shawmut ave.

They were held in bail of $20,000 each by Judge Murr[illegible] in municipal court where they pleaded not guilty to charges of having burglars' tools and guns seven of which were seized when they were arrested. The cases were continued to Dec. 2 and police will try to connect some of them with a series of local holdups.

It was revealed today that during the Andover holdup one of the dice players saved $[illegible]00 by dropping it into a cuspidor. Another argued for return of a $1400 diamond ring and got it back by convincing the gang it was an inexpensive keepsake of his mother.

Auctioneer to Sell Peggy Joyce Gems

New York, Nov. 22 (INS)—A $12,000 diamond and emerald pendant, gift of one of her ex-husbands to Peggy Hopkins Joyce, will be knocked down to the highest bidder tomorrow by government auctioneers in Brooklyn. The jewel was confiscated when Peggy returned from abroad, but failed to declare it. A black and white Spanish shawl, several dresses and other articles that were seized similarly from Peggy also will be sold.

FIGHT STARTED ON BENZ WILL

Salem, Nov. 22—Opening a battle over the $10,000,000 will of her father, which left her only a trust fund of $60,000, Mrs. Wilhelmina K. Hoffman of Swampscott filed today in probate court a petition asking that she be appointed executrix of the estate of the late Jacob C. Benz.

Benz, head of the Benz Leather Co. of Lynn, died in Lynn on November 12, and when his will was filed it bequeathed practically all of the estate to the widow and another daughter, Miss Doris Benz.

The will also named the widow and single daughter as executrices without bond.

Southwick, Vermont, Editor Dies, 74

Burlington, Vt., Nov. 22 (AP)—John Leonard Southwick, 74, editor of the Burlington Free Press, died suddenly early today. He had been connected with the newspaper since 1884. He was born in Bombay, N. Y., and was graduated from Cornell in 1883. He leaves a widow and a daughter, Mrs. Oliver N. Eastman of Burlington.

73 OF CATHOLIC HIERARCHY AT CONFERENCE

Chicago, Nov. 22 (AP)—Leaders of the Roman Catholic church assembled today and began allocation of a $1,300,000 fund for church extension work in the United States and its possessions.

Spokesmen for the conference announced the fund for extension work had decreased only about 10 per cent from last year and that about $15,000,000 in construction of churches, schools, seminaries and other projects had been started in the last four months.

Present at the meeting were 73 cardinals, bishops and archbishops, the largest annual gathering of high ranking Catholic clergy except for the Eucharistic Congress.

The conference took place at the Catholic Church Extension Society, an organization founded 27 years ago by the present Bishop Francis Kelly of Oklahoma with $1. It now has an endowment fund of $5,000,000 and an annual turnover of $3,000,000.

Registered at the opening of the conference today were George Cardinal Mundelein of Chicago, Archbishops Albert T. Daeger of New Mexico, Arthur J. Drossaerts of San Antonio, Samuel A. Stretch of Wisconsin, John W. Shaw of Louisiana, Michael J. Curley of Baltimore, Edward J. Hannah of California, John J. Mitty of California, and 57 bishops.

Dutch Swimmer Claims World Mark

Amsterdam, Nov. 22 (AP)—The Dutch swimmer, Jenny Kastein, today swam 500 meters breast stroke in 8 minutes 23.2 seconds to claim a world record for the distance.

The official athletic almanac does not list a record for 500 meters breast stroke.

"WHEN BABE RUTH gives the ball a ride and lifts it high and dry over the bleacher wall it gives you a thrill all right," began Frank Stevens, sitting convalescing in the Corey Hospital, here, yesterday, "but you should be in a duck blind or out on a deer stand with the Bambino to see him at his best. I've shot with some of the best shooters in sport, but of all the baseball stars I've hunted with I've never seen a better all-around marksman with both rifle and shotgun than Babe Ruth. I mean a woods marksman. I know a flock of fellows who might beat Babe at the traps or at target practice with the rifle, just as there are fellows who might beat Babe at fungo hitting on the diamond. But when the real 'game' is on in the woods, Babe doesn't play second fiddle to any of 'em. Stir up a covey of quail, or let a flock of mallards come veering down the wind, or a big buck suddenly break cover, and the old Babe is Dead Eye Dick himself."

FRANK STEVENS and Babe Ruth have hunted together now for more than a decade. With Ed Barrow of the Yanks and others, Stevens and Ruth have a hunting lodge near Havelock, N. C., with shooting rights over a heavily timbered and laked preserve of 44,000 acres. This preserve abounds with deer, bear, quail, pheasant, turkey, ducks and geese and other game. For more than 10 years Babe and Frank have made annual pilgrimages there and also have hunted moose and deer together in New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. They made one trip to Wyoming for sage hen and also have hunted duck on Long Island and Chesapeake Bay and gunned for patridge and quail here in New England and Up State in New York.

"BABE HAS SOMETHING some hunters never possess," went on Stevens enthusiastically. "That is woods instinct. Some fellows will go in the woods all their lives and never acquire it. I reckon it has to be born in a man. I've seen Babe even outguess a guide. I remember one occasion down on a deer stand in Ca'lina. We hunt 'em to dogs down there, you know. The dogs were running deer this morning and Babe and the guide were on one run away and Irving Cobb, the author, and I were headed for another stand, but had stopped with Babe and the guide for a minute. The hounds were giving tongue on a hot scent among the hardwoods high up on the ridge in back of us. The guide listened a minute, sniffed the air, took a glance at the lay of the land and whispered:

"'BETTER GET back in them thah spruces. The dogs are headed this way.'

"'That deer is headin' for water,' interrupted Babe. 'Hey, Frank, let Buck and Irv stay here on this stand. You come with me.'

"Babe had beached a canoe down on the water's edge. We hurried into it and paddled cautiously up the creek into the lake, stopping now and then and listening to the music of the hounds.

"'He'll break cover down near that pine-covered point that juts out beyond those birches,' decided Babe. 'Paddle up and poke the bow of the canoe just around the point so that I can cover that stretch of shore.'

"We were gliding slowly up the point head when Babe suddenly went 'S-h-h-h-h-h!' Pulling in his paddle and dropping it noiselessly in the bottom of his canoe, Babe reached for his rifle, took aim and let go. Bang! Bang! Three times Babe pulled trigger. Bang! from my position in the stern I couldn't see a thing, but Babe's enthusiastic, 'I got him!' told me he had scored.

"Rounding the point, there was a big buck giving his dying kicks right at the lake's fringe. All three of Babe's 45's had punctured him.

"BABE HAS sort of lost his love for deer hunting," went on Frank. "He shot a doe by mistake a year ago. It was a couple of hundred yards away and both Babe and the guide thought it was a buck. Anyway, Babe came upon the doe when it was dying and Babe says he'll never forget the look in her eyes. He thinks deer shooting too tame and rather would hunt turkey than anything else. We're going down into Ca'lina together, if I'm well enough in a week, for some turkey shooting. A couple of years ago I sent down about a hundred tame turkeys and turned them loose among the wild ones at Camp Bryan. They've mutiplied, and there are turkeys galore down there now.

"WHICH REMINDS me of the turkey hunt I once had with the late Tom Keller of the Peters Cartridge Co.," smiled Frank, "down in the same country Babe and I will go after Mister Turkey next week. We had been driving all night and part of the morning and reached camp dead tired. But Tom decided to go calling turkey right away. So we got into our togs, took out guns and went to a likely looking stand of pines less than a mile from camp. Tom called and called. It was nice and warm and balmy sitting there and I snoozed off to sleep. Tom must have drowsed off, also. Anyway I woke up and Tom was snoring peacefully. I heard another grunting and noise back in the bush and turned to see what it was. Not 25 feet away was a black bear grubbing at a fallen log!

"WE HAD NOT COME for b'ar and only had the shotguns. But I reached for mine and decided to take a chance. I waited till the bear's foreshoulder showed around an old stump and let him have it with both barrels. As Tom awoke with a yell I grabbed his gun and pumped two more shots into Mister B'ar as he was taking cover. To make a long story short, we trailed that bear, which was bleeding profusely, until dark when we lost him in a swamp. The next day we took the dogs down to the swamp and put them on the cold trail, which they quickly lost in the water. A couple of days later, however, the buzzards, circling over that section of the swamp, told us as plain as words what had happened."

"Was it a big bear, Frank," we queried.

"Well, you know the biggest fishes always get away," grinned Frank, "so this must have been a whale of a bear."

THREE TROJANS ON 'ALL' TEAM

San Francisco, Nov. 22 (INS)—Eleven "experts" who write football for International News Service along the far-flung Pacific slope have spoken and the mantle of fame now falls upon the broad shoulders of a number of young men.

These gridiron authorities were asked to open the picking season by choosing two squads on the coast who caught their eagle eyes during the carnage of the past season. Two points being awarded a player picked for the first team and one for landing on the second eleven. The results for the first team follow, the maximum of points being 22.

So What?

By JOE MOONEY

Another billet-doux from Disgusted Coach. He fills both sides of the postcard with optimism and encloses next year's schedule under the stamp.

"We enjoyed one of the finest seasons that ever lived up to my worst expectations.

"It was so bad the college is going under an assumed name for the rest of the year.

"You couldn't keep our backs on their feet if you put all four of them in the same telephone booth. They'd find a way to lie down if you hung them on hooks.

"The students at the college were behind the team to a man. Some of them were so far behind they were still in high school.

BRUIN-RAIDER BATTLE GRID "NATURAL"

Providence, Nov. 22 (AP)—The championship "natural" of the Eastern football season will send Colgate's "Red Raiders" against the giant-killing Brown Bears here Thursday morning.

Alone of the East's 130 college teams, these two have come down to the final game unbeaten and untied and the temptation will be strong to crown the winner champion whatever the claims of Pittsburgh, Army and other high-powered outfits.

Were the records to be taken at face value, there would be little hesitancy in picking Colgate as the probable winner. Andy Kerr's great eleven, with a sure-handed backfield working at lightning speed behind a fast, sturdy line, is the only major team in the country with an uncrossed goal line.

GREAT RECORD

Kerr's tricky offensive, thoroughly mastered by Bobby Samuel, Charlie Soleau, Whitey Ask, Bob Rowe and Jack Fritts, has scored 243 points against St. Lawrence, Case, Niagara, Lafayette, New York University, Penn State, Mississippi College and Syracuse.

Against this record, the 81 points Brown has scored while holding the enemy to 21, do not stack up impressively. But the Bears, with just about as good a line as Colgate's and a fine backfield in which quarterback Bob Chase is the outstanding star, have had the knack this season of coming through in the pinches.

They were all but beaten by Holy Cross but marched almost the length of the field in the last few minutes of play to win 10-7. They trailed Columbia's previously unbeaten eleven for three quarters and then staged another long march in the final period to win 7-6.

OVERSHADOWS REST

Harvard, Yale, Tufts, Springfield and Rhode Island were the Bears' other victims.

This battle of titans overshadows the rest of the Thanksgiving Day program even though such bitter rivalries as those between Cornell and Penn, New York University and Carnegie Tech, and West Virginia and Washington and Jefferson are to be renewed on that day.

Pick Brown Backs For Big Clash

Providence, R. I., Nov. 22 (AP)—Coach Tuss McLaughry sent the Brown varsity footall team through another dummy scrimmage against Colgate plays here as the Bruin mentor speeded up the preparations for the tilt with the Maroon eleven on Thanksgiving Day.

McLaughry will start the regular Brown backfield combination against the Red Raiders, he announced after the drill. This will mean that Bob Chase will be a quarterback with Eddie Gilmartin and Dave Allen at the halfback positions, and Captain Bill Gilbane at fullback.

Frank Gammino, fullback, and Joe Buonanno the other two members of the Bruin "six-cylinder" backfield will be kept in reserve ready to be injected into the fray at the first Bruin scoring opportunity. This is the same role that Gammino and Buonanno have been playing with great success all season for the undefeated Bears.

Indications point to a complete sell-out for the game. Today tickets were only being sold in the temporary stands erected in back of the both end zones.

O. K. PLAYER CONTROL AT B. U.

"Athletics are part of a university's educational policy and Boston University has decided that 'player control' is desirable and will be used fully and completely in all sports from now on."

This statement by Dr. Frederick Rand Rogers, Dean of Physical Health Education, Health and Athletics at Boston University definitely ends all doubt about the matter.

After a stormy session last fall, little or nothing was said about "player control" until the mystery was cleared today.

Myles Lane was hired to coach football under "player control" but he was given the entire season to organize football on a "player control" basis.

CAPTAIN TO RUN TEAM

It has been learned that Lane at no time during the past grid season gave any player entering the game any instructions. He violated "player control" with permission in that he occasionally substituted men and he spoke to the players between the halves.

Next fall, starting with the first game, the coaches will not be near the players and the captain will run the team and make all substitutions. The coaches' only authority will be to remove a man from the game because of injury or disciplinary reasons; but if the mentors do take a man out, he cannot re-enter the game.

Dr. Rogers claims that most people do not understand his system and have objected without knowing just what it is.

The B. U. Dean feels that under "player control" the big business coach, who has taken the play out of football, will be removed, and that the game will be given back to the boys.

TEACHES MAN TO THINK

Dr. Rogers contends that one of the purposes of education is to teach a man to think, and here is a chance to let boys run sports themselves and thresh out their own problems.

Now that the experimental stage of football is over, basketball and hockey will be operated entirely under "player control," as will baseball, track, and swimming, later on. Next fall, football will start with the system.

"Player control" is now used at several high schools in New York state and Ithaca College. Dr. Rogers has the support of many leading educators, and he feels that in time most of the leading institutions in the country will accept it.

HEARS PRO CHALLENGE

And now the glitter of gold is tempting Crackerjack Jack Crickard, great Harvard back, to enter the pro grid ranks next fall. Crickard may join the Braves, If one of the other teams doesn't sign Jack first. Plenty of the pro teams would like to have the Crimson Mercury.

LITTLE TAKES A LITTLE CUT

New York, Nov. 22 (AP)—Dr. Edward S. Elliott, director of athletics at Columbia University, today officially announced that Lou Little, head football coach of the Lions since 1929, had signed a new contract "for a further period of years."

It has been generally known for some time that Little had signed a new contract for three years at probably $15,000 a year.

Little's new salary, conforming to the times, is a reduction of $3500 a year from the salary he is reported to have received under his previous three-year contract.

The Lions have enjoyed their two most successful seasons in years under Little, losing only to Brown, 7 to 6, in the season just closed and winning from Princeton, Cornell, Navy and Virginia among others and playing a scoreless tie in the mud with Syracuse.

Warner Elected Amherst Captain

Amherst, Nov. 21 (AP)—Harold L. Warner, Jr., of Brooklyn, N. Y., was chosen to captain the Amherst College football team next season. Warner has been an outstanding ball carrier for the past two campaigns, playing quarterback against Williams in his last game a week ago. Varsity letters were awarded to 23 players, as well as to the manager and assistant manager.

Manhattan, Rutgers in Charity Game

New York, Nov. 22 (INS)—The first of post-season charity football games was announced today. Manhattan College, New York, will play Rutgers at Ebbets Field on Dec. 3.

The game will be the first of two post-season tilts for Manhattan, coached by Chick Meehan, formerly of New York University, as the Jaspers will play Miami University in Miami, Florida, on Jan. 2.

K. O. for Godoy

Miami, Fla., Nov. 22 (US)—Arturo Godoy, Chilean heavyweight, knocked out Johnny Mack, Cincinnati, in the fifth of a scheduled ten round bout at the Legion Arena here. Godoy was too fast for the heavier American and had no trouble putting on the finishing touches.

Jacobus P. G. A. Head

Peoria, Ill., Nov. 22 (AP)—George Jacobus, 33 year old pro from New York city, today was elected president of the Professional Golfers' Association, succeeding Charlie Hall, Birmingham, Ala. Bobby Jones was named an honorary vice president.

NAME LASSITER YALE CAPTAIN

New Haven, Ct., Nov. 22 (AP)—A son of the South—rangy Bob Lassiter has been chosen to lead the Yale football team in its 1933 campaign.

At the same time that the Eli lettermen were electing the 20-year-old Charlotte, N. C., youth as the new captain, the Yale Athletic Association announced an eight-game schedule for next fall.

His election last night came to hard plunging Lassiter as the crowning touch to a season of sterling performances at left halfback. Especially against the Elis' "big three" foes was he effective.

Against Princeton Lassiter scored Yale's only touchdown. This performance was eclipsed last Saturday when the 170-pound back demoralized the Harvard warriors with a passing and running attack that gave Yale 19-to-0 victory.

The campaign mapped out for Lassiter's eleven next fall calls for one more game than played this season in spite of the fact that a committee named to survey Yale's athletic program proposed last spring the ultimate adoption of a five-game schedule.

Washington and Lee, Maine and Georgia have been added to the schedule, while Bates and Chicago have been dropped. Brown, Army, Dartmouth, Harvard and Princeton retain their usual place. The schedule:

Oct. 7, Maine; 14, Washington and Lee; 21, Brown; 28, Army; Nov. 4, Dartmouth; 11, Georgia; 18, open; 25, Harvard at Cambridge; Dec. 2, Princeton.

JOCKEY SEEKS RIDING CROWN

New York, Nov. 22 (INS)—This very day may see another riding champion ascend the throne.

Jockey Johnny Gilbert, tearing at the record tooth and nail, is riding hard and earnest in an effort to boot home three more winners right soon—just three more winners, to place him on the top of the riding list.

With 180 winners to his credit so far this year, he requires two more to tie the mark of the present leader, Hank Mills, and three to head him.

Gilbert already heads the list of riders at the current Bowie meeting with nine winners, five seconds and four thirds out of 36 mounts. He is closely followed by Jockey Albert Robertson, with Dominick Bellizzi, the sensation of the New York racing season, occupying third place.

Fishman, Hoffman in Charity Contest

Baltimore, Nov. 22 (AP)—Sammy Fishman, quarterback, and Captain William Hoffman, right guard, of the Big Green team from Dartmouth, have been named as two of the eleven who are to represent the North in the North-South charity gridiron classic which is to be played here on Dec. 10.

The announcement came to Louis Schecter, director of the commission in charge of the game, in a telephone message from Jock Sutherland, the Pitt Panther's coach, who is to choose and coach the Northern charges.

Both of the Dartmouth stars have accepted his invitation to play, Sutherland said.

Bears Don't Spill Beans —Burn Em!

Berkeley, Cal., Nov. 22 (INS)—Carnegie Foundation findings paled today in the light of disclosure that four University of California football huskies for weeks have been donning aprons to fluff cream, brew chocolate and concoct meringues and eclairs in domestic science classes here.

DIXON SIGNS TO BOX MALONEY

Jim Maloney of South Boston and Long John Dixon of Boston College were signed today by Matchmaker Billy Ames of the Garden to battle on Dec. 9 in a 10-round bout.

Dixon captained the football eleven at Boston College, received mention as an all-American end and was recognized as one of the greatest punters in the game.

Veterans in the boxing business will tell you that Dixon is heading for the high places among the heavyweights. Harry Kelley, smartest of all trainers, and Johnny Indrisano, one of the most clever boxers in the business, have taught him the art of ducking, and Dixon carries a crushing punch in either hand.

BRAVES SEEK SERVICES OF CRIMSON STAR

By RILEY GRANNON

Jack Crickard, Harvard backfield ace, has cast his lot with the pros. The big Crimson flash, who completed his college grid career against Yale with one of the finest all-around performances of the year, has decided to join the ranks of the grid money chasers.

What's more, it looks as though "Crick" will find his place in the backfield of Boston's own Braves. The rules of the National League prohibit any dickering between league teams and college stars until the player's class has graduated. But it is a well known fact that several times in the past season, big league scouts representing three National League clubs were seated high up in the Stadium watching the New Yorker's every move in the Crimson backfield.

Not only that, but another scout accompanied the Crimson squad to New Haven where on the muddiest field seen this year and with conditions entirely hostile to his style of play Crickard held his own with the Yale stars in matter of rushing and was the defensive power which prevented more than a few Yale ballcarriers from crossing Harvard's goal line.

TO PLAY ON COAST

That three-touchdown defeat made the Crimson look pretty bad. But without Crickard in the role of defensive wingback, overhauling runners in the open by blinding bursts of speed there's no telling what the score might have been.

Crickard, according to Andy Kerr, Colgate coach, and coach of the All Eastern squad which annually plays a group of All Western stars at big charity game at Kezar Stadium, will be the first backfield selection on his 1932 team which will go into training in about a month.

Kerr visiting the Harvard dressing room after the Yale game congratulated Crickard on the grand battle he put up against overwhelming odds in the Bowl.

FINAL BID

The East-West Shriners game will most likely be Crickard's final amateur bid for grid fame and another season will find him a money player. There's no doubt that the 180-pound star, who runs kicks and passes with the best of them and can hold his own as a defensive back with anyone in the game, will be equally as outstanding in pro ranks.

Jack went out to Braves Field a couple weeks ago to see the Braves play the Green Bay wonder team, and that just about made up his mind definitely. He raved about the speed and fitness of the pros. And most likely he was picturing himself running behind that type of interference, which cut down the opposition like a scythe. Shake Crickard loose in an open field and he'll hold his own with any back in the game.

RATES WITH BEST

When he's in good condition, and unhampered by injuries, Crickard ranks among the topnotchers.

Take a look at his record since starting his career at Cambridge. A freshman star four years ago, three years as the ace of the Harvard backfield, under Arny Horween as a sophomore and then with Eddie Casey, in 1931 and 1932 twice an All-American selection last year placed at the top of the list of ball carriers in the East, a member of the United States Olympic team which put on an exhibition game in the Olympic Stadium last summer, and an almost sure All selection this fall, despite the disastrous record of his team, and the fact he was laid up with injuries a good part of the season.

That's the Jack Crickard of the gridiron who has made a nation-wide reputation in the short space of three years.

BRUINS, BLACKHAWKS BATTLE FOR ICE LEAD

By BILL GRIMES

Piqued by their unexpected defeat in New York, the Bruins will be in a belligerent mood when they crash with the Chicago Blackhawks tonight at the Boston Garden.

Until they encountered the Americans, the Bruins were undefeated, and felt that they would have little to do wading through Joe Simpson's crowd. But, as is usually the case when teams assume such an attitude, the Bruins were unable to get going and took a licking.

If the Bruins require any further incentive to rip into the Hawks it will be supplied by the fact that the winner of tonight's conflict will take over possession of first place in the American Division of the N. H. L. Then, too the Hawks pinned four straight defeats on the Rossmen last season, which cost the local sextet a play-off berth.

POTENTIAL CHAMPIONS

Potentially, the Bruins are a championship club. They are the most powerful team in the circuit. Manager Art Ross can toss a line-up of giants, all of whom are past masters in the art of body checking on the ice. They will be tough for any club in the league to take any liberties with, once they round into condition.

Due to the fact that there is at least one new player on each of the three forward line combinations the Bruins are not functioning perfectly as yet. Nels Stewart is teaming with Capt. Dit Clapper and Marty Barry, and once this line begins to click, it should be the most effective in the league.

Stewart, Clapper and Barry are six-footers and their average weight is better than 195, which is unusually heavy for present day hockey with its large premium on speed. Clapper and Barry are as fast as any puck carriers in the pro ranks with the exception of Morenz, while Stewart can step when necessary.

RELIABLE OLIVER

Red Beattie, the center on the second line, has been out of hockey for a year, while his left winger, Billy Burch, is another newcomer, who has not acclimated himself to his present surroundings. But Harry Oliver, at right wing, is the same old reliable brainy plugger, who can always be counted on to nick an odd goal.

In Art Chapman, Obs Heximer and Frank Jerwa, the Bruins have a "kid line" which is not only going to be very popular, but also a valuable asset. The kids may lack experience but they are individually and collectively a smart trio, packing a scoring threat rarely seen in a third string line.

The Bruins have nothing to worry over regarding its defense, with such luminaries as Eddie Shore, Lionel Hitchman, George Owen, Perk Galbraith and Tiny Thompson available.

BRUNO TACKLES TED GERMAINE

The "natural" of the middleweight wrestling wars will be staged tonight when Ted Germaine, South Boston's bad boy, and Fred Bruno, of New York, come to grips at Mechanic's building.

It looks as though the riot which the two caused in the Grand Opera House three weeks ago will be carried on with undiminished fury.

A collegiate air to tonight's card will be lent by Jack Morgan of Tufts who meets the Teuton Mephisto, and Zeus Wilczewski of Boston College in an adagio with Nick Coste.

Several other good bouts in middleweight and light-heavy classes have been arranged.

The card:

PRELIMINARIES

Art Flynn, Boston College, vs. Farmer Raymond, Idaho.

Bob Russell, Newport, vs. Frank Lowney, Brown University.

SPECIAL BOUT

Sahib Seibeg, Turkey, vs. Mike Miller, U. S. Army.

Ted Germaine, So. Boston, vs. Fred Bruno, New York.

Nichols Given Spot on Chicago Card

Chicago, Nov. 22 (AP)—George Nichols of Buffalo, N. Y., recognized by the National Boxing Association as light heavyweight champion, has accepted terms for a 10-round bout on the King Levinsky-Primo Carnera program at the Chicago Stadium Nov. 30.

Frankie Battaglia of Winnipeg, Man., probably will provide the opposition.

HAWK WHO DOESN'T STRIKE

Passing the Puck

By BILL GRIMES

With first place at stake, the Boston Bruins and Chicago Blackhawks will furnish plenty of excitement for the hockey fans who trek to the Boston Garden tonight. Since the Hawks joined the N. H. L. they have given the Bruins more trouble than any club in the league.

Chuck Gardiner, the Chicago goalie, who succeeded Tiny Thompson as holder of the Georges Vezina trophy, is at the peak of his game and, as usual, gunning to turn back the Bruins.

Wilfred Veno, who played here with the Westminsters and the Pilgrim A. A., has returned to the game and is with Normie Shay's New Haven A. C.

If the Blackhawks start pecking at Nels Stewart tonight, they will be flirting with trouble, for the giant Bruin center is taking his hockey seriously and is anxious to start scoring.

Myles Lane, who has just wound up a successful football season coaching B. U., reports to Coach "Buck" Boucher of the Bruin Cubs today. As Lane is in fine physical condition, he will be fit for service on the Cubs' defense in about a week.

Coach "Newsy" Lalonde will have enough trouble trying to keep peace among Les Canadiens without assessing a $10 tax on players who partake of a piece of pie.

Before returning home, the Blackhawks are listed for three tough games. After settling their differences with the Bruins tonight, the Hawks move into New York for a Thursday night game with the Rangers, and on Saturday they will tackle the Flying Frenchmen in the Montreal Forum.

Eddie Powers, manager of the New Haven Can-Am outfit has a tough row to hoe, for his Eagles are shy of talent, especially worthwhile veterans. Manager Powers has a couple of trades in mind which, if he can put over, may be the makings of his club.

With the present-day scarcity of hockey material, the N. H. L. can ill afford to hold Earl Seibert, the young defense player of the Rangers, under suspension. If the New York outfit does not feel that Seibert is worth the price he is holding out for there are other clubs in the league that are willing to meet this promising young star's figures without a whimper.

Hockey Form

Bruins to beat Chicago
Too much power for Hawks
Detroit to beat Les Canadiens
Red Wings tough on home ice
Americans to beat Maroons
Amerks clicking

Having won only one game in four starts, the Toronto Maple Leafs will be a battling outfit when they take on Les Canadiens next Thursday night. The Leafs were shut out by the Rangers in their last start 7 to 0, and, they will take their spite for this defeat out on the Flying Frenchmen.

At the 45th annual convention of the A. A. U. a proposal by R. J. Trimble to form a U. S. H. A. with competition in three classes, amateurs, neo-amateurs and semi-professionals, was defeated and amateur hockey will remain under A. A. U. control.

'PEGGY' O'NEIL SOLVES CUBS PROBLEM

Fresh from the gridiron wars Myles Lane B. U. football coach makes his initial appearance in the Bruin Cubs lineup against Springfield at the Garden tomorrow night. He will team up with Pinkey Davey as a new second line of defense. The former Dartmouth ace is in the pink of condition from tossing those B. U. footballers around. And that puts him right alongside of Pinkey.

The Cubs are bouncing along in high gear. League leaders and high scorers. And very likely to continue that way. Buck Boucher's little Bears may not be as finished as their elder relations the Bruins but they sure apply the pressure every minute.

The Cubs' mentor is rather a booster for Saskatoon, Can. And all because of an amateur from their local city league. James "Peggy" O'Neil, Cub right wing, is the answer.

"Peggy," despite the name, is not very girlish. As a matter of fact, those Philly Arrows do not care for his feminine wiles at all. Against them he was really quite the amazon. As Eddie Burke says, "that Saskatoon sissy turned into a sassy sidewinder."

Our hero is a dead ringer for Dit Clapper. Same height, weight and everything. It is rumored that "Peggy" begs Dit's old clothes to help the resemblance. Mr. Clapper is just about the poorest wing in the National Hockey League. Oh my, yes. And that's the reason why Art Ross goes into ecstasies about the recruit.

James is one of those rubber armed sweepers. That right flipper of his with a hockey stick on the end of it is exceedingly hard to get around. Some of the opposition have decided that it is easier to duck around under the stands and come in behind the goal.

FAST ON RUNNERS

Big cities and pro hockey abash our boy from the country not at all. He takes the play right away from the old-timers. Against the Providence Reds he did right well. With the rubber on the end of his stick he gave a very neat exhibition of now you see it, now you don't.

If "Peggy" keeps it up he'll soon grow from a little Cub into a very large Bruin. Very acceptable to Mr. Ross.

GARDNER'S MAT TITLE AT STAKE

"Pink" Gardner, sheriff of Schenectady and lightheavyweight wrestling champion, will defend his titular belt against the flying tackles of George Linnehan in the main bout of Steve McPherson's weekly mat show at the Boston Arena tonight.

In the semifinal, a pair of roughnecks, Pat O'Hara and Lloyd Stewart will battle while Jack Ellis tackles the lightheavyweight champion of Canada, Archie Campbell, in a special bout.

The card:

MAIN BOUT

Pink Gardner, Schenectady, vs. George Linnehan, Wayland.
(Two falls out of three—no time limit).

SEMIFINAL

Lloyd Stewart, Lynn, vs. Pat O'Hara, Atlanta.
(Two falls out of three—45-minute time limit).

SPECIAL BOUT

Archie Campbell, Canada, vs. Jack Ellis, Lawrence.
(One fall—30-minute time limit).

PRELIMINARIES

Nick Karayas, Boston, vs. Frank Krause, Schenectady.

Bob Rubin, Y. M. H. A., vs. Wild Lake Chek, Lowell.

Jim Trephon, Florida, vs. Jack Martin, Lawrence.

Larry Barton, Minnesota, vs. Jim Wallis, Boston.

Sailor King, U. S. Navy, vs. Jackie Nichols, Boston.

Rixey Loses Quail, Race, 25 Dollars

Cincinnati, O., Nov. 22 (AP)—Eppa Jeptha Rixey, veteran Cincinnati pitcher, "pursued" a quail today and not only lost the quail but paid a $25 fine for the pleasure of the chase.

Rixey, whose speed on the paths isn't what it once was, due to the weight of 42 years, attempted to run down the bird on a woodland path near Sabina, where he and four companions were hunting.

Although the game warden opined the bird never was in much danger, the charge of "pursuing a quail" was preferred. In Ohio, "pursuing" quail is frowned upon, since quail appears on the protected list as a song bird.

GARDEN PLANS ERECTION OF NEW BOWL

By DAVIS J. WALSH

New York, Nov. 22 (INS)—The annual nutmeg season, which often causes great loss of life in the tree tops, was declared open today when the Madison Square Garden Corporation informed me that it contemplated the appropriation of $250,000 for the purpose of building a second bowl alongside the first in Long Island City in order to make a play for the big football games.

They didn't say anything about a third alongside the second in order to make a play for the big archery matches, but I assume this will follow just as soon as the public demand makes itself felt.

Briefly, the Garden says that contrary to its original announcement, it no longer plans to demount its bowl and make it suitable for football by taking off the rims and adding a few spares.

Instead, it is "seriously considering" the advisability of using the adjoining land for the erection of another stadium into which the Army-Navy, Army-Notre Dame, Fordham-N. Y. U. and N. Y. U.-Georgia games will be invited as part of a huge ceremony of dedication in 1933.

They also said something about having Mr. Tim Mara's pro football team take part, not on terms of equality, of course, but more or less after dark and on Sundays while nobody was looking.

PACKERS SAVE MARA

However, I doubt if this statement was given mature thought. Mr. Mara is a very nice man, but he has been in the auburn with his enterprise nearly all season and only through his $25,000 house with the Green Bay Packers on Sunday was he able to get some of the red out of his hair.

There is hardly any reason to suspect, in fact, that any part of the plan has received mature consideration, for offhand it sounds a little lunatic and not quite bright. But so did the announcement that the first bowl was to be built in three months and the only thing wrong about that was that it was built in two months.

So, after all, these things are comical only when it turns out that they can't do them and don't. However, unless taken in time and restrained with some firmness it seems reasonable to suppose that anybody so impulsive as to start building stadiums, at a time when money is something they're expecting at the mint almost any day, might just be the wrong type.

They might even in time undergo a gradual weakening of the moral fibre, with the result that the thing gets to be habit-forming and eventually visitors are permitted only between the hours of two and four.

PLAN DOUBTFUL

Personally, I have every confidence in a restoration of reason. Cooler heads, as the boys say, are bound to prevail. I'm sure, for instance, that the Garden isn't yet fully aware that American football is in the process of being de-emphasized by its own clients, or that it, the Garden, is fixing to get itself in a cut-rate war with the ball parks or that the current "cut" of the park people is only 25 per cent.

I'm also sure that somebody in the long run is bound to find out that 25 per cent of nothing is liable to be very little.

The McCoy Becomes Ring's Casanova

Kid McCoy moves up the ladder to ring fame. A world title becomes his; he goes through many thrilling battles. Joe Choynski opposes the Kid four times. Finally McCoy lands a bout with Jim Corbett, but worry and jealousy regarding his wife prevent him from boxing well, and he loses.

CHAPTER XXXII.

My ring career was virtually at an end. I did fight after that, and had some tough matches, but they were relatively unimportant.

At 27 I felt myself to be through as a professional fighter.

Things happened with great rapidity after the Corbett fight. I sailed for London planning to proceed to South Africa and cut myself off forever from the part of the world containing Julia.

In midocean we passed the ship bearing Jim Corbett home. He had turned back after a stormy scene in London with his backer, George Considine.

Settles for $10,000

Before leaving I settled with Julia for $10,000 and gave my safe to George W. Grant, who had been acting as my manager.

After a trip to Paris I returned to New York in April, 1901 and went straight to Julia.

I pleaded my love and she admitted that she had been bitterly unhappy without me, so we were remarried in Boston and went to Saratoga Lake, where I built a small hotel on a 200-acre farm I had purchased a short time before and we opened a health resort.

My first guests were Edward C. Ellis and Ralph Thompson, two wealthy young men, Yale graduates.

I got them straightened out and in good condition, and our establishment was a happy one until one day I went to the races, lost quite a roll and came back to find Julia in a rage.

She even took a wild shot with a revolver. We parted and I headed again for Europe. Julia got a second divorce, and a judge who I had reason up until then to regard as a friend, allowed her $500 a month alimony, which was beyond my means.

The next spring I came back, after giving the pleasure places of Europe a strong play, and on the boat, drinking wine with a fellow passenger who was a lawyer.

He told me that the one way to escape the alimony was to marry Julia again.

I found her in the cast of the "Miss Print" company, with Marie Dressler. We had dinner after the show in a private dining room in Rector's and after I had given her 10,000 francs—and the French money was very impressive in appearance so that, with the wine, she was fairly overwhelmed — she agreed to marry me once more.

After the Corbett fight my ring career was practically at an end although I had, over a period of years, three or four real fights in addition the numerous exhibition bouts. The abounding energy necessary to carry on through a tough ring battle belongs only to youth. As he near 30 the boxer is passing beyond his prime.

Needs 20 Rounds

On September 27, 1904, I fought Jack (Twin) Sullivan in Los Angeles and learned the difference in the prize ring between 31, which was my age, and 26 which was Sullivan's. I bet $1000 that I would knock Sullivan out in the ten rounds.

I defeated Sullivan in 20 rounds, but couldn't knock him out.

A wire came to me on the coast in 1904 that Eddie Ellis had died. His wife, Estelle, whom we called Lillian, pleaded with me to come to her. She was a lovely creature of the show girl type, and we had been good pals during Eddie's lifetime.

We spent our honeymoon in Havana and it was there I met poor Maude Detty, the burlesque queen who had been my sweetheart when I was a youngster.

Estelle and I got along only indifferently well after our marriage. We remained good friends, but my habits were too irregular. In that from day to day and from night to night she never could tell where I would be.

When we split up finally, she went to Italy and I to Paris. In the Majestic Hotel, Paris, I met a beautiful young woman, a real Russian baroness and not like so many titled persons, broke. Not by any means. The Baroness de Heckren had an annual income of $50,000.

I told her I was getting a divorce, but concealed the fact that I had been in the prize ring.

One evening in the Casino we met Estelle, and the two women immediately became friends. I left shortly afterward for the United States, where our divorce was pending.

The baroness wanted to stake me in the brokerage business with $100,000, if I would make my home near her in Paris.

After I was in New York about 10 days I got a wire from the baroness saying that she and my wife were on their way to the United States.

I cabled the baroness not to come, as I would be in Paris within 10 days, but she came anyway, and when Estelle got off the boat I could see at once that the two women had quarrelled.

Conquers Placke

The baroness went to the Hotel Plaza and Estelle to our former home, 932 West End ave. I met the baroness in Rector's that night, and there was a stormy scene. She had learned that I was a prize fighter, and totally out of her class.

Presently she returned to Europe and I never saw her again, save for a chance meeting in Paris, when she greeted me cordially and went on her way.

Except for the savage battle with Petty Officer Curran in Nice, some years later, the only fights of any significance that I had after the Sullivan bout were with Jack Root in Detroit in 1903, and with Henry Placke in Philadelphia in 1904.

Root got the decision over me in a 20-round go. It was billed as a contest for the light heavyweight championship, something new in the way of titles.

I let myself take on weight and tipped the scales at 174. I found that I had no fighting heart on that occasion.

Placke was a giant from Holland. He weighed 265, and I 175. My own reach, 76 inches, is phenomenal. Placke's was 84 inches. He was six feet five and one-half inches tall.

I easily knocked out Placke in the second round, although I had really expected more trouble from him.

Ricci Standout in Amateur Tourney

Ricci scored two knockouts in his drive to the final.

ENTIRE EAGLE SQUAD AT PEAK FOR H. C. TILT

After the regular grid stock taking at B. C., the Eagles were ready to swing into the routine which Coach Joe McKenney hopes will bring them to their highest peak this season, starting today.

With hard work McKenney hopes to be able to field a strong machine against the Holy Cross Crusaders.

For their own part the McKenneymen entertain new confidence that they will carry the siege of Worcester next Saturday. This verve is born not so much of the recent one sided victory over B. U.'s Terriers, but the fact that little Manhattan was able to hold Holy Cross scoreless.

EVEN MONEY INDICATION

Several indications are that B. C. will enter the annual tilt with Holy Cross at least an even choice to win.

In the first place, B. U. gave the B. C. reserves just the right amount of hard work, and the Terriers were easy on McKenney's none too rugged varsity members.

With no serious injuries apparent to any member of the squad, B. C. will be at full strength against a Crusader team, the strain of whose arduous season is already beginning to tell.

THREE SCRIMMAGES

Joe McKenney is one of the few coaches who keeps his squad at scrimmage and hard contact work right up to the final game of the season. This week will be no exception to the usual University Heights rule, which calls for at least three hard scrimmages with the freshmen and second varsity elevens.

In addition to their regular assignment work, the Eagles will begin rehearsing the special fireworks held in reserve for the traditional rivals.

LUTZE IS READY FOR CHAMPION

By JACK CONWAY

Many of those persons who saw Lutze work were boxing fans. They had visited the gym to get a line on Ernie Schaaf and Jack Sharkey.

"It is easy to see Lutze has been a fighter," said Johnny Buckley. "He throws as fine a right hand punch as anybody I have seen."

Lutze told Sharkey he used to be a boxer before he took up wrestling.

"I always could hit," said Nick, "while I was fast. I wasn't so hot when it came to taking a punch on the chin."

"None of us like to get nailed on the button," said Sharkey. "The thing to remember is not to forget to duck."

Lutze says it won't be necessary for him to worry about right hand punches on Thanksgiving night when he meets Henri DeGlane in a world's heavyweight championship mat bout at the Boston Garden under the direction of Paul Bowser and the Shriners.

"DeGlane is strictly a wrestler," said Nick. "He is one of the best the mat game has produced in recent years. You will see a fast wrestling bout when I meet the champion."

DeGlane is expected to arrive in town today.

Charley Strack, Oklahoma heavyweight, will take the place of Joe Malcewicz against Buck Weaver in one of the prelims. Malcewicz is wrestling in Toronto on Friday night and could not make train connections to the Canadian city if he appeared here Thursday evening.

The semifinal between Gus Sonnenberg and Al Morelli is expected to furnish plenty of fireworks.

The Shriners' band of 200 pieces will be on the job. The proceeds of the show will be turned over to the Hospital for Crippled Children in Springfield. A great show for a most worthy cause.

CATHOLIC LOOP GROWS

ST. CHARLES OF WALTHAM SETS LEAGUE PACE

By BILL CONNELL

When the school gridiron ballet makes its final whirl on the sports stage Thanksgiving Day morning, two games will climax the 1932 drive of one of the most remarkable school circuits in the country, the Catholic High School League.

In a few years this loop has mushroomed into a field of seven teams during the football season. One or two more teams join in the grind for basketball and baseball.

Record crowds, for the league, are expected Thursday when St. Charles high of Waltham meets Immaculate Conception high at Waltham Athletic Field, and St. Mary's tackles St. Clement's at Brookline Town Field.

The sports budgets of the schools prove the teams' popularity. Most of the groups are clearing expenses, and saving for future expansion.

Thus far the directors of the league have been former college sports aces, so the league affairs are conducted by experts. The first director, Rev. Bernard O'Kane of St. Mary's, Brookline, was a great athlete some 25 years ago at Boston College.

Father O'Kane's successor, Rev. George M. Dowd of St. Mary's was a Somerville and then a Boston College football and baseball star a decade back.

The Brookline school offers a good example of the interest in sports shown by the league schools' pupils. Of the 85 boys attending St. Mary's, 30 are are in the grid group.

Other schools of the league have equally complete programs.

CLOSE RACE

The race this season for the Cardinal O'Connell Trophy, awarded each year to the circuit champion, has been close. St. Charles High of Waltham tops the circuit, with four victories and eight points. A win or tie Thursday in the game with Immaculate Conception High will clinch the crown for the Waltham boys.

St. Clement's High of Somerville, now in third place with six points, with a conquest on Thursday, may tie St. Charles, provided the latter bows to Immaculate Conception High.

The St. Mary's-St. Clement's game renews the oldest rivalry in the league, and these two should stage a very fine contest. St. Mary's is coached this season by Dick Moynihan, former Villanova flash under Harry Stuhldreher. Moynihan has brought the team which was the league's doormat up to a tie for fourth place.

ADDITIONS EXPECTED

Just how big is the future of the league is a question. Another team or two probably will get in the football race next season. In years to come it is unlikely that the team will play outside their own league ranks very much for they can find plenty of competition in the circuit.

The schools fielding elevens this fall are St. Charles High of Waltham; Cathedral High of South End, Boston; St. Clement's of Somerville; St. Mary's of Brookline, Mission High of Roxbury, and Sacred Heart High of Newton.

MR. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

DENNIS McMAHON told me over the telephone he would be in town late today to sign Unknown Winston for a bout under Argonne A. A. direction at the Arena on Dec. 5. This show will be staged for the Christmas Basket Fund of the Boston Evening American.

Mr. Boston

Schaaf has already signed. In the presence of Jack Sharkey and Johnny Buckley, his managers, the Sea Tiger affixed his signature to one of Eddie Mack's contracts.

McMahon agreed to terms during a conversation over the long distance telephone. He confirmed his oral statement with a telegram. The official signing is a matter of form.

The return Schaaf-Winston bout is a "natural." Although the match has not been definitely closed, the advance sale has already passed the $1500 mark. Boston and New England boxing fans are quick to recognize a real scrap.

* * *

Sharkey to Train Schaaf

YOU CAN ALSO write it down in your diary that Jack Sharkey will train Schaaf for this bout. Ernie and the champion have forgotten all past grievances and will work for a common purpose, which in this case is a Schaaf victory over Winston.

Schaaf has spent much time in the open during the past month. He is in splendid physical condition and feels he will lick Winston this time.

* * *

Boston College Smoker

YOU'LL FIND plenty of fire and enthusiasm at the Boston College smoker at the City Club on Friday night. Joe McKenney will tell the gathering how the Eagles are going to soar to victory at Worcester. Coach Bunny Corcoran of Holy Cross will then say a few words for Holy Cross and they promise to be lively remarks.

Of course the Fitzgerald boys of Cambridge will put on their dance. Bill Baker and Frank Walsh will offer their skit, the orchestra will do its best to pep up the affair, while Toastmaster William A. Hogan promises that none of the speeches will be too long.

No football team was ever inspired by a speech that lasted for more than five minutes. That's what the late Knute Rockne once told me.

* * *

Speaking of Speeches

SPEAKING OF SPEECHES reminds me of what Capt. John Anderson told the members of the bureau of criminal investigation when Inspector Edward T. Conway was pensioned by the police department.

"Ned Conway," said Capt. Anderson, "has been one of the greatest detectives this country has known. Few men have arrested as many real criminals as he has. I had the good fortune to come under the supervision of Inspector Conway when I started doing detective work at the Lagrange st. station. He taught me how to be a detective."

The police department, from Commissioner Hultman down to the newest patrolman, is quite unanimous in saying that the retired inspector was all that the word "detective" means. The fact ranking officers as well as fellow detectives give Inspector Conway credit for some of their success proves there is still much gratitude in most people.

P. G. A. SELECTS RYDER TEAM

Peoria, Ill., Nov. 22 (AP)—The Professional Golfers Association today got down to the business of selecting the team of eight regulars and two alternates which will meet Great Britain's pro stars in the Ryder Cup matches next May.

It was indicated that Walter Hagen would be named captain of the American forces, with Gene Sarazen and Olin Dutra the only others reasonably certain of places.

The delegates approved two amendments to the constitution of the association in the opening session yesterday. It was decided that alternates or substitutes to qualifiers for the championship tournament shall not be eligible to play for the title, as has been permitted previously.

The second amendment will give stars from abroad an opportunity to make bids for the U. S. pro title, the executive committee having been given power to extend invitations to such players.

HUB RADIO HIGHLIGHTS

Bob Emery Air Attractions Altered

By N. F. T.

As broadcasting pots boil, verily we always have a studio stew. Which is by way of reporting the latest local radio rumpus, if such it should be called.

* * *

SECURES OWN SPONSOR

Bob Emery, perhaps better known as "Big Brother" and a featured Yankee Network personality, finds himself more or less under fire, it seems. Certain Hub program planners haven't found much commercial work for him to do lately. Alas, as listeners no doubt realize by this time, "commercial" is the magic term, the open sesame, it's truly the wonder word in our modern wireless world of make-believe. However, Bob Emery was at one time, not too long ago, a salesman of no mean ability himself. He still is, apparently, as evidenced by his having sallied forth in person to sell his newest creative idea involving a series of dramas based on Christmas carol themes. More about that later; suffice to say these sketches begin December 5, backed by a big Boston department store.

Bob Emery

FEATURES FADE

Meanwhile, his "Spelling Bee" offering and his popular weekly "Opportunity Revue" specialty, designed for juvenile diversion, will wind up this week should he and his present principals fail to shape a new deal. Such possibility appears remote, to say the least, at this writing. Meanwhile, unless a commercial angle attends forthcoming "Big Brother" broadcasts, there just won't be any. No sustaining spot has been reserved for him. Sustaining, by way of explanation, describes effort staged strictly at station expense. In other words applied around the radio realm, it covers ether entertainment embracing no advertising talk.

* * *

FRED STONE FROLIC

Last night's regular midnight footlight frolic on the air (WBZ), from 11:15 on, ether dedicated to the veteran favorite Fred Stone. Old Fred was there and broadcast, too., when he had completed his last RKO theater showing. Also a galaxy of stage and sound sanctum personalities helped out the hour. Among those taking a "mike" turn were both Val and Ernie Stanton. Incidentally, they are the very same comical chaps heard (WBZ) Sunday night under assumed names of "Algy and Freddy." This program as arranged afforded something worth lending an ear or two.

* * *

LOCAL LATHER

Martha Lee, the culinary counsel for your favorite newspaper, has been attracting new listeners aplenty with her recent Thanksgiving Dinner dial talks. Especially has she been pleading with housewives not to find fault with hubby carving that day. Hear her tomorrow morning (WAAB) at 11 a. m. and absorb some timely last minute menu hints . . . By Jingo, the array of collaborating WNAC staff men assigned to help describe the Thursday Brown-Colgate gridiron come-together, wouldn't need many more additions to form a football team of their own. There will be Ralph Gilroy, Linus Travers, C. Gordon Jones, Charlie (wrestler) Strack and Gerry Harrison . . . A talented newcomer to vocal artist ranks in town, is young Ruth Hanson of Everett, heard today (WEEI) at 4:15. Be it known she is the same young lady who accompanied Medford's Alice O'Leary when the latter lady won those Paul Whiteman Boston auditions—remember? . . . Herbie Alpert, brother of the well known "Mickie" has taken to broadcasting seriously. Herb didn't do a bad job at all, singing with Herb Marsh and his music men on Sunday night (WBZ) so between the two boys, their family name may yet burn brightly on Broadway.

Santason Safe at Hopedale on Flight to Boston

Special despatches received by Santa Claus at the Jordan Marsh Company today revealed that Santason, his son, had arrived at Hopedale, Labrador, in a 1200-mile plane trip from Upernivik, Greenland.

The despatches stated that considerable trouble had been experienced in the flight due to a storm which, they reported, almost drove them into the sea of ice over which they were flying. In addition to high winds, they encountered sleet and snow which coated the plane with ice.

As the plane sank dangerously low under the added weight, Santason's pilots discarded 50 gallons of reserve fuel, in order to increase their altitude. This maneuver saved them and they finally landed safely in Hopedale.

Today they will take off for Halifax, N. S., the next leg in Santason's jaunt from the North Pole to Boston. Complete details of this leg of the journey are expected by Santa Claus in dispatches he will receive tomorrow.

Meanwhile, in this city, Santa Claus and his aids are rapidly completing preparations for the tremendous street parade, which annually hails the arrival of Santason in this city.

In order that the thousands of boys and girls in the city who have been eagerly waiting the chance to see Santason, he will be seated in a reproduction of a Boeing monoplane on a specially constructed float.

This scene will be repeated on Thursday, Thanksgiving morning, when Santason, famous son of Santa Claus, comes to Boston, via East Boston Airport, in his big airplane, to make his annual appearance at the Jordan Marsh Company store.

BEER BILL SURE OF PASSAGE, SAYS GARNER

BULLETIN

Washington, Nov. 22 (AP)—Speaker Garner told newspapermen today that in his opinion the House will pass a beer bill at the short session. He refrained from any forecast as to the probable time.

Washington, Nov. 22 (AP)—A [illegible] today between Rep. [illegible]

"I do not wish to enter into a controversy with Mr. Joslin, but as he was not in the room when I talked with the President he is thoroughly unqualified to say what really transpired during our conference.

"I reiterate I am confident that President Hoover will not veto a beer-revenue bill which will be passed by the coming session of Congress."

Man Asks for Beer Permit in Newton

One [illegible] bird, a portly gentleman, walked into the office of Mayor Sinclair Weeks of Newton today and asked for a beer permit.

The mayor is away, but his puzzled clerk, Miss Esther Barr, conferred with James Dempsey, the mayor's secretary, who thought at first that she was funning [illegible].

It was no joke, however, for the man told Dempsey that beer is coming back and the visitor wanted to be the first man on a [illegible] to see.

Dempsey told him he would have to wait until beer is a fact and that then he must apply to the board of aldermen.

...WE HAVE OUT-SWISSED THE SWISS

Borden's Swiss

WE wanted to make sure that Borden's Swiss Cheese was as good or better than the finest imported Swiss.

So we had several hundred people taste both Borden's and imported Swiss—taste them without knowing which was which. The result was an overwhelming vote for Borden's!

Borden's Swiss is made in Wisconsin by cheese-makers who inherited the art from their Swiss ancestors. Try a package! You'll fairly revel in the nut-sweet, succulent flavor of this cheese. So truly Alpine in its ripe mellowness. And Borden's Swiss is economical, too. The price is low. And there's no waste. For the foil-lined package keeps the cheese fresh.

Borden makes these other fine cheeses, too

Swiss is only one of the many fine cheeses that Borden offers you. They all are made by the same company that has been famous for the quality of its dairy products since 1857. Try each of these cheeses in turn.

Attorney Plunges to Death From Waldorf

New York, Nov. 22 (AP)—The body of Blair T. Scott, 60, attorney of Baltimore, Md., was found today on the fourth floor extension of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. In a room on the seventeenth floor which he had occupied and from which police said he apparently had jumped were found a note to the hotel management, letters to the press, the medical examiner and his attorney.

"When my motive is revealed in the morning it may not turn out as embarrassing as it now appears," said the note to the management.

EXPERT OFFERS TO GULP DOWN DEADLY JAKEY

Are college students human or is Peter Balser, government chemist, a superman? This question arose in [illegible] Federal court today where Max Reisman of Boston was fighting his removal to Kansas to face charges in connection with the so-called poison Jamaica ginger case.

After Dr. William F. Boos of Harvard had testified for the defense that no human being could drink any liquid containing over 80 per cent alcohol, Balser offered to drink some of the alleged jakey, a government exhibit in the case, containing 96 per cent alcohol.

He prefaced his offer by saying that he saw students in a college in Washington drink 95 per cent alcohol. He also specified that he must be taken home after he took a drink.

After several deaths and many cases of paralysis had followed the drinking of Jamaica ginger by [illegible] in many sections of the country in 1931 the federal government caused several men, among them Reisman, to be indicted.

E. Mark Sullivan, counsel for Reisman, told the court that he had an agreement with the Department of Justice that Reisman, after a trial here, would not have to face another trial in Kansas, where he is also under indictment.

4 ASK PENSIONS IN SOMERVILLE

Applications for retirement on half pay by four veteran members of Somerville polic and fire departments are expected to be forwarded by Mayor John J. Murphy to the aldermen at their meeting tonight.

Lieut. James M. Harmon, more than 40 years a member of the police department, after being a "big league" ball player and pugilist who sparred with "Bob" Fitzsimmons, and Patrolman Albert C. Hawes, more than 23 years in the department, are among the applicants for pension.

Fire department applicants are Frederick W. Kimball of Engine 1 and Robert F. Garland of Engine 3.

Funeral services from Lindsey Memorial Chapel, Emmanuel Church, on Newbury st., will be held tomorrow for Frank Huntington Beebe, philanthropist and patron of arts who died Sunday.

FiremenPlay Hose at Somerville 'Walkathon'

Somerville firemen joined the orchestra at the walkathon contest in the Old Union Square Theater today and played their favorite instrument, the hose.

Thirteen couples entered in the combination dancing and walking contest, which began last week and which will continue until none are left to lift a leg, kept on dancing through the smoke caused by a burning mattress.

The mattress, used by contestants when they try to get a few minutes' rest, was set afire not by the hot feet of the dancers, but by the same old carelessly thrown cigarette butt.

On with the dance! O. K. Somerville!

N. E. GIRLS LIKE PRINCE FINE

New York, Nov. 22 (AP)—Two Worcester, Mass., girls came back from England today bursting to tell their schoolmates about the Prince of Wales.

Harriet, who is 14, is a student at North high school, Worcester. Deborah, 8, goes to the Lee st. grammar school.

Other American girls have danced with the Prince, but Harriet and Deborah were convinced that they are the only ones who ever sat down with him for an intimate tea.

"The Prince asked me if it was my first crossing," said Harriet. "I said 'No.'"

Said Deborah: "He asked me if my camera was a movie camera. I said 'No,' too."

The girls went to England with their parents. Their father represented Worcester in a friendly official call upon that city's older but smaller sister, Worcester, Eng.

In that capacity he assisted on October 28 in the dedication of a bridge over the Severn river, of Cripple Gate Park and of a new wing for an infirmary there.

The Tiltons were the guests of Mayor Diana Ogilvy and were also entertained by Lady Dearham and Viscount Cobham. They attended a luncheon for the Prince of Wales, and Tilton found him "a genuine man, quick enough to be an American."

WITNESS UNDER FIRE IN WAR CLAIM CASE

Washington, Nov. 22 (AP)—A charge that Theodore Wozniak, claimed by the United States to have been the German spy responsible for the destruction of the Kingsland (N. J.) munitions plant, was either a perjurer or forger, was made today before the German-American Claims Commission by American attorneys.

The fire which destroyed the Kingsland plant just before the United States entered the World War started at Wozniak's workbench. On the claim of new evidence, the commission is rehearing the case, in which the United States is attempting to prove German agents were implicated in the destruction.

Linked with the Kingsland case in the hearings is the destruction of the Black Tom terminal of the Lehigh Valley railroad in New York harbor about a year earlier.

The claims against Germany in the case total $40,000,000 and once before the commission gave a decision favorable to Germany.

BANK ROBBERY ALIBI PLANNED

New Bedford, Nov. 22—The trial of five men accused of robbing the Mechanics Co-operative Bank of Taunton of $7730, Oct. 17, opened today with the wife of one of the defendants and three other mysterious witnesses present to attempt to establish alibis for the five.

The defendants are Albert Crimmins, 24, of East 9th st., South Boston; Daniel A. Scannell, 22, of Wall st., Charlestown; William S. Harvey, 23, of Seaver st., Dorchester; Frank Karlonis, 21, of Brookline, and James Hall of Stoughton.

Hall's wife, Margaret, will attempt to establish an alibi, as will the three other witnesses.

The men were arrested at Hall's bungalow the day after the robbery.

Marblehead Extortion Plot Probed by Postal Agents

Postal authorities today investigated receipt of blackhand letters demanding large sums from a Marblehead patrolman and a town official the last few weeks.

Police Chief S. Irving Chapman had [illegible] receipt of the [illegible]. Postal officials entered the case when it became known the letters had been mailed at Marblehead postoffice.

Chairman Howard Lillibridge of the town [illegible] letters, each demanding that $5000 be deposited at a designated spot in Waterside Cemetery.

A trap was set last Friday but the extortionists failed to appear in the cemetery. Lillibridge, Chapman and two patrolmen waited there 12 hours waiting for [illegible].

Lillibridge has been chairman of the selectmen for three years and member of the board for 12 years. He is also chairman of Marblehead public welfare committee.

A letter received by Patrolman Samuel Bradish concerned his work in the police department and made threats against him.

Trotzky Boards Boat on Reaching Dunkirk

Dunkirk, France, Nov. 22 (INS)—Heavily guarded, Leon Trotzky, exiled Bolshevist leader, arrived here from Paris this afternoon. Passing of President Lowell Recalls Work of Family as Educators

by ROBERT E. ROGERS

R. E. ROGERS

The resignation of Abbott Lawrence Lowell as president of Harvard cannot have been entirely unexpected among his associates, although the public has long been advised that he had hoped to remain in office until 1936, when the college is to celebrate its tercentenary. Mr. Lowell is 76 years old and has been president of Harvard for 23 years, since 1909. I can remember that date, as I was in the first class whose diplomas he signed.

The place of his family in New England's history may be phrased simply by remembering that one side of it founded the city of Lawrence, the other side the city of Lowell. The history of Massachusetts textiles is something of a Lowell family affair. The place of Mr. Lowell as a scholar may be noted by his long service as professor of government at Harvard. His father helped to found Technology, and Mr. Lowell inherited from his trusteeship in that institution, as well as in the Lowell Institute of public lectures, one of Boston's most famous institutions, and in the Lowell School for Industrial Foremen, one of its most useful.

Set Courses for Undergrads

Like Augustus, Mr. Lowell found Harvard brick and left it marble. Or, to be precise, he found it a collection of nondescript and often ugly buildings and he left it a collection of expensive edifices in a distinctive and beautiful neo-Georgian style. Incidentally, he redeemed the Charles River shore from flatness and mediocrity, with the Business School on one side and the Freshman dormitories, now the houses on the other.

His great work as an educator was to reverse the ideals and policies of his great predecessor, Charles William Eliot. Eliot had established the elective system, by which the undergraduate was left free to browse as he would, and as superficially as he would, in the vast curriculum of the university. Lowell deliberately restricted this choice, forced the undergraduate to take a certain number of courses in four groups of studies and to concentrate hard in one. He built up the system of honors, corresponding to the Oxford system. He made it much harder than ever to secure a Harvard degree and raised the intellectual level accordingly.

It was Eliot's idea that the individual freshman should be thrown into a dormitory, there to mingle with upper-classmen, graduates, and professional school men, to enjoy a very great deal of freedom, and to get along as best he could. If he were strong he survived. If he were weak, he failed. It was up to him. The result of this was the undergraduate social life had become loose, unorganized, almost anarchical. The college eating places, for instance, had to shut down for lack of patronage.

Mr. Lowell believed in an orderly, regimented, civilized college life, in permanent dining places and dormitories, under proper supervision. He believed in creating permanent associations among the undergraduates. His first step was to build the Freshman Dormitories and put the freshman into them, to eat, live and, if possible, play together.

His second step, when the Harkness millions were secured was to put into effect a long cherished plan to build "houses which were to function like the Oxford colleges, where, again, undergraduates might for three years live entirely together, with their tutors in the same buildings.

Memorial Chapel Final Lowell Unit

Even before that he had built with George F. Baker's money the graduate Business School, a separate, self-contained unit of the university. With the coming of the houses he moved the freshmen back into the yard, building new dormitories on the old Georgian models to house them.

Among other magnificent additions to the Harvard plant during the consulship of Mr. Lowell, must be remembered the Widener Library, the Mallinckrodt chemical laboratories, the new Fogg Art Museum, and finally the Memorial Chapel. I have no figures at hand to compute the increase in endowment under Mr. Lowell, but the figures must be staggering, running up at least to 125 millions of dollars.

As Mr. Eliot was primarily interested in the development of the university, so it is not unfair to say that Mr. Lowell apparently determined to redress the balance in favor of the college, and it is towards the college that most of his reforms and plans and benefactions seem to have been directed.

The one chief liability of Mr. Lowell's administration is that he deliberately discouraged George P. Baker's work in drama and the college theater—which apparently he did not think worthy of academic encouragement, and so Prof. Baker's dream of a great "Division of the Fine Arts," with drama taking its proper place by music and art, was destined to go unrealized at Harvard. Harvard's loss was Yale's opportunity.

I also have a strong feeling that during Mr. Lowell's administration the atmosphere was not favorable to the cultivation of original literature. Harvard as an alma mater to young writers virtually ceased to exist. The emphasis was increasingly on scholarship of a somewhat scholastic kind. The literature produced was scholastic literature. The younger members of the faculty were frequently school-men, instead of humanists of the older type of Wendell, Baker, and Copeland, and for the past 20 years the college seems to have nurtured very few men of letters of the old Harvard tradition. The atmosphere of the Business School and the honor examinations did not seem to favor loafing and inviting the soul, the old Harvard individualism and liberalism which under Eliot bore such rich fruit.

Eliot Lives as a Pioneer

Eliot's nation-wide reputation was that of a pioneer. Lowell came at a time when the great pioneering work was done and when the problem was one of pruning and weeding and replanting, if necessary. His work has not brought him the popular reputation that Eliot's did, but to those who understand the developments in the modern university it has been as far-reaching and quite as revolutionary as Eliot's.

The greatest revolution, sometimes, is a return to an older ideal. Eliot was in his sympathies a democratic liberal. Lowell has been inclined to be an aristocratic conservative in his ideas. He wrought to produce a type of Harvard man more carefully nurtured, more conservatively moulded, more a return to the special type of the college man of the past. That was his ideal. The material of the American democracy, with which he had to deal, has largely defeated his purpose.

Whatever else may be said of the Lowell regime at Harvard, it cannot be denied that he was a great administrator and builder. He remade Harvard College in his image—the best test of a great man. Whoever comes after him will find ready to his hand one of the very greatest of all the university organizations in the western world. Most of it, as it stands, is Mr. Lowell's creation.

MOTHER SEEKS MISSING SON

Thanksgiving is only two days away and there's going to be a vacant chair in the Boyd home in Suwanee rd., East Weymouth unless Johnny comes home again.

Johnny is 14 and missing. He's been missing since Nov. 8 when he just put on his cap and said good-bye to his mother.

Mother, who is Mrs. J. Lester Boyd, didn't know that Johnny was really saying "Good bye," but she did know that he always talked of going to work on a farm.

She is afraid that is what Johnny set out to do. And it is the wrong kind of weather for a boy of 14 who weighs only 98 pounds and is not used to roughing it.

Johnny is probably on his way to Maine so if you see a boy who is a bit over five feet tall, about Johnny's weight, wearing dark brown knickers, a brown jacket and gray and blue stockings, send him home.

Mozart A. A. to Hold 8th Annual Dance

Every Body by Fisher bears this emblem on the right and [illegible] the right front door. Look for [illegible] emblem of Body by Fisher before you accept any motor car body.

With the new Fisher Bodies on General Motors cars for 1933, soon to be presented, Fisher will introduce a ventilation system which automotive engineers term the most important contribution to motoring comfort and safety since closed bodies were first offered (by Fisher) in 1910.

This new ventilation system not only eliminates the annoying and harmful drafts which blow upon the occupants of conventional type cars, but prevents dangerous clouding of windshield and windows in wet or stormy weather.

It furnishes a constant flow of fresh air without a single discomforting draft. Used air and smoke are instantly carried outside the car. In addition, each person in the car can regulate the ventilation to suit his own desires, without discomfort to any other occupant. And, along with this revolutionary ventilation system, Fisher will offer more than a score of other improvements which add value to General Motors cars, the only cars with Body by Fisher.

BEACON HILL

—by—

Betty Alden

WE HAVE RECEIVED so many requests to give our opinion on how much it costs to bring out a debutante we will give a few facts which have come to our notice . . .

A popular daughter is a SAVING on the household expense account . . . she is never at home. As one mother replied to another when asked if her daughter was OUT this winter, "She must be out, because she is never IN."

Her little debbie sleeps through breakfast, wriggles out of her silken coverlets just in time for luncheon at the Ritz, or at the Junior League (being one of the chosen she will have received her bid to be a provisional member of that important organization); stays out until it is time to pour at somebody's tea and returns home only long enough to change into her evening FRILLIES to rush off again to a dinner-theater party.

* * *

Help to Put the Debut Over

AFTER THE THEATER she simply MUST dance a few numbers until 2 a. m., scrambled eggs and coffee at Child's . . . and so to bed.

As you can see, with this program to keep to day after day, our little bud has no open date on which to give herself a dinner, dance or tea. Several evenings she is asked to share honors with her less popular "pals" . . . they know and SHE knows that her name on the invitation list will put the ball over the bunker.

Ambitious mothers have been known to PAY for this privilege, and, if the popular debutante is one whose ancestry is longer than her bank balance, she will accept the $500, and a beautiful bracelet with pleasure . . . and why not?

* * *

What One Little Debbie Did

IT WILL HELP TOWARD the long list of gowns, wraps, gloves, perfumes and flowers which a deb must have . . .

She is a clever girl too, if she is of the poor and proud; he knows how to make the most of what she buys and can wear with an air the "hand-me-downs" so graciously donated by her rich friends . . .

We know of one maiden who came out a few years ago for $500, when prosperity was at its height . . . and she made the Junior League and the Vincent Club . . .

This is one side of a story . . . there is another!

If a girl is practically unknown, Daddy must be prepared to spend and spend and SPEND to get her into the social spotlight.

She commences her career in one of the girls' schools noto ultra . . . she must try and make friends with girls who are IN by divine right so-to-speak . . . those whose parents have done it all for them before they take the stork-ride . . .

* * *

Presentation Ball Must Be Costly

ON HER PRESENTATION her ball must be the most costly of all the winter's functions . . . TWO orchestras and champagne! Money, flowers, favors, decorations, everything must be the most lavish that gold can procure. The public expects it . . . society "licks its chops" in anticipation.

Several HUNDRED guests must be invited to the ushers' dinner before the ball . . . in one case the dinner was preceded by a concert with REAL artists at a thousand dollars apiece. A sumptuous supper must be served at midnight, with costly favors for the girls and men; innovations in edibles must appear . . . in one case it was a horse, lifesize, made of various kinds of ice cream.

Around 6 a. m. a bountiful breakfast of scrambled eggs, hot rolls, coffee, brioches, rare marmalades, waffles and maple syrup will appear to send the honorable guests away satisfied for condescending to attend.

* * *

Must Subscribe to All Charities

THIS WILL NOT BY FAR be the ONLY party which Mr. and Mrs. Get-Rich-in-One-Generation must give in order that their little darling may receive her share of the winter's invitations . . . Throughout the entire season they must be ready to give a dinner, a theater-party, a tea, at short notice; subscribe largely to every charity which comes along; send flowers broadcast to every deb who smiles upon their fledgling; theater tickets are only an item. The social horizon must be aglow with the radiance and splendor of their gold . . . the gold standard MUST be maintained.

Christmas in Boston is practically the end of debuts . . . with few exceptions. The Harvard boys are having "mid-years" so the deb folds up and dashes to Paris for the openings and the latest gowns . . . or, she invites a boatload of debs and their boy friends for a fortnight in Bermuda . . . perhaps she has really ascended the social throne and is a member of the Vincent Club. In that case, she will stick around town and get a small part in the annual SHOW . . . her cup is overflowing and she has paid well for her pseudo-popularity.

You ask us how much it costs to bring out a debutante . . . it is PRICELESS!

* * *

Ten of the loveliest debutantes of this winter will model in the fashion show put on by Hickson, Inc., for the Christopher Shop at the Hotel Somerset.

Chatty Notes of Social Circles

MR. AND MRS. SAMUEL HOAR will give a dinner in honor of Miss Constance Babcock and Miss Carol Crocker, debutantes of the season on the last day of November. Among the guests will be Miss Edith Seabury, Miss Katherine Crocker, Mr. Frank Bowditch, Mr. Huntington Thom, Mr. Morton McMichael, Dr. Edward Orlandini, and others. The party will go on to the dance at the Somerset, which has been organized for the benefit of the Free Hospital.

MR. AND MRS. HENRY FLETCHER GODFREY, JR., of Hewlett, Long Island, announce the birth of a son, the second child, to be named William Gray Godfrey, at the Women's Hospital, on Saturday, Nov. 19. Mrs. Godfrey is the former Marie Louise Gray, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Gray of Commonwealth ave. Mrs. Gray has been near her daughter during the last month staying in New York; she is expected back in Boston tomorrow.

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT C. KNOWLES of Cohasset have gone over to New York and are registered at the St. Regis Hotel; Mrs. Frank Jenkins and also Miss Rose Stearns, are booked during their visit in the city.

MR. AND MRS. FRED N. KIMBALL, with their debutante daughter, Miss Leonora Kimball of Swampscott, have taken up their quarters at 282 Beacon st., for the winter months.

Gray Hair

Best Remedy Is Made At Home

To half a pint of water add one ounce bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and one-fourth ounce of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. It imparts color to streaked, faded or gray hair and makes it soft and glossy. Barbo will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

MISS ALICE MERRIAM MAKES HER DEBUT

Chilton Club Is Scene of Luncheon

An important family event take place today at the Chilton Club when about 50 of this year's debutantes attend a luncheon given by Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Weld Gray, of Mt. Vernon st., to introduce their beautiful debutante daughter, Miss Alice Merriam, to society.

Violet Silk Crepe

Miss Merriam who has recently been elected to the Vincent Club received her many guests in a French model of violet silk crepe with Lama sleeves, and gardenias and violets. Her mother presented her in a grey wool crepe gown with matching hat, and corsage of purple orchids.

The young lady has travelled extensively having spent several summers in Europe, and last summer she went across to California for an extended visit with her parents, to her brother, Mr. Charles Merriam motoring back in September to join in the debutante festivities of the season. She studied at the Wheeler school and was graduated from Oldfields in Baltimore.

Out of town guests attending include, Mrs. John Buttrick of Concord and Mrs. John A. Remick of Weston the debutante's maternal aunts, also Miss Margaret Kelly and Miss Eleanor Waterman, both of Providence.

Among Guests

Miss Hope Hubbard and Miss Dorothy Stone, both of Wayland who were presented in the 1931 season are among the guests, also Mrs. Daniel Codman (Laura H. Brewer), the first of this season's debutantes to enter the matrimonial ranks.

Among Miss Merriam's sister debutantes are some of her personal friends, including Miss Elizabeth Blake, Miss Sally Foster, Miss Constance Turner, Miss Rosamond Lockwood, Miss Polly Powers and Miss Nathalie Appleton.

Sale for Benefit of the Blind

A sale is being conducted this week by the Massachusetts division of the Blind at the office of the former Lee Higginson Co., at Clarendon and Boylston sts. Many prominent matrons and members of the younger set are sponsoring and assisting in the sale.

Among the prominent young women in charge of the stalls are Miss Alice Farnsworth, Miss Alice Wood, both debutantes of this season, also Miss Dorothy Bacon, Miss Rose Thorndike, and Miss Marian Damren.

Sponsoring this undertaking are Mrs. Larz Anderson, Mrs. Gaspar G. Bacon, Mrs. John Balch, Mrs. Charles Boyden, Miss Muriel Childs, Mrs. Philip Y. DeNormandie, Mrs. Louis A. Frothingham, Mrs. Dudley B. Fry, Mrs. H. Freeman, Miss Helen L. Jaques, Mrs. Frank W. Knowlton, Mrs. James H. Kennedy, Mrs. William O. S. Little, Mrs. George H. Monks, Mrs. C. Douglas Mercer, Mrs. Louis Rosenbaum, Mrs. George S. Selfridge, Mrs. Leverett Saltonstall, Mrs. Leslie Soule, Mrs. Geoffrey G. Whitney, and Mrs. Storer P. Ware.

ONE OF SOCIETY'S FAIREST DAUGHTERS

MISS BARBARA HODGES, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Davis Hodges, is one of the most popular members of society's younger set and is a regular attendant at all the events conducted for the young folks, and many events have been held for the young people.

Books---And a Number of Interesting Things

By CHARLES HANSON TOWNE

Mary Austin believes that the events of her life are brought into a pattern consistent with the acutest understanding of them. She believes, too, that she has been faithful to the pattern, and it has not disappointed her.

Her long-awaited autobiography is now before us, with the title "Earth Horizon" (Houghton-Mifflin). Once she gets over the seemingly necessary chapters which deal with ancestry, and falls into her steady stride, she achieves a rich and glowing record of the life of a literary woman—a life that has been full of accomplishment and full, also, of failure.

* * *

Early Struggles

Her marriage for example, was a sorry mistake and the one child she brought into the world was tragically ill and had to be placed in a sanitarium. She is as candid about these early years as Mrs. Atherton was in "Adventures of a Novelist," and it is obvious that only the truth is being told. This is an age of few reticences. Mrs. Austin gives us details of her several serious illnesses. She is certain that the power of prayer cured her of cancer; and she is always attentive to a mysterious Voice which guides her and controls her on the way she goes.

Her early struggles were almost unbelievably difficult. When she was but 13 she became a member of the Methodist Church; but she was finally forced to throw off the chain of orthodox religion. Dancing and theatergoing were not sinful to one of her intellect. She could not remain a conformist, bound to any creed.

* * *

She tells her story partly in the third and partly in the first person singular. This robs the writing of any accusation of conceit. When "I" obtrudes we are not offended, and we are engrossed when being told of "Mary" and her reactions to life.

* * *

In those early days in the Middle West Mrs. Austin, then Mary Hunter became interested in the Temperance Movement. She had [illegible] and became the [illegible] W. C. T. U. [illegible] literary ambitions [illegible] our Mary [illegible] child's first [illegible] mother never saw the [illegible] daughter's efforts even [illegible] years when her stories began to appear in the magazine.

No matter what your own convictions may be about the Eighteenth Amendment you must [illegible] and admire Mrs. Austin's vivid picture of our country when [illegible] was arrogantly triumphant and small country towns knew some of the horrors of its influence.

"Somebody [illegible] while there are still [illegible] to the social sequence [illegible] period. What was known as 'hard liquor' begot violence in drinkers and excited what was for the women who made it, a violence of resistance. I remember how it was for the young Cogans with whom I played. I remember a pretty German woman who used to bring her three children to our house to be left until their father recovered from 'one of his spells.'"

Then, with the passion of your true suffragist and reformer Mrs. Austin elaborately states.

* * *

True Reformer

"Past all other possible conclusions, the emphasis from what had begun merely as a Temperance Movement altered to Prohibition primarily because men in numbers insisted on getting drunk. If Prohibition by Constitutional Amendment won't stop it, don't let that deflect your view of the final outcome; some other way will be found."

That is in the nature of a threat from the women, and from one woman of undoubted brains. It is strange to find such a blind spot in anyone after 13 years of Prohibition, just as it is strange to find an ardent feminist complaining: "I have never been taken care of and [illegible] to women [illegible] in the [illegible] consciousness which I am [illegible] rationalize [illegible] it a loss.

Mrs. Austin saw to it that the debts incurred by her husband were paid in full, though it took ten long years to achieve this praiseworthy end. She never married again and one [illegible] blame her for not taking another plunge into wedded life.

Of her life in Carmel Mrs. Austin writes charmingly. She knew George Sterling well [illegible] feared that she and [illegible] would [illegible] off. However when they did meet there was a misunderstanding, and [illegible] to have respected the other's attitude toward Socialism.

* * *

A Born Writer

Out there she played the part of Laela in an amateur performance of her own play, "Fire," with Sterling as her husband. The poet admired her performance and hung about for several days amorously. He wrote me verses that after turned up dedicated to another woman.

* * *

Mrs. Austin was born into this world to be a writer. She read omnivorously when she was a child and her early poetic attempts she speaks of as nothing much. Since then, however, saturated in Indian lore, she has given us both poetry and prose of a high order.

The autobiography is beautiful and rhythmically written. It lacks an ingredient of humor, perhaps but Mrs. Austin is a serious woman who has marched on with a definite purpose and has [illegible]

Arch Preserver Shoes will correct and prevent most ordinary foot troubles. But there are foot troubles where they will do no good. Foot troubles that require the attention of a doctor. When we find you have that kind of a foot condition, we suggest that you consult a good doctor—and then come back to us.

But if you are one of the women who have nothing wrong with their health but feel dead tired all the time, whose arches ache and whose muscles are lame, then Arch Preserver Shoes will give a comfort you never dreamed was possible.

Every Arch Preserver Shoe has the rigid arch, made of light-weight steel to support the body and to keep the arch from sagging or breaking down. The weight is borne easily, naturally and gracefully. The metatarsal support restores the forward arch and smoothes out cramped bones, muscles and nerves. The perfectly flat tread across the ball of the foot provides the natural walking base that Nature intended.

My stocks contain the widest range of sizes and widths. Every Arch Preserver Shoe is fitted by the famous "heel to ball" system insuring that every part of the shoe fits every part of the foot.

Don't endure foot troubles another day. Wear Arch Preserver Shoes. Priced at $8.50, $10.50, $12.50.

That's where the Oriental woman has it all over her emancipated western sisters. In fact it is only in the Orient, where woman does the love making and man lolls calmly back and accepts (or rejects) her frank devotion that woman is really understood.

• • •

[illegible] he expect[illegible] enough of it.

• • •

But the American man, who has always done all the active wooing expects to keep right on doing his own courting—or what remains of it—after marriage. And it's a wise woman who refrains from infringing on what he regards as his "rights" by smothering him with attention.

• • •

He resents being followed around with a hot-water bottle and a questionnaire in the name of "wifely love." He doesn't want a woman hanging around and fussing over him continually. All he asks is that she pick up his pajamas, have his coffee hot, and then read her own mail while he concentrates on his newspaper.

Once in a while he may like to be petted, but seven days a week is too much for him. Five days out of seven a woman's loving [illegible] merely irritate him.

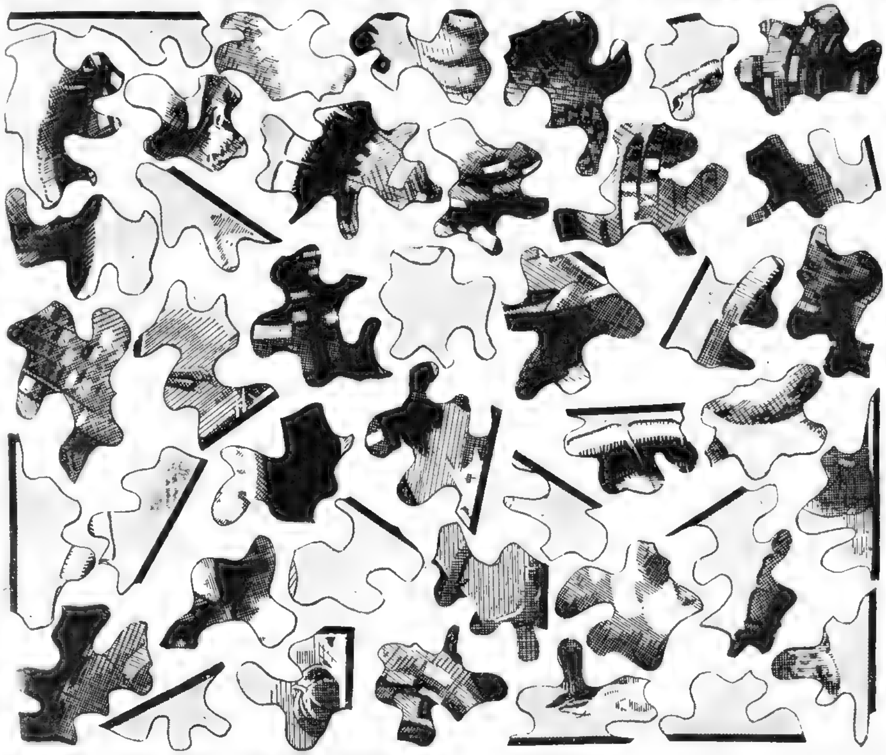
FIFTEEN MINUTES' WORTH OF FUN THANKSGIVING



HERE'S A JIG SAW PUZZLE THAT YOU CAN MAKE! If you do it carefully, you can use it on Thanksgiving day to amuse your guests. The younger ones will think it fun, and without doubt the older ones will insist upon showing the younger ones how to do it. That's the adult's best way of "horning in on the party."

Here are the directions: Cut out the entire square, leaving it whole, and paste it on thin cardboard. You want the puzzle to be stiff enough to handle, but you better be careful not to use cardboard that's too thick, for then you'll not be able to cut out the little pieces.

When you have it all pasted down, press it flat between two books or two flat heavy objects so that the paste will dry without warping the cardboard. Let it get perfectly dry.

Then cut out the pieces EVER SO CAREFULLY. A jig saw puzzle is different from all other puzzles because it has all those odd little "lumps" that have to be fitted together. If you cut the pieces at all carelessly they won't go together and the fun is spoiled.

Now see how quickly you can assemble it. Fifteen minutes should be ample. Perhaps you can do it in less. Tell us how long it took you? We'd like to know.

Normal Tonsils Are Nature's 'Defense'

By DR. R. S. COPELAND

FREQUENTLY I am asked [illegible]

[illegible] certain constitutional disorder.

There are several depressions [illegible] in the tonsil which are called "crypts." These crypts extend into the structure of the tonsil and when infected [illegible] to become [illegible]

[illegible] particles loaded with [illegible] germs may enter these [illegible] which make a fine bed [illegible] for germs. It is not [illegible] before infection of the tissue takes place.

When the tonsils are diseased they may become so enlarged as to obstruct the passage of food. I have seen infected tonsils so big that it was with great difficulty the afflicted person could swallow food or drink.

Tonsilitis, or inflammation of the tonsil, is a common disease. Unfortunately, the disease is so frequently met that its importance is overlooked.

Normally, the tonsils are a part of nature's protective mechanism, a barrier against the invasion of germs, but if diseased they are dangerous to the general health.

Floral Tribute to Deceased Friend

By MRS. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Almost a year ago a boy of whom I was very fond died in a tragic accident. At that time I sent the correct message of sympathy to his parents whom I knew slightly.

I wish on the day of his death to remember Tom's going with flowers. As it is impossible for me to go to his grave, I wish to wire these. Now to whom or how shall they be sent?

Can I send them to Tom's mother? She adored him, but really I doubt if she would know from whom they came and somehow I feel she might want to. Yet, if they were to be placed on the grave she might not know of it. I want to let her feel that others who knew Tom share her sorrow. He was wonderful.

READER

I have a plan for your sending the flowers which I hope may meet your approval. This is to send two boxes of flowers, duplicates, one to be telegraphed to the sexton of the cemetery, the other to be sent to the mother. Then enclosed in the box of flowers to be sent to the mother you could explain, quite easily and naturally, that you have sent a similar box of flowers to the grave.

Of course, my dear friend, she would wish to know that her son's friend "remembered" this will be her high comfort on this sad anniversary. And I do think that if you take this way of telling her and of comforting her, she will appreciate it. Don't you?

Gene Tunney Writes -:- "A MAN MUST FIGHT" 'THREE WOMEN' By Faith Baldwin

SYNOPSIS

The author [illegible] has related the [illegible] and significant incidents of his [illegible] career that date back to boyhood [illegible] [illegible] in his teens, the winning of the A. E. F. [illegible] crown when [illegible] Marines in France and [illegible] title to America through a [illegible] decision over Battling Levinsky. Four months later, Gene lost that crown to Harry Greb [illegible] [illegible]. After a few weeks [illegible] Tunney lines up for a return bout by boxing Charley Weinert, Tommy Loughran, Chuck Wiggins and Fay Kaiser. The latter and Tunney are in action as the author resumes the story. Gene's just complained to the referee that Kaiser has been "butting"; Tunney, in turn, is pretending to stick his thumb in Kaiser's [illegible]

Fitzpatrick having [illegible] Hanlon [illegible] experience [illegible] see the fight. On the way over [illegible] [illegible] my mind the [illegible] that Hanlon had [illegible] me.

When the fight started I was naturally in a more or less angry frame of mind. I skipped out of my corner [illegible] of [illegible] revenge. Hanlon upon getting within [illegible] speaking [illegible] [illegible] "Take it easy." I [illegible] at him wondering if [illegible] was [illegible] Levinsky [illegible] I took no chances and [illegible] any punches. The match lasted one-half minute. I do not believe I ever hit anybody harder. [illegible] was not seen around [illegible] for several [illegible] [illegible] a broken jaw.

WAS BRUTAL SHOW

This experience [illegible] not prove beneficial. For [illegible] a [illegible] [illegible] of Hanlon lying on the floor, blood oozing from his mouth and his lower jaw broken haunted me.

Somebody in authority, either the boxing commission or the promoter, should never have allowed this match to take place. Hanlon, though he had been a fairly good heavyweight in his day, had not been in the ring for over a year. He was not a fit opponent for an active fighter. Just because Hanlon wanted to fight me was no reason why he should have been given the match. This is the kind of thing that occasionally arises in boxing, and next to thugs managing fighters gives boxing the biggest black eye. Until professional boxing stops exhibitions of this kind it cannot be considered a true sport.

There is nothing more pathetic or unsporting than to see the remnants of what was once an effective, capable fighter being battered around the [illegible] [illegible] having [illegible] desires to [illegible] record of [illegible]

It was just four months earlier that Weinert and I had [illegible] Newark [illegible] instructions, my manager agreed to [illegible] to the [illegible] referee [illegible] [illegible] I had to [illegible] men that night.

However, I had the [illegible] of [illegible] Weinert [illegible] of the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] to [illegible] head first on the platform [illegible] of the ring.

Lewis, in a conversation subsequent to the second match with Weinert, said "Gene, I hope you won't hold that first Weinert fight against me. You know Charlie is my pal and dammit, I would do anything to help him." I liked Lewis' frankness.

Weinert [illegible] cleverest heavyweight developed in the last twenty-five years. He had amazing speed and [illegible] too. His left jab was [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] than the cheers of [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

CHANGES MANAGERS

Following [illegible] I became [illegible] [illegible] with Doc Bagley [illegible] [illegible] on [illegible] Some kind of [illegible] [illegible] had to be made about cancelling it. I was searching for what I [illegible] would be the ideal arrangement between boxer and manager.

I [illegible] afraid I was [illegible] [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] was in all [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] have papered my den with default [illegible] [illegible] endorsement.

[illegible] I [illegible] [illegible] I went [illegible] [illegible] of the Avon A. C. Joe had [illegible] around a good deal and was [illegible] [illegible] I was [illegible] [illegible] I met and [illegible] [illegible] made a great [illegible] on me. He [illegible] [illegible] I agreed to box [illegible] management from [illegible] contracts for a period of [illegible] were drawn and [illegible] [illegible] was very [illegible] and [illegible] about the [illegible] managing boxers, though [illegible] thoroughly understood boxing [illegible] He stood out as the most prominent man in professional sports in America at that time. He was a most lovable character and on [illegible] a friend very rarely lost [illegible] friendship.

From the moment I [illegible] I retired from the ring [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] friends and had natural regard for each other.

That much talked-of Tunney-Renault "no contest," a tribute to Harry Greb, and arrangements for a return match with him will be high lights in tomorrow's instalment of "A Man Must Fight." Be sure and see that Gene thinks of the cheap chicane of tricky fight managers and seconds.

Daily True Story

Voice From the Grave

MRS. AUDREY KELLY gazed long and meticulously at the body. It was swollen and ghastly. The authorities told her it had lain nearly a week in the water.

"Yes, it's my William," she muttered at last. "It's his features and I recognize that mole on his right shoulder. It is a mole, isn't it? And William also had a gold cap in the back of his mouth. I'm sure it's my William."

Then Mrs. Kelly gave way to [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] the widow [illegible] for a proper burial.

In due time the insurance companies were notified and the widow received [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] neighborhood stationery store.

Gradually as time wore on her grief subsided. In her sentimental and more confessional moments she would enlarge upon the tragedy of widowhood and recite all the grim details of her visit to the morgue and her recognition of her husband's body. The story passed from mouth to mouth until the entire neighborhood knew it.

MARRIES AGAIN

But in general the widow reverted to her old pleasant self. She had a sunny disposition and a kind soul. No sooner was the remembrance period over and proper respect paid to the departed when she began to take an interest in those who lounged in her little store.

And long [illegible] she had married again and she and Tom Lonergan drew a [illegible] [illegible] of the little store that had been established out of the first husband's insurance money.

The neighborhood was [illegible] [illegible] with the increase of population [illegible] competition. Another stationery store had opened and was slashing prices to attract trade. Mrs. Lonergan met her competitor's [illegible]

"I have saved a bit and my husband can find a job and I will give them measure for measure," said the aroused ex-widow. But she didn't figure on the devious ways of mankind.

Ugly rumors began to filter [illegible] that Mr. William Kelly was not dead at all. He had merely run away, having grown tired of domestic [illegible] His wife knew he would never [illegible] [illegible] took advantage of the situation. She identified the body of some vagrant as that of her missing husband. That enabled her to get the insurance and to marry again.

UGLY RUMORS

The implications, of course, were even worse. It meant that the former Mrs. Kelly had been guilty of taking false oath, of filching from the insurance companies and of committing bigamy, and of burying the wrong man in a plot of ground next to which her own body eventually would lie.

Like all gossip, the buzzing never reached either Mrs. Lonergan or her husband. She began to note an unwarranted falling off in patronage. She wore her accustomed smile and strove to appear as cheerful as ever. But the deserting customers attributed her disposition to another of her [illegible] and called it [illegible]

[illegible] Someone had [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Mrs. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] into contradic[illegible]

Several weeks passed [illegible] [illegible] excitement [illegible] Lonergans wondered how long they would be able to keep [illegible]

Then one day Lonergan prepared a huge sign and pasted it [illegible] window. The sign read:

TO OUR FRIENDS AND NEIGHBORS
PLEASE LOOK READ

[illegible] under these huge words was a letter, typewritten on [illegible]

"Dear Mrs. Lonergan: After a thorough investigation we feel it our duty to apologize for the unpleasantness our agents may have caused you. We have located an eye-witness to the tragedy that cost your husband's life and are convinced that your identification was honest and truthful.

"Again may we ask your pardon for any and all inconveniences we may have caused you."

PATRONS RETURN

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

"I'd like to get my hand on whoever started that slander," exclaimed Mr. Lonergan, "and there'd be another widow—or maybe widower."

"Well," replied one of the returning patrons, "whoever did it—you will have your revenge. Everybody is coming back here—and not a soul will visit your competitor."

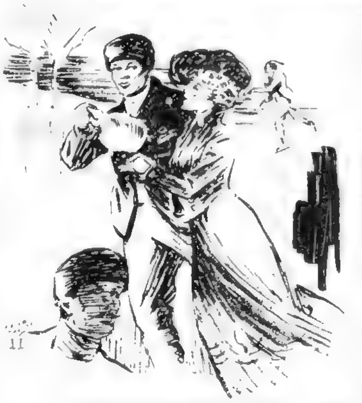
Lennox Grows Closer to Elizabeth

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

The first of the THREE WOMEN, Mrs. Louise [illegible] Sheldon, wealthy widow, idolizes her only child Lennox, who is now, in the early part of this century, a [illegible] student. She is obsessed with his [illegible] fearful lest he become the good fellow type his father was. The latter had died when the boy was nine years old. The mother makes every effort to safeguard her son's morals. He lives at home when going to college and is not allowed to have a latchkey. His old nurse secretly provides him with one. He attends a merry student party and tiptoes into his house after 2 a. m. [illegible] his mother's door opens suddenly and she starts questioning the tired youth. She learns of his night [illegible] and decides that he must be married to be saved. She invites a distant relative, Elizabeth, to visit her.



When they skated together how she laughed, how rosy she grew.

BLONDE HAIR

His first impression of her was [illegible] small heart-shaped face which [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] that looked into yours momentarily and were then veiled with slow white lids and thick, theatrically dark lashes.

After the eyes he noticed her hair. It was very blonde, ashen as [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] fashion, no [illegible]

It was tea time. Mrs. Sheldon had adhered to the English custom. Elizabeth dropped a biscuit, almost broke a cup, was in agonies of strangeness, shyness, wished her[illegible]

The trip, she thought, had been exciting. She'd never been as far [illegible] Cousin Louisa's maid had been [illegible]

[illegible] and then shrank from the echoes from the unfamiliar shapes of the furniture, bulking blackly in the room.

Lennox. Somehow he seemed the only real thing in the house. Henrietta Van Dusen wasn't real, the [illegible]

[illegible] Lennox was doing [illegible] mind before Elizabeth came, the time Elizabeth had the grippe [illegible] or saw —

She fitted so into the general [illegible] [illegible] comrades; how they were shy again.

Louisa watched them grimly. She said to herself, "It will be as I thought." Almost she despised, not the children themselves, but old, [illegible] [illegible] in her angry satisfaction.

AWAKENESS OF LOVE

[illegible] from Central [illegible] lands. [illegible] afterward [illegible] and [illegible] It was Elizabeth [illegible] palpitant [illegible] excitement. Lennox, to whom Hyde Park was no more than Central, found himself looking at conventional portions of Europe through new enchanted eyes, her eyes. He had been so often since his childhood he had [illegible] wonder in [illegible] But he did.

The previous summer had been spent at a staid hotel in the Adirondacks. That had been adventure enough for her, Elizabeth thought.

Now she knew that adventure was only beginning.

KNOW THIS
When You Go to Buy Aspirin
and Want to Get Rid of Pain Quickly

IN 2 SECONDS BY STOP WATCH
A Genuine BAYER Aspirin Tablet Starts to Disintegrate and Go to Work

Drop a Bayer Aspirin Tablet into a Glass of Water.

By the time It Hits the Bottom of the Glass It's Disintegrating

What Happens in These Glasses— Happens in Your Stomach

Because of This Quick Dissolving Property, Genuine BAYER Aspirin Tablets Start "Taking Hold" of Pain a few Minutes after Taking

If you have a headache or any other common form of pain—rheumatism, neuritis, or neuralgia—you want to get rid of it as fast as possible—and in absolute safety.

Then—the first thing to know is this:

Never ask for aspirin by the name "aspirin" alone. But always say "BAYER ASPIRIN."

For what happens in those glasses happens in your stomach.

Because of a unique process in manufacture, Genuine Bayer Aspirin Tablets begin to dissolve almost INSTANTLY in the stomach. They start to disintegrate within the amazing space of two seconds after touching moisture.

Hence Genuine Bayer Aspirin "takes hold" of the average pain or headache within a few minutes after taking. The fastest, safe relief, it is said, ever known for pain.

Remember, it is Genuine Bayer Aspirin which lays claim to this unique quick-acting property.

So be sure you get the Real Article—GENUINE BAYER Aspirin when you buy. Naturally you want the fastest, possible relief—and that's the way to get it.

The sure, safe way is to see that the name BAYER is clearly stamped, in the form of a cross, on any tablet that you take.

Keep that in mind when you buy. Carry in mind, too, that Genuine Bayer Aspirin Does Not Harm the Heart.

For Pocket or Purse Tin Boxes of 12 Tablets

For Economy, Bottles of 24 or 100 Tablets

- ¼ cup cream

[illegible] Moisten [illegible] lightly [illegible]

OYSTER DRESSING

- ¼ cup milk
- ½ cup melted butter
- 3 cups bread crumbs (soft)
- 1 pt. oysters
- 2½ tsps. salt
- ½ tsp. pepper

CELERY DRESSING

- 3 cups bread cubes
- 2 tbsps. chopped onion
- 1 cup celery, chopped
- ¼ cup melted fat
- About ½ cup stock or milk
- Salt, pepper, paprika, sage or poultry seasoning to taste

[illegible] sauteed mushrooms, chopped olives, [illegible] chopped cooked giblets, hard cooked eggs, or oysters cooked in milk, or a combination of two or more of these ingredients.

Add liquid to moisten. The exact amount will depend on the dryness of the bread. It is best to allow the mixture to stand for half an hour [illegible] the bread [illegible] throughout. [illegible] seasonings to taste.

SAUSAGE DRESSING

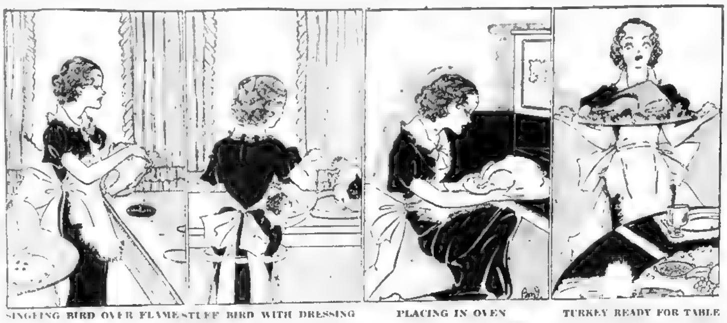
- 1 small minced onion
- 1 cup minced mushrooms
- 6 cups cooked rice
- 1 tsp. salt
- 2 tsps. chopped parsley

HERE'S HOW TO PREPARE YOUR THANKSGIVING TURKEY



SINGEING BIRD OVER FLAME — STUFF BIRD WITH DRESSING — PLACING IN OVEN — TURKEY READY FOR TABLE

[illegible] You and a turkey does not wear a birth-band on his leg [like so]me canaries — so that we [can] be sure the bird we choose [is betwee]n six months and a year [old]. Older birds are apt to be tough, with dry flesh and poor flavor. But we can do a little detective work about our bird's age. Young turkeys have smooth black feet [illegible] the bird so today let's consider the actual roasting. I like a covered roaster for a turkey. I lay the critter on its back in the roaster and place a few strips of salt pork over the breast. Or you may prefer to brush her (since a hen turkey is always the more tender), all over with butter and then dust with seasoned flour. This keeps the flesh moist.

Preheat your oven 15 minutes, at 500, and pop the bird in, uncovered, and with no water in the pan. After 30 minutes the breast should be a rich brown. Add a cup of water to the pan and clap on the cover, with the vent closed, and roast at 375 deg. until tender. It should take about 20 to 25 minutes to the pound, depending on the bird's birthday. If you use an open roaster, baste every 15 minutes.

The giblet should be simmering in a saucepan and when tender is chopped ready to add to the rich brown gravy. For this pour off all the fat from the pan, after the roasted turkey has been transferred to a hot platter. Measure 6 tbsps. of fat and put in the roaster with 6 tbsps. of flour. Add ¾ tsp. salt and ¼ tsp. pepper and stir until smooth. Add 4 cups of cold water and stir constantly until smooth, scraping the rich brown coloring matter from the bottom of the pan. Let simmer 10 minutes and add the chopped giblets, saving some of the plain gravy for the finicky few who prefer it plain.

- 1 cup diced celery
- 1 slightly beaten egg

MUSHROOM STUFFING

- 1 pkg. mushrooms
- ½ cup crisp bacon cubes
- ¼ cup (approximately) stock
- 1 tbsp. clear bacon fat
- 1 tbsp. finely chopped onion
- 1-3 tsp. dried celery leaves
- ½ tsp. parsley
- 3 cups bread cubes

Cut mushrooms in quarters and saute 2 minutes. Cook bacon until crisp and brown and drain from the fat. Brown the onion in the clear bacon fat, add other ingredients and stuff the duck lightly.

Pies That Please for the Big Day

Everything all set for the great day except the pie? And you would like that to be "different" and still not too far away from the traditional varieties?

PECAN PIE

Work ½ cup butter until creamy, add ½ cup sugar, ⅓ cup white corn syrup, ½ cup maple corn syrup and 3 beaten eggs. Mix well, add 1 cup pecan nut meats broken in pieces and 1 tsp. vanilla. Pour into an 8-inch baked pie shell and bake one hour or until knife point comes out clean in a moderate oven, 325-350 Deg. F.

CALIFORNIA MINCE PIE

- 1 cup dried apricots
- 1 cup dried prunes
- 1 cup raisins
- ½ cup citron, chopped
- 1 orange (juice)
- ½ tsp. ground cinnamon
- ½ tsp. nutmeg
- ¼ tsp. cloves
- ½ cup walnuts, chopped
- ½ cup almonds, chopped
- 1 cup sugar
- Pastry

Pour boiling water over the apricots and prunes. Drain, cover with cold water and let stand three hours. Cooking a Duck Requires Art

If it's to be duck, remember it has less meat in proportion to its weight than does turkey or chicken. It's wise to allow one 4 to 6-lb. duck for every four persons. The skin is oily and sometimes dirty and should be scrubbed well with warm water and baking soda, or even soap. Then wipe dry inside and out. Here are the rest of the duck details:

ROAST DUCK

Dress, clean, stuff and truss the duck. Steam over boiling water 1½ hours. Place on rack in open roaster. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and roast at 450 F., allowing 12 to 15 minutes to the pound, basting every five minutes with the fat in the pan or orange juice. Add 1 cup orange juice to the usual gravy.

PEANUT STUFFING FOR DUCK

- 2 cups cracker crumbs
- 1½ cups ground peanuts
- 1 cup hot milk
- 3 tbsps. finely chopped parsley
- 1 tsp. salt
- Pinch of white pepper
- 4 tbsps. finely chopped onion

ORANGE STUFFING FOR DUCK

- 3 cups dried bread crumbs
- 1 cup diced apples
- ½ cup seedless raisins
- 2-3 cup orange juice
- ¼ cup melted butter
- Salt and pepper
- 4 tbsps. sugar

Mix ingredients in order given and season to taste with salt and pepper. A little more or less liquid may be needed, depending on the dryness of the crumbs. Garnish the duck with watercress or parsley and with sections of orange dipped in a thick sugar syrup. Serve with the duck an orange sauce made by adding ½ cup of strained orange juice to two cups of gravy.

FRESHEST PORK is Branded

The branding on every loin . . . .
"NEW ENGLAND DRESSED FRESH PORK" tells a story. It means it's FRESHEST—different from just fresh pork. For just as sweet corn is better when strictly fresh, so too is PORK sweeter, more tender and juicier when delivered to your dealer within 24 hours after cutting.

FRESHEST Pork comes from corn-fed porkers selected by our own buyers in the grain-belt of the Middle West, brought on alive and dressed right here in New England.

PLAY FLAWLESSLY ACTED

"The Chillingtons" Premiere Reveals Not a Weak Link in Its Toiling Personnel

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

There should always be a grain of sympathy for the plodding author who writes desperately, and honestly, and still remains unconvincing. H. Campbell-Duncan's "The Chillingtons" had its world premiere at the Hollis last evening. It was acted by an all-English company, which turned itself into a three-act demonstration of the futility of morals and the sublime royalty of crime and disorder. The Chillingtons were a bad lot; their companions equally vicious and their butler an ex-convict with a passion for stealth and safe-cracking.

* * *

Even those members of the family that had escaped imprisonment had their moments of evil thought and criminal desire. Chillington returns from a two-year stretch to find his wife the mistress of a pompous British major, and viewed the matter with serene indifference. An unexpected [illegible] brought a fellow crook into the comfortable English country home. Mutual recognition resulted only in the midnight marauder's being taken into the family as a week-end guest. And then there was the pretty daughter, who loved to be known as a wildcat and who finally, in none too subtle fashion, begged that guest to seduce her. That was her notion of a woman's place in the world. And these were the people who, for more than two hours bickered and quibbled, made nasty observations, connived at more crime and openly boasted of their sins.

Leo G. Carroll

* * *

Whatever the author had overlooked in dramatic substance—and the play was as thin as tissue—he made up in crisp dialogue, which at first tickled your ears and raised your hopes for brighter things to come. But this promise was dashed. A spirited and wholly enlivening first act gave way to conventional drawing room situations in which talk was cheap and, therefore, always in good working order. In spite of its gross improbabilities, "The Chillingtons" did reveal quiet humors, amiably presented by an excellent group of players. These humors were not what you could designate as robust, but they did make themselves clear to an amused audience. They concerned, chiefly, sins of the past and expectations of broader fields of operation in the future.

* * *

The play's presentation was flawless. There was no weak spot in its working personnel and the direction by Leo G. Carroll was as near perfect as these things can ever hope to be. Mr. Carroll played Chillington with a thoroughness that defied question; there was convincing authority in every spoken line, in every gesture. But he was not a solitary figure in the evening's artistic delights. He needed help of course and he got it without stint. Viola Roache, who has been something of a local institution in stock organizations, more than held her own in the give-and-take banter which kept the play [illegible]. She won the admiration of many devoted subjects who crowded the Hollis to give her welcome. And none of it was undeserved. Others in the cast whose talents shed a warm glow upon tawdry events were Joan Carr, a sweet youngster who hoped to go wrong, John Buckler who no more than met her half-way, Hannam Clark, merely a butler but gifted with the solution of safe lock combinations, and John Dunn, who put a deft touch to the most brazen of the night's immoralities.

* * *

"The Chillingtons" must be placed in the records as just another satire on crime. Its novelty was the downright willfulness of so many apparently nice people who ought to have known better. But there was always present the quality of good acting, which, it so often appears, is an old English custom.

The Cast

Emil Jannings' Acting Is Superb in "Tempest" at Fine Arts

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

Any great movie is a precious gem. A Jannings film is a pearl without price. A tingling screen cries out the rare news—Emil the Magnificent is come to town. He is to be seen at the Fine Arts, in "Tempest," and the silver sheet is eloquent with his work, and shimmering with the crystal sheen of an exceedingly good talkie. There is one sequence that isn't equalled by anything since Jeanne Eagels appeared in "The Letter," and Jannings' acting throughout is about the best since the microphone ended the absolute sovereignty of the cameras.

* * *

"Tempest" is an underworld drama, given outstanding excellence by the effort of its performers plus the technique of the director. It is German made, its [illegible] "Stuerme der Leidenschaft" [illegible] dialogue is German but frequent superimposed captions make its speech clear. As a matter of fact Jannings and his coworkers are artists, they are masters of pantomime. So the theme flows smooth; no talking picture we recall is as pleasing to the ear and less strident.

Emil Jannings

"Tempest" is as smooth as an easy-running stream. It intrigues because the old silent values are used extensively; one is held tense by its action, and often thrilled by its drama.

Analyzed, the plot is familiar; seen and heard, it has the newness of life, with a tremendous "kick" to it. The lenses whirl and swing. Some of its big scenes are matchless; for instance, the slaying of the "moll's" first lover. He is hurled from a window into a pool whose surface is reflecting the fireworks of the nearby carnival. There are other sequences wherein Jannings is the old Merlin of his art, skilled to bite deep into the spectators' interest and hearts. His crook is done to perfection; he is human, the arch criminal, but with a lighter side, and a philosophy of his own that combines ignorance and wisdom, comedy and satire. It is Jannings at his best, gripping always. And sometimes amusing, to relieve the tension of his swift, strong characterization.

Nothing out of Hollywood along the gangster line equals this picture. Its realism is incisive, its characters are all alive. Woman's love is made the bone of contention; it is down to primitive emotions, with no theatrics. There is restraint, the portraits mirror life. Anna Sten, as the girl in the case, is as distinctly a "find" as was Marlene Dietrich, better looking, she has the Dietrich ability, plus another point or two.

"Tempest" has Jannings, and that in itself means its coming is an event.

Exeter Theater

Harold Lloyd in "Movie Crazy," and Irene Dunne and Ricardo Cortez in "13 Women," are the attractions for today and tomorrow at the Exeter. The last half of the week Lee Tracy and Evelyn Knapp will be seen in "The Night Mayor." Marion Davies in "Blondie of the Follies" will also be shown.

Talent and Beauty A
in One Package

Comedy on the Heels of Song

The Old Howard has a snappy new burlesque show with the comedy of Harry Myers making [illegible] among [illegible] Helen [illegible] Eve [illegible] Peaches [illegible] for fight fans. In the vaudeville bill are Foster and Van and Honan and Arden.

The talkies are "Tom Brown of Culver" and Tim McCoy in "Two Fisted Law." There are two midnight shows this week, one tomorrow and one on Friday night.

Vaudeville

The Scollay this week features a colorful stage show. Starting Friday it will celebrate its 19th [illegible] introducing Fanchon and Marco's "International [illegible]"

[illegible] presents [illegible] of a [illegible] water [illegible] the [illegible] known as "Pi[illegible] of the Sea." This is an [illegible] young men who toss [illegible] about with the [illegible] would in juggling rubber balls.

Viola Rudell and Edward Dunigan use a comedy skit "Such Is Life" to prove that it is a great life. Hal Neiman as "The Vagabond Rover" has parodies on popular songs.

The Three Dukes hang one another around in knockabout fashion. The Marie and Antoinette Revue, featuring Daisy Berner, Bobby Moss and Veres Dean completes the bill.

LIGHT COMEDY PLEASES

Violet Kemble Cooper Romps Off With the Major Honors in 'No Money to Guide Her'

By HARRIS MORGAN

Mrs. Malaprop has come to life again, providing Violet Kemble Cooper with a role in which [illegible] "No Money to Guide Her," a new comedy that opened at the Wilbur last night. It was a good house in numbers, and one that was responsive to the humors of the Romney Brent piece. The audience found the fun enjoyable in all three acts.

* * *

Miss Cooper is the madcap mother of three children, of whom the girl is the sole worrier about food and the future. English born and bred the family is occupying a chateau in France. Ma not only mixes her words and metaphors but has the comicalest way of taking things wrong [illegible] with good effect on the funny-bone. Once, during the war, at a [illegible] to the [illegible] ambassador when toasting the Czar she made it "Hoch der Kaiser," whereat her hubby had an apoplectic fit and died "in the soup"—right at the banquet board. So on through life she goes, willy-nilly, shilly-shally, foolish and wasteful. A hopeless and helpless lady and somewhat [illegible]

Violet Kemble Cooper

* * *

Her two sons are as shiftless, the daughter is making a strike [illegible] when the sheriff is at the door, the proverbial wolf was there ahead of him. But the resourceful stranger in the gates finds the way to hold off the arm of the law; and he gets down to menial jobs on the place, bosses the lady of the manor about, and falls in love with the daughter of course.

* * *

It is frothily light comedy, but very diverting. There are two good reasons, Mr. Brent's lines, and the way they are handled. There is just the one set for the trio of acts; and the merriment is heartiest when the folks crowd in, all goodnaturedly condoning the modern Mrs. Malaprop's frailties of brain and manner. Much is unbelievable, such as her descent to low methods to beat her maid out of money, but art slides over the rough spots quite neatly. And one laughs, and laughs.

Miss Cooper is the life of the [illegible] she makes it all credible and mirth provoking. For the rest youth is dominant; and the young folks are quite capable [illegible] Wyatt [illegible] Roy Hewitt [illegible] O'Malley are just as [illegible] as the three children.

The title is a weak point for this vehicle; why not call it "Mrs. Malaprop Plus"—or just "Madcap Ma."

Noon Brunch Is Her Favorite

Brunch, blend of late breakfast and lunch, is the favorite meal of Tallulah Bankhead [illegible]

"I prefer entertaining my friends at a noon brunch rather than the formal eight o'clock dinner," Miss Bankhead explained. "And what is more I believe my friends like it better too."

A typical Tallulah Bankhead brunch might include such dishes as chilled honey dew melon, poached eggs with chicken livers, a platter of bacon and breakfast sausages, waffles with strawberries and syrup, toast and biscuits, honey and raspberry jam, a platter of fried chicken and coffee.

The adventures of "Sinbad the Sailor" by Tony Sarg's Marionettes will be presented at Tremont Temple on Friday and Saturday [illegible] on both days.

UNEMPLOYMENT SIGNS LONG IGNORED

By B. C. FORBES

New York, Nov. 22—Neither American statesmen nor American ind[illegible] in preparing to cope with unemployment. No superhuman wisdom was necessary to see during our boom that unemployment would inevitably become [illegible] major problem.

As long ago as [illegible] column warned:

"Those of us who have steady jobs may be inclined to bother little about unemployment . . . Many different steps probably would be necessary to solve the problem in anything like a permanent way. Shorter working hours might conceivably help . . . How to raise the purchasing power of the people to a point permitting of the buying and consuming of all that can be produced comes very near being the crux of the problem."

In April, 1929, when the boom was booming merrily, this column again directed attention to the prevalence of unemployment and this comment was added:

"If this condition exists during a period when American prosperity is held up as the envy of the world, what conditions are likely to arise when the business pendulum swings away from prosperity towards depression" . . . If industry refuses to lend a hand toward supporting its human casualties, upon whom will or should the burden fall? It cannot fall upon the workers themselves if they have neither work nor employment.

"In my humble opinion no more vital question faces America than how to guide our economic evolution (or revolution) so as to take care of those injured, at least temporarily, by it . . . If industry doesn't tackle the probem, lawmakers will."

CO-OPERATION URGED

The following month it was emphasized that:

"Our rapidly developing efficiency, our wholesale installation of labor-saving machinery, our expanding utilization of electric power in industry, our creation of huge corporations, our colossal consolidations are all fine and wonderful and desirable—except for those thrown out of employment. The co-operation and co-ordination most urgently needed today are co-operation and co-ordination to take care of these individuals and families sacrificed by our industrial and financial co-operation and co-ordination."

"Instead of laying off workers, employers should distribute the work among all, should the need arise for reducing total payrolls. Short hours are better than no hours. Some pay is better than no pay.

"It still remains true that American industry has not yet sufficiently shouldered responsibility for doing everything within its power through nationwide co-operation and co-ordination, to bring about steadier employment. Until industrial and other leaders get together and work earnestly and conscientiously toward this end, the major economic problem confronting the nation will remain unsolved . . . Man doesn't exist for industry. Industry exists for man."

AMASSING FORTUNES

Our bankers, our leaders, our industrialists, our capitalists were too engrossed in schemes for making money during the boom to give proper thought to the peril the country was running toward. Each leader was bent upon amassing a fortune while the amassing was good. No concerted national effort was made to plan for the day of reckoning which loomed inescapably ahead.

Not until quite recently was an [illegible] co-operative effort made to put idle workers back to work. The recommendation made by this column three years ago to spread employment, to share work, is now vigorously under way, led energetically and capably by Walter C. Teagle. Of course part-time employment and part-time pay are not as desirable as full-time employment and full-time pay. But such an arrangement is preferable to giving a limited number of workers full-time work and full-time pay and forcing other millions of workers to go without any work and without any pay.

HARDWARE HAS GOOD DEMAND

New York, Nov. 22—While current hardware buying is in moderate volume the demand is of a steady character. There are no indications that trade will fall back toward the lows of last summer, Hardware Age will say tomorrow in its market summary. Instead, it is generally believed that further gradual progress toward recovery will be made during the months immediately ahead. The seasonal increase in the demand for hardware has been greater than anticipated, and is expected to continue right up to the close of the year.

Factories producing toys, stove goods, range oil burners and some types of housewares have been swamped under an avalanche of orders. Many such plants are operating on 24-hour schedules seven days per week in an attempt to make reasonably prompt deliveries.

The recent [illegible] in basic commodity prices gives evidence that buyer hesitation may soon be broken in some markets as both wholesalers and retailers are carrying inventories substantially lighter than those of former years and supposedly inadequate to meet any long [illegible] demand.

Grains Are Lower in Chicago Market

Chicago, Nov. 22 (AP)—Grains averaged lower in price today, influenced by new downturns in British exchange and by bearish aspects of the European debt situation. Acting as an offset, however, were [illegible] reports from Argentina.

Opening unchanged to [illegible] down, wheat afterward declined further, but then rallied. Corn started at a shade setback to [illegible] advance, sagged somewhat and later scored gains.

Directors Call Off Dividend on Zonite

New York, Nov. 22 (AP)—Zonite Products Corporation today omitted quraterly dividend of 15 cents a share on the capital stock. A statement by directors said the company earned 62 cents a share for the first three quarter of 1932 compared with 93 cents for the same period of last year. However, it was deemed adviseable to take no action at this time because earnings are not sufficiently in excess of dividend requirements to warrant payment.

Failures' Total Shows a Decrease

Commercial failures in the United States the past week numbered 480, against 495 in the previous week and 588 in the like 1931 week, according to R. G. Dun & Co.

Interest Rates Drop

Chicago, Nov. 22 (US)—Chicago Clearing House Association bankers voted today to change the interest of savings deposits from 3 per cent to 2½ per cent, effective Jan. 1.

BOSTON STOCKS MOVE HIGHER

Share prices reversed the early trend in today's dealings on the Boston Stock Exchange and late trading found gains of a point or more ruling. Gas shares continued soft with the inactive Boston & Maine D stamped jumping more than 7 points. Atchison showed a fractional gain while Pennsylvania eased a fraction. New Haven was up slightly.

Volume of Radio Sales Is Lowered

New York, Nov. 22 (AP)—While independent radio manufacturers listened in with considerable satisfaction to the announcement that Radio Corporation of America will be divorced from General Electric and the Westinghouse Electric & Mfg. Co., most of them were of the opinion that sales as well as suits are of importance just now.

Owing to business conditions statistical observers estimate that the industry's sales and dollar volumes for 1932 will be off somewhere around 30 per cent.

Stanley Co. Shows Loss of $1,715,333

Stanley Co. of America (over 99 per cent of whose stock is owned by Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc.) in report certified by independent auditors for year ended Aug. 27 shows net loss of $1,745,333 after interest, depreciation, minority interest, etc., against net profit of $1,711,254 a year before.

Oil Output Shows Drop for the Week

RAIL EARNINGS TO MAKE GOOD SHOWINGS

By FRANK H. MELOON

Latest report of car loadings was [illegible] sharp decline deflecting the inclusion of both Armistice Day and Election Day as well as the normal seasonal tendency. The earlier figures showed some pleasing spurts of traffic in the past month and nearing earnings reports can therefore be depended on to make a good showing which many think the carriers will not ignore marketwise.

Aviation shares have been much in the stock market limelight during recent weeks, largely as a result of the interesting battle of E. L. Cord for control of one of the major companies. There have also been good reports of increases in passenger travel for the outstanding air lines. Now comes Clarence Chamberlin, famed transatlantic flyer, with plans for a new Boston-Providence-New York air line. Mr. Chamberlin intends to employ Lockheed planes with a speed of 200 miles an hour. The planes are reported as already ordered although the lately reorganized Lockheed outfit has not yet resumed construction activities.

U. S. Department of Commerce today announced that from January through June this year a total of 217,588 passengers were carried over scheduled air transport lines, against 169,816 for the like 1931 period. During the third quarter of the current year 164,583 passengers were carried. Comparable figures are not given for the same 1931 quarter.

Supervisor Austin H. Williams of the forest service of the state of Maine tells me:

"The cut of Christmas trees in Maine for 1931 was approximately 4,000,000 threes. From advance estimates it is figured that approximately 3,500,000 trees will be cut in the Pine Tree State for 1932."

* * *

"A decided movement back to the trolleys is reported in a number of cities. Traffic and depression are jointly responsible. It has become virtually impossible to find free parking space in congested areas—day or evening. Consequently many car owners prefer to travel via street car. Also auto dealers are finding it increasingly difficult to sell large cars. The situation is quickly grasped when you figure that a private auto transports an average of two persons, compared with 60 on a trolley."

* * *

Since Aug. 27, however, there has been no evidence of any movement back to the trolleys. We can even say we saw none at that time. The actual figures on traction transportation since Aug. 27 have sadly quite upset the notion that the trolleys were winning back travel. With less automotive travel, it is also hard to find evidence that parking congestion has increased. When some of the burdensome taxes now levied in various forms, have been lifted from the automotive world as urged by Secretary of Commerce Roy D. Chapin, there may be a revival of the congested area problem, and we all hope it comes soon.

Dayton Rubber Has Unit Sales Gain

Dayton, O., Nov. 22—Unit sales of tires and tubes of the Dayton Rubber Co. for the quarter to end January 31 will show a gain over the like period last year, Pres. J. A. MacMillan states.

Sales of fan belts to the motor industry also will be ahead for the quarter, Mr. MacMillan stated. Dayton Rubber supplies 85 per cent of the industry with fan belts.

Zinc Sales Below Output Last Week

Sales of tri-state zince concentrates last week came to 3470 tons, with the price running from $19 to $20 a ton, up from $19 the preceding week. The week's output totaled 3700 tons and shipments were 5330 tons, making stocks of sold and unsold zinc concentrates in the tri-state field 50,170 tons.

Virginia-Carolina Resumption Is Near

New York, Nov. 22—Greenville, S. C., plant of Virginia-Carolina Chemical Corp. will resume operations within the next two or three weeks after several months suspension.

STATE ST. Hears:

That evidence indicating the market does not want to go down continues to accumulate. Bear maneuvers not only fail to dislodge liquidation, but they fail to bring out long stock in sufficient volume to facilitate covering. As a result, those short are beginning to wonder what their position will be once the market starts upward, as the bulls confidentally promise it will. The best spot for those who cannot see the long side is on the sidelines. Then they may view market happenings through unbiased eyes.

A Trader's View

One of the most successful bears operating in Boston told the writer this morning that he considered the short side a waste of time which would shortly become a waste of money. He himself has taken a conservative long position and expects it to do well for him the next few weeks.

The reasons for the right about face of the trader mentioned above are found in the repeated indifference of general prices to bad news. He points out that the market has disregarded a very poor carloadings report, a cut in steel prices and the apparent intention of national debtors to default.

As far as the seasonal slackness, which many shorts are attempting to capitalize, is concerned he feels the topping movement of early September discounted a drop in trade. The reaction since then has been entirely normal and amply discounts the falling off from the fall trade peak.

Pools Well Backed

Another featured bit of bear news is the reported indifference of important buyers. Time and again it is mentioned, not so much as a positive bear argument, but as an excuse for advising against accumulation. This may be so, but usually informed gossip coming to the writer indicates otherwise.

Proof of these claims that good people are taking on stock is obtained by locating the support of various syndicates. When important banking interests are definitely connected with bull operations then it would appear they knew enough to place their money on a winner.

In [illegible] the [illegible] checked he was informed that the pools not only had secured banking support but had secured ratification of their intended bull manipulation. Under such conditions it is hard to believe the bull cause is as hopeless as some would paint it.

Street Gossip

Some of the spotty selling in recent sessions has originated in Pittsburgh, according to brokers with connections in that city . . . This applies to Aluminum, Steel preferred, Westinghouse and many second grade bonds . . . The closing of three banks resulted in called loans elsewhere in the city.

For over three years it has been wrong not to sell a dull market, as it always is during bear periods . . . Now it seems the wrong thing to do is to sell inactivity, as it always is during bull periods . . . Dullness on the top of rallies is bearish, on the bottom of dips bullish.

Of course it is necessary to assume that the bear cycle was completed last June-July . . . But it is nearly always necessary to assume that a particular level of prices occupies a certain position in the cycle . . . And the evidence supports the bull cause. H. E. B.

Doherty Club Car Has "Wading Pool"

New York, Nov. 22—A club car designed by Henry L. Doherty, president of the Florida Year-Round Club, is in service for regular runs to Miami, under management of the Atlantic Coast Line. It has a three-piece orchestra, a dance floor, gymnasium lockers and a shower room, an especially constructed screen for moving pictures and a "wading pool." The service was designed to compete with recreational facilities offered by steamships.

Closing Is Dull on Bourse in Paris

Paris, Nov. 22 (AP)—Trading today on the bourse was quiet but heavier owing to less satisfactory indications in foreign markets, causing contraction in buying and some profit taking. The closing was dull. Berlin's closing was irregular with very little business done owing to political uncertainties.

LIVE NEWS OF WALL STREET LEADERS

TRADERS in Wall St. today were mostly marking time, awaiting some definite news on the foreign debts situation with hopes something concrete would come out of the Washington conference between President Hoover and President-elect Roosevelt.

Bellas Hess Sales Volume Maintained

With six weeks remaining to complete the fall selling season, National Bellas Hess, Inc., reports sales to Nov. 16 well in excess of the budget estimates for the entire period, cash orders to that date totaling $905,001. A substantial volume of new business is now being received from eastern territory where 1,500,000 additional "Fall Flyers" have recently been distributed.

Walgreen Earning in Stable Fashion

In view of the fact that Walgreen Co. may at some time be merged into the Drug Inc. organization, considerable interest attaches to the fact that in the year ended Sept. 30, last, earnings of this company, second largest drug chain, held at a level within 19 per cent of those of the year before, a creditable performance for a combined manufacturer and merchandiser.

It has been widely rumored that Walgreen and the Louis K. Liggett Co. may soon be merged. At present no active negotiations are believed to be under way. Settlement of the Liggett lease controversies will probably have to precede any such step.

List Causes for Market Hesitancy

Much argument exists among market analysts as to the causes for the market's uncertain action. Slight decline in industrial activity as evident from the latest popular indexes provides but one factor, in the opinion of these observers. Doubt as to what steps the outgoing and incoming administrations will take on the country's many vital unsettled problems is another major element.

Aside from the pressing war debt topic numerous other important matters awaiting solution includes the federal budget and economies, tariffs, farm and unemployment relief, taxation and the future policy of the Reconstruction Finance Corp. Evidence that progress toward adjustment of these items is being achieved would have a profound effect on sentiment, according to the more competent students.

Few Major Dividend Meetings This Week

Except for yesterday's duPont meeting relatively few important dividend actions are included in this week's list. American Safety Razor, North American and United Fruit are scheduled for today. Board meetings tomorrow include General American Tank Car, General Railway Signal, Mathieson Alkali, Union Carbide and Gillette. On Friday the principal sessions will be that of General Electric, Standard Brands, Humble Oil and International Business Machine.

Rumor Possibility of Gillette Extra

Accoring to some rumors therfe is a possibility that Gilette may vote an extra payment.

Lull Reported in Foreign Activity

Orders from abroad for securities listed on the American security exchanges have dwindled perceptibly since the war debts became a live topic again. Brokers with extensive foreign connections report business with continental countries has fallen to a low ebb.

Moderate Inquiry for High Grade Bonds

There is, however, a moderate inquiry of high grade bonds and preferred stocks from Amsterdam and London. Hope expressed in some quarters late last week that Europe might resume security purchases in this country at the early July and post-election rates has failed of realization, although one firm executed a substantial foreign order for several of the copper shares last Friday.

Professonal Support in Continental Can

Six Railroads Earning Charges

Latest forecasts of 1932 railroad income disclose that only six major systems will fully cover fixed charges. Norfolk & Western heads the list with earnings variously figured at 3.3 to 4.1 times interest. Other estimates include 2.6 to 2.8 for Chesapeake & Ohio; 1.9 to 2 times for Union Pacific; 1.6 to 1.9 for Atchison; 1.2 to 1.7 for Canadian Pacific and 1.3 to 1.4 for Reading. Roads calculated as just about covering requirements include Pennsylvania, Burlington, New Haven and Boston & Maine.

Rally in Sterling Aids London Market

London, Nov. 22 (AP)—A rally today in sterling exchange to $3.27¼ caused covering and an improvement in gilt-edged securities. The remainder of the market moved irregularly and the close was quiet by uncertain awaiting war debts payments problems.

SPECTATOR Says:

Today there is the all-important meeting between Governor Roosevelt and President Hoover on the war debt situation. Until there is some idea of what the results will be, Wall Street is very likely to continue to mark time.

Seaboard Oil

One story around is that Jesse Livermore is running a big pool in the stock. Take it with a heavy grain of salt.

* * *

We give the Seaboard pool credit for their courage but it's hard to see the basis for a move in any oil stock at this time. It would be different in the spring.

Homestake Mining

Those who know say Homestake Mining is the only gold stock that isn't being manipulated. As to the others, we hear that the "boys" are being discouraged by their inability to get a following.

These October earnings reports, combined with the indications car loadings may show some improvement this week, may help the rails, provided the rest of the market doesn't go sour.

Here and There

Quite a section of Wall Street is still very hopeful about the market, feeling that something will come along soon to take it out of its rut.

There has been a little more European buying in the last few days, though the total is still small. Holland took a few shares of U S Steel and American Telephone.

Atlantic Refining is known as the prima donna of the oils, due largely to its contrary earnings record compared with other petroleum companies . . .

Another Committee in Colombian Field

New York, Nov. 22—An independent committee for holders of defaulted dollar bonds of various departments, cities and other municipalities of Colombia has been formed with Robert L. Owen, chairman. It will have no connection with the houses which originally offered the bonds. Holders are requested to deposit bonds with Corn Exchange Bank Trust Co.

PROPAGANDA IS FED U. S. ABOUT FOREIGN DEBT

New York, Nov. 22 (INS)—Wall Street and the country as a whole [illegible] treated to one of the greatest doses of concentrated propaganda since the war—a time when Europe was trying to borrow money here.

Now the propaganda comes when it is time to repay some of the money borrowed 14 or 15 years ago.

The gloom is so thick—or at least the propagandist would [illegible] us believe it—that a person could cut it with a knife down around Broad and Wall Streets.

1. The British pound sterling will break to $2.75 and some extremists forecast $2.50. The pound is now around $3.25 compared to its former gold standard value of $4.86⅔.

2. Commodities will fall to new lows, due to the reduction in British buying power in terms of gold. A wheat price of 37 or 38 cents a bushel is predicted if the December 15 war debt payments are made. Wheat is now selling around 42 cents a bushel.

These things might come about. Nobody can tell, but one thing is sure—the propagandists are not backing up their predictions with money. They are not selling the British pound or commodities short.

The principal idea now is to sell the thought that a payment would be bearish on American stocks. But the reverse might be the case—at least for the moment.

It is highly improbable that the general American public—and the general public in the end makes the market—would be greatly alarmed over a break in sterling or further weakness in wheat. Grain already has fallen around $1.25 a bushel to 49 cents. A few cents more should cause no panic.

Sound U.S. Policy to Aid Trade

By LEWIS HANEY

(Professor of Economics, New York University)

New York, Nov. 22.—There can be no question but that the trend of business activity during November has been downward.

The month of October showed further gains, but at a much less rapid rate than in September. Then, with the current month the various indexes began to slip.

* * *

The most important single [illegible] is railway car loadings and that has been [illegible] more rapidly than usual for the season during the last two or three weeks.

Of course, this reflects in part the decline in coal production and shipments which had followed the big spurt in the fall.

* * *

The activity in the steel industry is also jointly slipping. This is due to a lack of orders. You simply can't get the steel business going as long as building, railway traffic and automobile sales are so low.

The little spurt in automobile production which is now in evidence is merely the usual seasonal activity in bringing out new models. A certain number of cars have to be produced for show purposes and this is often done in November, as is the case this year.

* * *

Another point to note is that the textile and shoe industries, which increased activity so sharply in the fall are now rounding off, and a distant let-down is evident in New England's industry as a result.

Cotton cloth prices have been slipping in the wholesale markets for some weeks, and I am told that some manufacturers who marked their prices up to 40 cents a yard have been asking buyers if they can't take a joke, while jobbers who rushed orders in last months want to be forgiven and forgotten.

* * *

The volume of bank debits (checks drawn) made a new low in October, and last week were 35 per cent below a year ago. Bank clearings naturally show about the same picture.

I have to add that that sensitive index of business, machine tool orders, declined more than seasonally in October.

As to commodity prices, they showed a little short-lived spurt at one time last week, which caused the week's indexes to make fractional gains. At the end, however, prices slumped again, and had the indexes been as of Saturday few gains would have appeared.

Among the declines for the week were wheat, corn, cotton, cotton cloth, silk, raw sugar, rubber, tin, lead, silver, steel scrap, hogs, and cattle.

* * *

Evidently the farmers have been stubbornly holding back wheat from the market. The price is so low that you can 'ardly blame them but holding a commodity brings in no income. Moreover, world supplies of wheat, like several other commodities, are so large that the producers will probably have to forget what it cost to make the crop.

The time to think of cost of production is when the crop is being planted. Once the stuff is raised the only factors in determining prices are market demand and supply.

* * *

Altogether it seems that we are in for a little let-down in industrial activity. I hope that this will be not much more than of seasonal proportions, however, and if we just stick to sound money and credit policies, real improvement will come before many months have passed.

LEADERS CREEP HIGHER, WITH TRADING DULL

New York, Nov. 22—Leaders crept higher on the New York Stock Exchange today in one of the year's dullest sessions. Trading was in restricted volume as a result of the Hoover-Roosevelt conference on the foreign debts situation, with uncertainty over the outcome.

Price changes were generally small and lacking in special significance.

WATCHFUL WAITING POLICY

It was the fifth consecutive session of inconsequential price changes and Wall Street began to wonder how long the market could drift without breaking away from the extremely narrow trading range. The list may have been bolstered a little today by improvement in wheat, but gains were largely limited to fractions.

Issues making maximum gains of major fractions to a point included Air Reduction, American Telephone, American Tobacco "B," Atchison, Case, Consolidated Gas, International Harvester, Safeway, U. S. Steel preferred, and Woolworth.

U. S. Steel common was mostly but a shade higher. Selling of Radio abated and that issue held about unchanged. Seaboard Oil was again firm in what looked like pool activity.

The war debt question remained uppermost in Wall Street's mind, but there was no unanimity of opinion as to how the problem should be met. Sterling dipped to the lowest since last December, as international banking quarters were inclined to the opinion that the December 15 debt payment would be required. But some quarters regarded the war debt question as more an excuse for market uncertainty than a basic factor.

UNION PACIFIC WENT UP

Union Pacific Railroad Company today reported October net operating income of $3,778,907, compared with $3,266,184 in September and $4,982,585 in October, 1931. Union Pacific was the largest railroad system to date to report its net operating income.

After more mature consideration, Wall Street's attitude toward the Radio consent decree appeared to be one of relief at having the long controversy ended. It was noted that Radio's balance sheet, giving effect to the changes, showed a marked strengthening of its position, with current assets about seven times current liabilities, while as of December 31 current assets had been less than double current liabilities.

Preliminary estimates of total crude oil production last week indicated a small decrease. Some quarters in the oil industry still feel that gasoline and crude prices are out of line, and further increases in gasoline prices will be needed to support the present crude structure.

Gold mining shares were heavy, attributed to the inability of recent pool operations to attract a public following. Zonite Products slumped on the dividend omission.

Japan Planning to Float Bond Issue

Washington, Nov. 22—Japan is likely to float bond issues totaling 900,000,000 yen, as expenditures are running considerably above the revenues, the Commerce Department was informed in a radiogram from commercial attache at Tokyo.

As a measure to control foreign exchange value of the yen and facilitate servicing of overseas debt, it is believed the government may purchase foreign currency securities now owned by Japan interests.

Sanford Mills Is Buying Own Stock

Certain stockholders of Sanford Mills have recently sold a portion of their stock to the company at $1 per share, and now tht company is offering to buy stock from other shareholders on similar terms. Not exceeding 5 per cent of stock held by each stockholders will be bought at $10. Present market for the shares is 8 bid, offered at 11. There are 250,202 shares outstanding.

Westerly Loan Is Placed in Boston

Westerly, R. I., awarded to Chase Harris Forbes Corp. at 99.35 for 4½s, $135,000 water loan bonds due 1933 to 1959 and $100,000 sewer bonds due 1933 to 1957, all dated Nov. 1, 1932. Other bidder was Brown, Lisle & Marshall of Providence 98.0236 for 4½s.

Teck Hughes Buys 2 New Properties

Toronto, Nov. 22—At the annual meeting of Teck Hughes Gold Mines, Ltd., stockholders, A. W. Johnson, chairman, said the company has selected two new properties for further work and a third has been staked out. All three are in Quebec.

Dividends

Boston & Ely Consolidated Mining Co. have declared a final liquidating dividend of 15 cents per shard on outstanding stock. A previous dividend of 20 cents was paid in 1931.

* * *

Commonwealth & Southern Corp. declared regular quarterly dividend of $1.50 on the preferred stock, $6 series, payable January 3 to stock of record December 9.

* * *

Texas Corp. today declared a regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share on the capital stock, payable January 1 to stock of record December 2.

Harvard Adds to Its Security Holdings

Harvard College, in the year ended June 30, 1932, took advantage of low security prices to add to its investment portfolio. In this period gains were shown in bonds and preferred and common stocks, while mortgages and advances and real estate registered small declines. Holdings of short term issues also showed a drop, but this was due to special circumstances.

Grand total of the Harvard investments at the end of June was $112,370,854, compared with $110,178,065 at mid-year, 1931, a gain of $2,192,789 or 1.9 per cent. Bond holdings represented the largest investment group and totaled $56,102,345, or 49.9 per cent of book value of all the investments. This total was a gain of $2,336,184 over last year's total. Holdings of railroad bonds at $10,863,874 indicated a reduction of $1,582,658 during the year, while the investment in public utility bonds rose $3,626,334 to $23,982,902 on June 30. Commitments in preferred stocks rose $896,883 during the year, to $9,213,047. Preferred stocks, incidentally, comprised 8.2 per cent of the book value of the portfolio this year, against 7.5 per cent a year ago. As in the case of bond investments, the increase was largely in public utilities, which gained $864,255, while railroad issues were $57,483 less.

Book value of common stock holdings on June 30 was $25,839,781, a gain of $1,476,692 over last year. Common stock holdings represented 23 per cent of the portfolio this year against 22.1 per cent on June 30, 1931. Utility issues gained $378,689 during the year, while the carriers issues decreased by $922,428 to $3,255,071.

Notable purchases in the common stock group involved: American Telephone, Pacific Telephone, Public Service of N. J., Southern California Edison, American Can, Borden, Continental Can, Corn Products, du Pont, General Electric, General Foods, General Motors, International Harvester, Liggett & Myers "B," National Biscuit, Procter & Gamble, R. J. Reynolds "B," Standard Oil of N. J., Texas Corp., Union Carbide, United Biscuit and Woolworth, with sales taking place in International Telephone, Western Union, Drug, Eastman Kodak, Canadian Pacific Railway, New York Central, Pennsylvania Railroad, Southern Pacific and Union Pacific.

New Kuhn-Loeb Partner Has Active Career

New York, Nov. 22 (INS)—Elisha Walker, who becomes a member of the important international banking house of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. the first of January, has a background of four years at Yale followed by two years at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He came to Wall Street in 1902 on leaving M. I. T., going with Fisk & Robinson. Later he joined the firm of William Salomon & Co. He became a partner in 1910 and succeeded William Salomon on his death as senior partner.

In 1920, the firm was merged with the old investment house of Blair & Co., and Walker became president of the consolidation. Then, in 1929, to the surprise of Wall Street, Blair & Co. was merged with the securities affiliate of the Bank of America, then controlled by Amadeo Peter Gianinni through his Transamerica Corp.

The ambitious Walker soon succeeded Gianinni as head of his vast enterprises, but they fell out. There was a bitter proxy fight, following a merger of the Bank of America with the National City Bank and the alliance of Lee, Higginson & Co. with the company, all engineered by Walker.

Gianinni won the fight and ousted Walker and his group. This was in February, this year. Since then Walker has been palavering with some of the big ten Wall Street market operators, and the story is that he has added considerable to his personal fortune.

In all his past ventures, whether financially successful or not, he has always been the commanding officer. With Mirtimer Schiff, Jacob's son, dead, Otto Kahn in semi-retirement due to ill health, Felix Warburg interested in philanthropy, and Hanauer's retirement, Walker may soon again become the head of an old Wall Street house. Other Kuhn Loeb partners are young men, all under 40, and some even under 30.

BUSINESS GAIN CALLED NEAR

New York, Nov. 22 (INS)—Business conditions will look better about the first of the year and 1933 will be marked by a great improvement over 1932.

This is the opinion of John E. Edgerton, chairman of the board of the National Association of Manufacturers, and president of the Lebanon (Tenn.) woolen mills, as expressed in an interview today. Edgerton is one of the most widely known business leaders in the country.

"I see in evidence right now an accelerated spirit of co-operation on the part of American business and political leadership," said Edgerton. "This is a good sign.

"I believe we have finally developed, after three years of confusion, a sort of patriotic spirit akin to that which gripped us in the war days. I believe the people on the whole have finally accepted the fact that the depression is a common possession and that successful resistance to it is a common duty."

Edgerton, discussing present conditions, said the cotton industry in the South "is doing fine." He added that, so far as he knows, all the cotton mills are operating on a full time basis, some employing three shifts.

Private Seats in Special Street Car

Detroit, Nov. 22—Detroit Street Railways is considering a deluxe street car service with individual upholstered seats for each person paying a 10-cent fare. Regular fare is six cents.

The deluxe cars would be interspersed with regular trunk line service making no better time, but carrying only seated passengers. A deluxe car is being exhibited and adoption of the plan will depend largely on public comment. Principle of the plan will be applied to regular cars to test public demand.

Sherwin Williams in Canada Losing

Montreal, Nov. 22—Sherwin Williams Co. of Canada, Ltd., for year ended Aug. 31 reports net loss of $19,863 after charges, against net income of $272,015 the preceding fiscal year. After preferred dividends and $160,000 common dividends, against $340,000 a year before, and provision for pension fund, deficit for year was $448,619, against $330,331 deficit the year before.

R.F.C. Slowness Seen as Hopeful for '33

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

New York, Nov. 22—The slowness of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in authorizing construction loans means that the benefits in jobs will come largely in 1933, instead of this year.

That is one of the hopeful signs on the economic horizon for next year, and will tend to support the hope that general business may rally next spring.

About half a billion dollars of the 1.8 billions of funds and credit made available by the Federal government have already been authorized for 1933 construction. The Engineering News Record points out that the 1.8 billion dollar appropriation is equivalent to 75 per cent of the entire engineering construction volume of 1931. It is 144 per cent greater than the volume estimated for 1932. Failure to provide sufficient legislation has caused many to rely on public or private relief measures. The inadequacy of such arrangements has induced a revival of advocacy of unemployment insurance.

Six states combined to study the question last winter, and as a result, two of these, Ohio and Massachusetts, will consider legislation this winter calling for compulsory reserves by business enterprises against unemployment. This follows the pattern adopted in Wisconsin which calls upon employers to set up unemployment reserves.

If the bill prepared in Ohio is adopted, employers in the state will be called upon to contribute 2 per cent of their payrolls, and the workers will be asked to contribute 1 per cent of their wages. The reserve fund will be administered by the state. The unemployed worker, after three weeks of waiting, will be permitted to draw on this fund to the extent of 50 per cent of his former wages for 16 weeks. The drawings must not exceed $15 a week.

Under the measure proposed in Massachusetts the state would administer the reserve fund but would keep the account of each business organization separately. An employer would be expected to contribute 2 per cent of his payroll until his account covered $50 per worker, then 1 per cent until it reached $75 per worker, ceasing payments thereafter, until the fund was depleted and needed to be replenished.

9 Important Industries Are Found With Improvement

New York, Nov. 22—Nine important industries furnishing more than one-quarter of the total national income are listed by the Standard Statistics Company, of New York, as showing fundamental signs of improvement and 20 other industries, representing 70 per cent of the national income, are suggested as thoroughly deflated and ready to go ahead. Seven lines of business representing only 4.2 per cent of total income, face further deflation. The lines of business in the three classifications follow:

SHOWING IMPROVEMENT—Apparel, cotton goods, food products, leather and shoes, petroleum, rayon, retail trade, silk goods, woolen goods.

THOROUGHLY DEFLATED—Agriculture, autos and parts, auto tires, banks, building, chemicals, coal and coke, foreign trade, machinery, medicines, miscellaneous manufacturing, non-ferrous metals, office equipment, public utilities, publishing and printing, railroads, steel, sugar, theaters and motion pictures, tobacco.

$566,000 Elevator Awards Made

New York, Nov. 22—Thirty-seven elevators will provide for the transportation needs of the new United States Supreme Court Building in Washington, the marble cornerstone of which was laid recently. The contract for these installations, costing approximately $566,000 has been let to the Otis Elevator Company.

U. S. HITS BACK AT TARIFFS

Ottawa, Ont., Nov. 22 (AP)—Retaliation from the United States has followed the high tariffs imposed by the Bennett government, J. L. Ralston, former minister of national defense, said in the House of Commons.

Imposition of the recent duty on lumber in the United States, which has effectively shut off the market has effectively shut off the market to the "red-blooded" tariff of the Canadian government, Mr. Ralston charged. The one followed the other closely in time and there was no question of the connection.

"The high tariff tendency of the United States recently," he said, "is due in no small part to the actions of this government in 1930 and 1931." Canada's swing to high tariffs, he added, was particularly unfortunate in coming at a time when sentiment in favor of lower tariffs was gaining ground in the United States.

"Everyone knows," he said, "the United States has recently been considering imposing a duty on our live lobsters just because of our tariff policy."

United Electric Coal Earns 15c Share

United Electric Coal Companies for the quarter ended October 31 last reports a net profit of $45,701 after depreciation, federal taxes and other deductions, equivalent to 15 cents a share on 306,000 shares of common. This compares with a net profit in the like 1931 quarter of $61,123 equal after preferred dividends to 10 cents a share on the common.

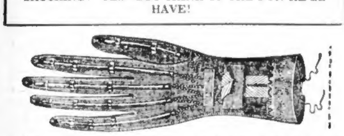
SHOCKING? YES—BUT THINK OF THE FUN HE'LL HAVE!



Who among us has not winced at the inhumanity of man to man when reading how the President is frequently disabled by handshaking? Sometimes the President's hand is so bruised and swollen he can't even do card tricks—all because a lot of chumps insist on shaking the hand that feeds them. But this brutality will be eliminated by the invention of Congressman Frisby, illustrated above. The Frisby High Voltage glove carries a wallop—and after three or four handshakers get the shock of their lives, there won't be so much loitering around the White House. And the President will be able to use his hand for what it was intended—fork waving at breakfasts for Senators.

HEARST POLL PRAISED FOR ACCURACY

New York, Nov. 22 (US)—The Hearst presidential poll predicted most accurately of all polls the shift of voters from their 1928 allegiance to that of 1932, according to Claude E. Robinson, who recently made an exhaustive study of the straw vote under auspices of the Columbia University council for research in the social sciences.

In his latest analysis published in the current issue of the New Republic, Robinson points out that "as early as mid-August the Hearst newspapers were reporting a political cyclone in the offing and in later weeks this warning was repeated by the Literary Digest and other publications."

He says:

"The Hearst poll, which was a mail canvass of telephone owners, was slightly less accurate than that of the Literary Digest, scoring an average state plurality error of 10 per cent as opposed to 7 per cent for its national competitor.

"However, if the computations be made on the basis of shift of voters from 1928 to 1932, which on account of the known Republican bias of the telephone and automobile mailing lists is probably the more defensible method of interpretation, the Hearst poll, with an average state plurality error of 4 per cent, as against 7 per cent for the Digest, becomes the more accurate of the two."

Robinson also recalls that:

"Four years ago the Hearst chain scored an average state plurality error of 5 per cent, which was up to that time and still is the best performance for any nationwide poll without the benefit of special interpretation."

In addition to forecasting the cataclysmic nature of the overturn, the Hearst poll reported the varying complexions of the male and female vote, which revealed women as slightly more in favor of Mr. Hoover than men, according to Robinson.

"The Hearst poll, too, was arranged so that separate tenths of each congressional district were sampled each week during the campaign, the idea being to detect any change in sentiment which might occur," Robinson also pointed out.

Popular Connie

Seems to me I am writing the name Constance Cummings every other day in this column. That is because Connie has more jobs offered and given her than almost any other leading lady. She is under contract to Columbia but she does as much traveling around to other studios as if she were a free-lance artist. Columbia cannot use her all the time, therefore she is being borrowed by other studios. I only hope Connie is not making too many pictures. There is always danger of an actress being seen too often. Connie's latest assignment is at Fox where she plays opposite Warner Baxter in "Promenade Deck."

Chatter in Hollywood

A separation that has been effected quietly is that of the former Mrs. Marjorie Wellman and Wallace Harvey. Mrs. Wellman, the first wife of William Wellman, well-known director, married Wallace Harvey, oil promoter and the young man who was much publicized as the father of the late Mrs. Florine Williams' child. Mrs. Wellman, a pretty blonde, married Harvey immediately after Mrs. Williams' suicide. According to friends, Mrs. Wellman has been living apart from her oil promoter husband for some time, getting ready to start divorce proceedings.

A Line Or Two

The Honolulu company of "Big Boats" is due to reach San Francisco Wednesday morning at 9 a. m. Robert Montgomery, Walter Huston, Robert Young, Eugene Pallette, Jimmy Durante and their director, Jack Conway. Can't you just see Durante back with a lot of jokes, a few grass skirts and maybe some tropical songs from the islands.

Snapshots of Hollywood

The biggest thrill of the Academy dinner was to see HARRY RAPF well and among his old friends. CONRAD NAGEL did a great thing when he called upon HARRY to accept the statuette awarded FRANCES MARION. FRANCES was unable to be present. FRANK BORZAGE was so surprised when he heard his name called he dropped a bottle of ginger ale in MRS BORZAGE's lap. EDDIE DOHERTY, well known writer, saw his first Academy dinner with MILDRED SPAIN his wife. MILDRED was formerly a W. K. movie critic. JESSE LASKY made his first appearance as a member of the Fox Co. He sat at WINFIELD SHEEHAN'S right. LUPE VELEZ sat at the table with RANDOLPH SCOTT and later was a member of SCOTT'S party in the Coconut Grove. HERB SOMBORN, who is giving MARGARET LINDSAY 90 per cent of his evenings, dancing with her in the Grove. LILA LEE accompanied by a new swain. Ornamental LILYAN TASHMAN at the Academy dinner with the LIONEL BARRYMORES, and, of course, EDDIE. She wore diamond clips in her hair. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Our American Government Plan

Is the Machine Running Down? Must the Plan Be Changed?

WASHINGTON.
HE THOUGHT OF IT.

JEFFERSON.
HE FORMULATED IT.

All those that ask "What is the matter with us, with our country, our industrial system, our suddenly collapsed prosperity?" will be interested in an article by Ida M. Tarbell, "The American Plan—Is It Still Valid?"

Frankly, Miss Tarbell's article, of which some quotations are made here with permission of the Cosmopolitan Magazine for December, discusses the plan laid out by our forefathers and the important question, "IS IT STILL VALID?"

Miss Tarbell, accustomed to write what she thinks, does not hesitate to compare our problem and our "American plan" with the Russian plan, about which so much has been printed. She writes:

> "If you are a citizen of these United States, Mr. Reader, you know, even if for the moment you may have forgotten it, that Russia is not the only country on the globe working under a Plan. America, too, has a Plan, one which you have taken an oath to support. It is no five-year Plan. Rather, it is one built for all time.
> "It is a Plan that turns America into one great laboratory where if we are true to the spirit of our oath, we are all workers. In this laboratory we are trying to establish the right of every man to eat the bread he earns, as well as the obligation to earn the bread he eats—the right to think his own thoughts; to find what he is best fitted to do, and to do it."

You will see that Ida M. Tarbell has not lost her faith in the American plan or in the ability of this country to work it out. But many believe that our plan has worked as long as it can, and that we must find another plan.

There are dozens willing to supply that new plan.

Some would solve our troubles with the single tax, and then be amazed to find that you cannot move people from the crowded streets into the open country. They won't go so far from a moving picture or a soda water stand.

Others, ignoring human nature and the entire history of the human race, suggest "Communism"—all to share equally. That would not work even among mild guinea pigs, much less among grafting, covetous men. You must regulate their grafting and their covetousness, using both for their own good, and for the general good.

THEY SIGNED THE DECLARATION.

IDA M. TARBELL. SHE DISCUSSES THE PLAN.

She invites you to go back to 1789, when the government as we understand it now was "set in motion."

Then, in all the United States there were fewer than 4,000,000 human beings, less than half the population of New York City today. And of those few, more than 690,000 were slaves. Now we number more than 120,000,000, all free, "although some contend that we have as large a proportion of slaves as ever, 'wage slaves.'"

Now we are the richest people in the world. In supplying population, territory and wealth, our plan certainly has succeeded up to now.

Miss Tarbell asks "What is the matter with us? Is our American plan a failure?

"When is a plan a failure?"

She calls a plan a failure when those that live under it lose faith in it.

You must not think that "Business is business" is a modern motto, or that putting human selfishness above human rights is something new. Miss Tarbell reminds you that when it came to making the Constitution:

> "Mr. Randolph told his colleagues, who were discussing the slave trade, 'Religion and humanity have nothing to do with the question. Interest alone is the governing principle with nations.'"

Readers of this newspaper will be interested in all that Miss Tarbell has to say. Her article will clarify their own thinking, and without presuming to dictate conclusions it will supply suggestions leading to sound conclusions.

New York Day by Day

The Public Library

NEW YORK, Nov. 22—The Public Library, at 5th ave. and 42d st., is a drab olive in the Manhattan cocktail. No other edifice rests so content in the uproar. And the serenity of its architecture, its pale, high, leisurely rooms are symbolical of peace.

One may hear in faint rumbumble New York's eternal diapason but it means nothing. This is the roar of Today and you are surrounded by Yesterday. Even sweeping corridors inspire a tiptoey hush. Regular visitors are mostly old men, sunk in the past, comically absent minded.

A large number are the shabby genteel who have found a happiness in life the great majority will never know. One can tell them by the way they finger a book. There are those, too, who stumble into you and look blankly. Under their arm they carry some priceless tome.

No wonder, with such a treasure, they do not see you. See you! Heaven's mercy—you! Around their volume they may be recreating a forgotten empire. Instead of you, they may be beholding the hosts of Pharaoh, nodding with plumes, and sweeping in majestic waves through Syria.

Outside of churches and cathedrals no solemnity awes a reverence comparable to the library's. The real bookworm faces alcoves, rich with dust, with a medieval monkish air. Flip interlopers who dash in to snatch an Oppenheim are almost an affront to pontifical saints of the library.

• • •

• • •

It is heartening, too, that Bryant Park, "the library's back yard," is again facing life with the blinds up. For a space it was tricked out with a high board fence and there was an admission fee. Now the fence is down and benches are free shoals for the weary. Bryant Park has especial glamour for a writer. Walt Whitman meditated there. David Graham Phillips loved it next to Gramercy. And Eugene Walter benched under its stars those depressing nights when he was nipping for a metropolitan toe-hold.

• • •

Fate eddies queer flotsam into Bryant Park on days of permissible weather. A recent dusk, I saw a scholarly gentleman with gold-rimmed glasses, tethered by a broad, black ribbon. His fawn overcoat had the pathetic snugness of a charity assortment and the look of clean brushing. He sat with a rather bewildered expression of one just kicked out by Life—wearing a straw hat!

• • •

At one of the Pierette theatrical dances, a movie director and Estelle Taylor, whom he once directed, were seated next to each other by the hostess. As midnight waned into dawn, the director grew increasingly affectionate. In dopey night club slang—"a cotton picker." Finally the actress exclaimed: "You told me I didn't use my hands properly. I can say the same for you!"

• • •

At Lindy's they told of a pet goat a Long Island horseman brought to his penthouse in town for the winter. Someone related it would be kept at night in a clothes closet in the horseman's bedroom. Someone naturally inquired: "But what about the smell?" And up spoke Irving Caesar: "O, I suppose eventually the goat will get used to it."

• • •

He teetered, resplendent in full dress and silk hat, to the curb edge following a gala first night. After a comic effort to snap his fingers for a taxi, I asked him how he liked the play. He finally focused a roving eye on me and hiccuped: "I didn't notice it."

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

What Will You Be at 70?

"I WISH," SAYS HE, "that you'd write about old people. Of course there are some nice ones, but I mean the old people who make life miserable for everyone else by their unreasonableness."

Elsie Robinson

You wonder if it ever will do things like that to you?

Will your youth depart, and leave you cranky and stupid?

Will you begin to harp back "to the good old days," and refuse to accept any new ideas, make any new experiments?

Cranky, cowardly, stubborn, stupid old people—how you'd hate to be one. Yet will Old Age suddenly do that to you?

No, it won't.

Old Age doesn't "suddenly do that" to anyone. Old Age isn't a mysterious catastrophe against which we have no control, which swoops upon us and transforms our characters willy-nilly.

You're going to be at 70 just what you are today, only more so.

ALREADY YOU ARE DOING SCORES OF THINGS WHICH YOU DESPISE IN OLD PEOPLE.

Already you're making alibis and excuses, in order to get your own way, or escape the consequences of your cussedness.

AND EVERY TIME YOU INDULGE IN THESE TRAITS YOU ARE LETTING YOURSELF GROW OLD, AND PREPARING YOURSELF TO BECOME A PUBLIC NUISANCE.

What are you going to be when you're old?

That's up to you!

You can control your old age just as surely and just as easily as you can control your tomorrow.

You can be what you want to be.

And, inevitably, you will be what you choose to be—NOW.

You can be a generous, gentle, lovable old person if you wish to be.

You can be as lively, dramatic, courageous, progressive and stimulating at 80 as you were at 18—if you choose to be.

Or you can be a cantankerous old customer, stupid, doddering, avoided and despised.

IT'S UP TO YOU!

Just Folks

Heritage

He flung a curse upon his son
For some grave folly he had done.
He cried aloud: "He's fully grown!
The end of this he must have known!
The price of this he must have seen!"
And yet his own hands were unclean.
Upon his breath was heavy still
The flavor which had wrought the ill.

He blamed the boy for being weak
Who had himself a craven streak.
He preached high conduct, but he walked
On lower levels than he talked,
And thought it disappointment grim
To find his boy had followed him.
He seemed surprised at last to see

Fathers who want fine sons must seek
And by example day by day
To what is finer lead the way.
Theirs is the burden to be strong,
Wisely to choose twixt right and wrong;
For as the twigs are like the tree,
So like their fathers sons must be.

Wise Sayings

Tell me your company and I will tell you what you are.

Party Government and Responsibility

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Boston Evening American

THE MEETING BETWEEN MR. HOOVER and Mr. Roosevelt should be of importance to the latter if the former puts him in full possession of all the commitments and understandings reached by the present administration in the numerous secret conversations with the spokesmen of the debtor nations. But the assumption in some quarters that a definite program for the coming administration will be adopted in a conference between Mr. Hoover and his successor, utterly independent of the position of the leaders of the latter's party, is a manifest absurdity.

Immediately following in the wake of this conference will come another between Mr. Hoover and the congressional leaders, whose position is well known. All this will be of value to the present President in determining his own course on matters that come up while the responsibility still is his.

Meanwhile the propaganda, thoroughly organized, merrily goes on with the usual lack of frankness in making clear the fact that there can be no such thing as a cancellation of the debts. The proposition is not to cancel the debts. The proposition is to transfer the debts from the nations that borrowed and used the money to the taxpayers of the United States.

It does seem that even gentlemen in high hats can afford to be honest with the public to the extent of making that clear.

Another phase of the question that evidently cannot be mentioned in good taste is the fact that all payments can be made without increasing the taxes in the debtor nations by taking enough money for the purpose from the appalling amounts they are spending for war purposes.

• • •

Easier to Carry Congress Along

It is strange how much we hear since the elections of the virtues of coalition governments. The last we heard coalition urged was when the Democrats were in power the last time. We are quite sure that no one even considered such a thing when the Republicans were in power.

There is the suggestion of a coalition in the plan to have Mr. Hoover and Mr. Roosevelt agree between themselves on a program. The policies of one of these unmistakably have been repudiated by the people. After the fourth of March the responsibility wholly will be with the other who, we are convinced, is quite able to assume it.

One request from the debtor nations must be acted upon next month. This must be acted upon by the government that will be in power next month — that headed by President Hoover. Whatever action he takes will be acted upon by Congress—but not by the Congress that goes in on March 4th. The evident hope is that by securing Mr. Roosevelt's sanction to Mr. Hoover's policy it will be easier to carry Congress along next month.

• • •

Coalition Governments Seldom Successful

Coalition governments have seldom been successful. They are born with the seeds of disintegration. They are composed of gentlemen seated at a table with knives up their sleeves. There is no possibility of actual harmony among them except perhaps on some one or two propositions. These coalition governments present an incongruous picture of incompatible and irreconcilable elements. They generally end with knives flying in the air. Always there is treachery.

We recently have heard much complaint against government by "blocks." These sometimes are unavoidable, when one party has a clear mandate from the people. Coalition governments are formed only under similar conditions. One of the reasons that ministers in Europe come and go with such lightning rapidity is because some members of the coalition lock horns with others on some policy proposed, and the government finds itself without a majority to carry on. The only thing to do is to resign and then enter into bartering with other elements to form a new coalition. That lasts for a little while, and passes out through the same process of disintegration.

• • •

No Way to Shift Responsibility

And that is the reason we Americans have found the party system the most satisfactory. So have the English. The trouble in Congress during the last two years has been due to the fact that no one party really was dominant. The Republican majority in the Senate was purely theoretical. The administration had no real majority, because the insurgents held the balance of power, and these were out of sympathy with administration policies.

In the House the Democrats had a bare majority of five, and in hectic, hysterical days, such as we have seen, this has not been sufficient to make party domination possible.

The recent elections have changed the picture. The Democratic majority in the House is very heavy. In the Senate it is so heavy that there is no possibility of power passing from them, even though the elections of 1934 result in losses of seats.

A political party, therefore, has a clear mandate. It has an easy majority, and that party has both the opportunity and the responsibility. There is no possible excuse for coalitions to carry on. There is no way to shift responsibility. If, under these circumstances, the dominant party splits into factions and feeds on feuds, the system of party government will be dealt a blow from which it will not be easy to recover.

• • •

"Era of Good Feeling"

That is the reason that the policies to be adopted by the new regime must come from common counsel among the party leaders and not from coalitions with the opposition.

Meanwhile we may be sure that there is nothing in the theory that the nation, because of the magnitude of the recent victory, has entered upon another "era of good feeling." That was the phase descriptive of the conditions after the election of President Monroe. But the conditions were different. The Federalist had been shattered and scattered by Jefferson in the election of 1800. But throughout his administration, despite his assurance that "now we are all Federalists, we are all Republicans (Democrats)" a bitter partisan battle was constantly in progress. This continued throughout the two administrations of Madison. In truth, the partisan venom during these eight years led to treasonable attitudes and imperiled the nation.

But in each election, the Federalist continued to dwindle in numbers and, with the election of Monroe, they literally were wiped out. There was but one party. Old line Federalists, pretending to conversion, entered the Jeffersonian ranks. The divergence came soon afterward, but the period of Monroe was the "era of good feeling."

• • •

"Beware of the Greeks Bearing Gifts"

But, despite the havoc wrought the defeated party in the recent elections, with the elimination of old party leaders, it would be absurd to say that it has been eliminated. Another such election probably would mean its early extinction—but there is no assurance of anything of the sort. And we shall be much surprised if the party opposition during the first Roosevelt administration will not be bitter and persistent. To coalize with the foe would be suicide. The coalition would be used to sow dissensions in the ranks of the party in power.

Only through unity of action in carrying out the pledges made in the campaign, can the party in power reenforce its hold on public confidence. And in the meanwhile it will do well to "beware of the Greeks bearing gifts."

YESTERDAY'S QUESTION

By Dr. F. E. Null

If one places a glass prism in a beam of sunlight, the original rays are bent toward the base of the prism. They may be spread out into a colored band of light on a nearby wall. One may observe a continuous and gradual change in color from violet to red.

Now let us replace the light from the sun by that from a red-hot iron. (The light from the iron should be rendered parallel by a glass lens before striking the prism.)

We are surprised to find that the violet and green shades have practically disappeared, and only the red end of the spectrum remains. The iron is now heated to a dazzling white heat. Much more light is now emitted. Some of the violet and green colors reappear, but their brightness relative to the red end of the spectrum is still less than when the sun was the source.

One, thus, observes that the total brightness of a body rapidly increases with the temperature and that at the same time its colors shift from the red to the violet. It is found that the total radiation from many solids varies approximately as the fourth power of the temperature (measured from 273°C as the absolute zero). The same law holds for most gases when they are at high temperatures.

The temperature of the stars varies from about 3400°C to 26,500°C. The temperature of our sun is about 6000°C.
